Don't fail to remember,
The month of December
Comes to your door all icy with snow,
While in sunshine 'midst flowers,
You may spend winter hours,
If to Southern California you go.
The popularity of these excursions to the Pacific Coast, organized in 1885, is now so widely known they need no introduction to the traveling public. The arrangements being made for these parties will be far more complete than heretofore, with more varied choice of routes for the least rate ever offered to the Tourist. Health or Pleasure seeker.
The trip to Honolulu is the finest sea voyage in the world. Plan to take it. We have arranged to bring with our special trains persons who desire to come to California to stay, and all who join these parties cannot fail to be delighted with everything provided for their safety and comfort. Round Trip Tickets Florida class, with all stop-over privileges desired, and six months to stay. Please send

In a very short time our
New Fall Goods
Will be arriving and no time must be lost in getting ready for them. Room is more desirable than the Goods, and all along the line the word is given,
GET READY!
Every Department must be ready to receive its quota of new goods. This will no doubt be the most active fall's business this city has ever experienced, and we are now preparing to receive our full share. Our new basement will be ready by September 15th. We take possession the 1st. New floors will be laid and it will be shelved and countered in the most complete manner.
This room will be filled with Job Lots, Auction Goods, Odds and Ends and Remnants of all kinds and will be used as the ADDITIONAL MEDIUM for our business. Our main floor will be bettered by the addition of our basement price will be no object. It is made to draw the crowd. All through the house larger quantities of goods can be used and this will give us the additional advantage of bringing in larger quantities and at much lower prices.
Take advantage now of the universal low prices that prevail all through the house. We are making preparation for FALL BUSINESS.
Watch for the opening of our Big Basement Salesrooms.
A Week
Mark-Down
At the People's Store!
Not alone because we have gone through every department in the house and marked down every variety and class of goods in our various stores, but because we have marked down this week to show the public that ever during the nested spell the PEOPLE'S STORE has attractions that will repay any one to endure the heat and Take Advantage of What We Offer this Week
WE HAVE MARKED DOWN THIS WEEK—
Which to dispose of an exceptionally large and splendid value stock of Summer Goods.
WE HAVE MARKED DOWN THIS WEEK—
To show all that we do not overstate our values, nor exaggerate or misrepresent our bargains in the columns of this paper.
WE HAVE MARKED DOWN THIS WEEK—
Because we're going to have a great mark-down sale. Our manager is going to knock the bottom out of former prices.
WE HAVE MARKED DOWN—
And will continue to mark down all goods in our several stores, and you may come to our great mark-down sale next week and expect to find goods extraordinary cheap.
WE HAVE MARKED DOWN GOODS—
Because we want to force trade. We have marked down goods because we want you to buy even if your wants are filled. We have marked down goods because we want you to buy, not because you need anything, but because you can't resist the price.
We may not be ready for our great mark-down sale before Tuesday, as we wish to personally mark down each and every article, see the torch applied to the old price and the new price affixed to every piece.
Come and See What We Have Marked Down,
And judge if it pays to guide yourself by what we say in print to visit our sales.

AMERICAN FRUIT EVAPORATOR!

The most practical and reliable Fruit Evaporator made. It gives unobstructed hot air currents ABOVE and BELOW all fruit, thus insuring evenness of drying and no spoiled fruit. Save of infringements. THE AMERICAN is pre-eminently the fruit-raisers' machine. Its sizes grade from domestic to manufacturing wants. It makes the highest quality of work with ordinary care in handling. There is no need of making anything else. Though we approve a slight use of sulphur, the AMERICAN is specially adapted for highest grade in unbleached work. It places fresh cut fruit first in highest and driest heat; cures cut surfaces at once and keeps them dry, thereby setting and making permanent the color, and also thereby, as in broiling steaks, securing the highest quality in product. We our experience in evaporating at the disposal of our customers. In some cases this gratuitous service is of more value than prices paid us for evaporators. Sold by

PROFIT
Four Hundred feet above the city with the most perfect natural sewerage, tempered with a delightful atmosphere, and a sanitarium for persons with weak lungs, asthma and kindred diseases. This is verified by actual residents on the tract.
The most delightfully located tract as to natural scenery, climate and convenience to city and mountains; on the only good carriage roads to the county, and those who know say it is a real pleasure to live in such a location.
Now we do strike you. This tract is (or will be August 1st) connected by steam street with Commercial Street. Depot. Rapid Transit is the key to all successful suburban residence, and this place will be within IT minutes of the depot or 15 minutes of the Courthouse.
The difference in TAXES of a home on this tract (it is outside city limits) and one in the city will pay the owner's fare to and run the city during the year. It brings you as near the business center as you would be at Twelfth and Grand, or Twelfth and Main streets. You can own a lot large enough for a cow and chickens, grow many of the vegetables you use, keep the boys at home, have a large enough yard to be a safe, healthful and pleasure-giving playground, and still have a large, happy and useful life, and make money by it.
THE PLACE is HIGHLAND PARK, just four miles from the Courthouse, on the new Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railway, and on the direct road to Pasadena, and must be seen to be fully appreciated. Lots for sale in any size to suit, at prices that will command attendance.

CATARRH!
And Consumption are Caused by Atmospheric Germs, Which Develop into Parasites. These Diseases are Scientifically Treated By
DR. N. DAVIS, M. D., M. C. P. S. O.
Graduate of "Chicago Homeopathic College," Chicago, and "Order of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario," Canada, HOMŒOPATHIC SPECIALIST of Diseases of Ear, Nose, Throat, Chest, and all Chronic Diseases.
CATARRH
is caused by the presence of parasites, microscopical in size, in the mucous membranes. The germs are deposited from the air and become easily dew-loosed and increase enormously in systems debilitated from any cause, as in scrofulous subjects and in those suffering from a hyperæmic condition of the blood to become impoverished.
The catarrh is first located in the anterior part of the nose and the patient seems to have a cold in the head, from which he is always sure to suffer. This gradually extends to the posterior nares and mucous is expelled, more copiously in the mornings, from the throat, but is now and then there is a discharge, a dry sensation in the nostrils alone being present. If time the mucous membrane becomes thickened, so that respiration through the nose is difficult or impossible, then the germs are deposited directly into the throat and lungs. This stage of the disease will be noticed by a hacking cough or simply a disposition to clear the throat. Sometimes the throat will lie dormant for years until exposure in the lungs become in a fit condition for their development. This condition may be the result of a severe cold or any debilitating disease, when the germ is able to establish itself in the blood. Then colds do not pass off as other colds have done and we have a case of chronic Bronchitis or Catarrh of the Lungs, which is often mistaken for consumption and may pass into that disease if not arrested. The treatment consists in using such remedies as will destroy the germs or parasites, soften the secretions and facilitate expectoration. This gives constitutional medicines a chance to build up the system and our mild inhalations reach the catarrhal influence. The climate alone very often apparently arrests the disease, but there is always danger of a relapse until the cause is removed. Catarrh is frequently cured with from one to four applications of medicine. Every case can be cured if taken in time and in hopeless cases life can be prolonged and made easy given to the patient.
Simple Nasal Catarrh and pharyngitis can be treated at a distance by writing for a list of questions, but if lungs are involved an examination at office is necessary.
Consultation and Examination Free.
The following testimonial of a gentleman well known in Los Angeles, who has a law office at 45½ North Spring street, will show how quickly catarrh can be cured:
This is to certify that I am a regularly qualified physician, but not practicing, and have always believed catarrh of the chronic nasal type to be an incurable affliction, but hearing of Dr. N. Davis' new treatment and its success, I applied to him for medicine and determined to try it in the case of one of my friends and did so with the most satisfactory results, as improvement was manifested from the first prescription effected a cure. The case was of three years' standing and of a very severe type. I can recommend Dr. Davis to those similarly afflicted. R. HALEY, M. D.

Graduate of Victoria College, Toronto, Ontario, Member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario; for three years Assistant Physician of the Chicago and Cincinnati Tarcal and Lung Institutes; for fifteen years, and still, proprietor of the Detroit Tarcal and Lung Institutes, also Licentiate Physician in and for the State of Michigan, and for several years Proprietor of the Ontario Pulmonary Institute and Health Resort at Toronto, Ontario. Over 60,000 cases treated by us during the past nineteen years.
In order to show how successfully lung diseases can be cured when properly treated, we give the testimonial of one who is well and favorably known by many of the people of Los Angeles. From Rev. L. J. Fiske, D. D., President Albion College, Albion, Mich., formerly pastor of Central M. E. Church, Detroit, Mich., and editor of the Christian Advocate:
DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22, 1877.
DR. WILLIAMS—Dear Sir: I am glad to add my testimony to the efficacy of the treatment upon me has received. In the Spring of 1877, my son, then at the age of 22, was suffering from a severe affection of the bronchial tubes and lungs, so as to be compelled to keep his room and the most of the time his bed. Within the space of two weeks he experienced about a dozen hemorrhages, from which the physician regarded as afforded but temporary relief. I applied to you who employed him in inhaling medicines, which effected an immediate arrest of the bleeding, and which has never occurred since he began the inhalations. Respectfully, L. R. FISKE.

The Times.

Office—Temple, Main and New High.

AMONG a lot of articles which had been left at the elevated railroad depots in New York, and which were sold the other day, there were 800 umbrellas.

THE New York Mail and Express leads off with the suggestion, that the mourning draperies that festoon the cities be taken down at the end of thirty days, and be given or devoted to the use of the poor.

WHAT a happy family it is across the big water! England and Russia glowering at each other over Afghanistan; France and Germany always jealous and watchful; France and China just through with their little tiff and not yet feeling amicable; Spain and Germany beginning to snap at each other about the Caroline Islands; Egypt with a rebellion raising merry Ned; all of the powers envious of England, because she gobbled up such a big slice of Africa; intrigues, plots, counter-plots, alliances offensive and defensive—there is a end to the fun they are having. Let the United States thank her stars for the distance of deep blue sea which separates her from all of this turmoil. The Monroe doctrine is good enough for us.

THE administration appears to have made a blunder in the selection of James Whelan, of Buffalo, as Consul at Fort Erie, Canada, which forms a very pretty companion piece to the appointment of Kelley as Minister to Italy. Whelan was an active Fenian, and participated in the Fenian scheme for the invasion of Canada in 1866. He was at the same time engaged in selling the bonds of the Irish republic. To commission him as a Consul to sustain official relations with the government which he had conspired to overthrow, is almost as appropriate a thing as it was to send to Italy a man who had publicly and bitterly denounced the Italian government. Mr. Cleveland is a resident of Buffalo, and is well acquainted with Whelan, and his blunder can hardly have been due to bad advice.

THE Democratic Internal Revenue Department has not quarreled seriously with the whisky interest, after all. We thought it wouldn't. The Department finds that, while the Peoria barrels were so constructed that the gauger's rod could not sound their full depth, and a swindle of about a gallon was effected in the case of each package, still there was nothing to show that a swindle was intended. Charitably not. When a grocer weighs out sugar with short weights, who knows that he means to swindle? When a man passes a forged bill, or swears out of an assessment, or walks off with another man's horse, who knows to a dead certainty that the man has wickedness in his heart? Alas, that the government officials are not psychologists! If they were only gifted with the power of mind-reading they might know the innermost thoughts of the Peoria distillers and could then tell whether they were guilty of fraud or not.

"THE more we think of it and see the exceptions already made to the operations of his order," says the Kansas City Journal, "the more we think the Secretary of War has undertaken a difficult task in ordering the favored army officers in Washington to their regiments. Several secretaries of war have attempted to do the same thing, but the social influence in Washington has been too powerful for them. Indeed, every Secretary of War since 1869 has tried to enforce such an order as that which Secretary Endicott has issued, but each in turn has failed. It remains to be seen if Mr. Endicott can carry out an order which has fair play for its object. As Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Chandler made himself unpopular in certain circles by refusing to detail a number of naval officers for society duty at Washington at the beginning of the winter season. The excellent General Burnside undertook to overthrow the system of favoritism by legislation, but he could not get his bill through the Senate, a few fashionable young ladies as lobbyists being too much for him. With a series of failures before him, it remains to be seen what measure of success Secretary Endicott will achieve."

THE San Francisco Chronicle says that California is making a fine exhibit at the Louisville exhibition, though no concerted effort was made to do so. It was got up by the railroad and two or three individuals, yet it shows off some of the products of the State to good advantage. The Kentuckians say they never saw anything like it before, and never imagined California could do so well. The fruit assortment seems to have been fine. From one farm one hundred varieties of fruit were exhibited. The variety of our fruits is a threadbare theme here. There is hardly any popular fruit known, except perhaps the pineapple, which we do not grow in the open air. The fruit stores in San Francisco to-day exhibit twenty different kinds of fruit, without classing each species as a kind. But what we mostly pride ourselves on is the quality of the fruit we raise. The Louisville people justly noticed that our raisins were larger than the Malagas and Valencias. A little later in the season we could show them some table grapes which cannot be equaled in the world, and which are wholly consumed on the ocean steamers. They are worth $100 a ton, and will stand two or three voyages to Europe and back.

The Mirror.

The WEEKLY MIRROR, issued to day, contains "Recollections of an Indiaman, or Two Years Abaft the Mast," the first of a series of maratime sketches prepared for this paper by a Los Angeles gentleman; "Grant's Opinions of Soldiers and Statesmen;" portrait and sketch of Rev. John P. Newman: "Doctors and Dupes;" portrait and sketch of James W. Marshall, the original discoverer of gold in California; sketch of the career of Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson; "Salmon Fishing;" the departments, "The Sojourner," "Farm and Range," "House and Home," "Puzzle Corner," and a great volume of telegraphic news, local reports and editorial discussions of current topics. No paper published on the Pacific coast presents a greater variety of good, wholesome reading matter. It is a valuable paper to read, a creditable paper to send away.

A BIG BLAZE.

The Late U. S. Navy Goes up and Down Together.

DESTRUCTION OF EIGHT VESSELS.

The Colorado, Minnesota, Susquehanna, Congress, South Carolina and Iowa with a Couple of Schooners.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Aug. 21.—A fire causing the loss of over $100,000 broke out on board the steamer Colorado, lying off Plum beach, near here, this morning. The flames spread from the Colorado to the following ships, all of which were burned to the water's edge and sank: Minnesota, Susquehanna, Congress, South Carolina, Iowa, Lotta and Grant. With the exception of two, they formerly belonged to the United States Navy. They had been condemned, and were bought from the government by Stannard & Co., who were to break them up for the old iron and planks they could get out of them.

The fire broke out on the forward deck of the Colorado, where men were at work burning off the plates to get the iron spikes. On the right of the Colorado was the Susquehanna, to which the flames spread rapidly, and before either it or the Colorado could be towed out the flames spread to other boats, which all burned like tinder, and the sky was red for miles around. The heat was so intense that it was impossible to get anywhere near the burning ships, while the crackling of the flames sounded like the sharp crack of musketry. The flames crept along the decks and bulwarks of the ships, and as they ate up the shrouds into the rigging. The picture now presented, of eight burning vessels outlined against a bank of inky clouds, was one long to be remembered. The fire burned so fiercely that within three hours, nothing was left of the once defenders of the United States but a few charred planks and floating timbers. The hulls sank at once to the bottom, going down with a hiss and a gurgle amid a cloud of steam from the water as it swept over the burning wrecks. The Colorado was the first to sink, and as the water closed over her mast the Minnesota toppled over on the Congress, and together they sought the sandy bottom of the sound. The Susquehanna burst loose from her moorings and at one time various fishing craft anchored alongshore appeared to be in danger. She floated about fifty yards from shore and, after trembling for a moment, keeled over and sank. The South Carolina and Iowa followed her to the bottom in short order, but before going down the flames spread from the Iowa to the Lotta, Grant and Fair Play, two schooners lying near shore, and they too sank. Who the owners of the schooners are could not be ascertained, as the crews became so mixed up in the crowd of spectators that they could not be found. Mr. Stannard, in conversation with a reporter, said: "The loss to me is not less than $100,000, as I only got the iron in them that I bought them for, and had the boats been serviceable the loss would have footed up to millions."

The loss on the schooners, it is said, will not be less than $25,000.

A Definite Agreement About the Boundary at Last.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Lord Salisbury and M. de Giers have reached a definite agreement in regard to the Afghan frontier question. A protocol embodying its settlement has been drafted and sent to St. Petersburg, and it is expected that signatures will be exchanged next week.

ALMOST A CONFLICT.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Dispatches sent today from Meshed, Persia, near the Afghan frontier, state that a collision between Russian and Afghan outposts nearly occurred on the 3d inst. at Karatepe, 18 miles from Chamanibaid. Some Russian troops approached Karatepe and the Afghan troops ordered to their arms. The Russian officer, when he saw this, ordered his troopers to unsaling their carbines, and he was shot and severely wounded by the accidental discharge of one of those weapons. Before the exact nature of this accident was ascertained there was considerable excitement and confusion, which, however, subsided as soon as the truth was made known. The Afghans then detained the Russians until they received orders from Herat to let them go. During the detention the Afghans treated the wounded Russian officer with great kindness, bandaging his wound, and sent him back to the Russian lines. A hurried investigation of the occurrence was made on both sides. The Russian commander exonerated the Afghans and promised that his troopers should not again advance beyond Chamaibad. Four English officers continue to supervise the work of repairing and strengthening the forts of Herat.

FOR THE PROTECTION OF YOUNG GIRLS.

LONDON Aug. 21.—A meeting of the National Conference for the Protection of Young Girls was held in St. James Hall to-day. George William Erskine Russell, Radical Member of Parliament for Aylesbury, presided. The conference resolved to form vigilance societies everywhere throughout the country to enforce existing laws against immorality and to labor for legislation designed to repress crime and vice.

The German Editors' Convention.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 21.—The opening session of the first convention of German-American journalists ever held was conducted in the City Council chamber to-day. The object for which the event was arranged—that of forming a national organization—was attained. L. A. Woolsweber, a veteran German editor, of Reading, Pa., served as temporary chairman, and the forenoon was occupied in selection of committees on organization, constitution and finance. In the afternoon the following officers were chosen for permanent organization: Chairman, Emil Preториus, of St. Louis; Vice-President, Geo. Koeppen, of Milwaukee; Second Vice-President, Carl Reinhardt, of Cincinnati; Secretary, Emil Klaesnig, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Various matters of interest to the fraternity were discussed, after which the visitors—one hundred in number—took carriages, which were furnished by one of the largest brewing companies of the city, to whose brewery the editors were drawn and there entertained for the remainder of the afternoon.

To-night a grand banquet is in progress, having been arranged in honor of the visitors by representatives of the German merchants of Milwaukee.

After a business session to-morrow forenoon the visitors will attend the Volksfest at Schultis Park, and in the evening participate in a ball to be given in their honor.

A Miracle in Albany.

ALBANY, Aug. 21.—Considerable excitement has been caused in Cohoes by a strange sight at the residence of Thomas Woods, whose infant child died on Wednesday. When the undertaker was preparing the body for burial one of the pastors present suddenly declared that the figures of the eroos and chalice could be seen on the white cloth that covered the child's face. Others looked and saw the figures. Word went out and people flocked to the house until it became necessary to call on the police to keep back the crowd. The cloth was frequently wet with water but the figures remained. The spots where the eross and chalice were outlined were of whiter shade than the remainder of the cloth when it was wet. About twelve o'clock yesterday the shadow disappeared. Many believe it to have been a miracle.

A Million-Dollar Monument.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Post, which has not been enthusiastic over the Grant obsequies, says: "The decision of the Grant monument committee to make $1,000,000 the amount of the fund to be raised, increases the heavy responsibility resting upon them regarding the design of the proposed memorial. That so large a sum can be raised here we have no doubt. It will require time and systematic labor, but it can be done. The design becomes now a matter of momentous importance. The possibility of a $1,000,000 blunder is too frightful to contemplate."

Train Ditched.

CISCO, Aug. 21.—The east-bound overland train was ditched at Tawarich. Two engineers and a fireman were scalded. No passengers hurt.

A Duel.

BUDA PESTH, Aug. 21.—Count Zichy and Herr Von Plasky fought a duel today. Both were wounded.

THE TURF.

Interesting Races at Saratoga and Elsewhere.

SARATOGA, Aug. 21.—The first race was for non-winning horses, one mile and seventy yards; starters were Tenstone, Rupert, Red Girl, Greenfield, Bootblack, Una B, Monocorat, Meteor and Vesta. Rupert won, Greenfield second, Bootblack third; time 1:49.

The second race was one mile and 500 yards; starters, Nettle, Powhattan, Easter, and the California horse, Jim Douglass. Nettle was the first to get off, with Douglass in second place, Powhattan in third, but before they had reached the half-mile pole Jim Douglass had taken the lead, which he held to the finish, winning, pulled double, by a length and a half; Easter second, a half length in front; Nettle third; time 2:16¾. Jim Douglass was disqualified for losing his lead pad, and the race was awarded to Easter.

In the third race, three-quarters of a mile for three year olds and upwards, with non-winning and maiden allowance, the starters were Inspector, Violin, Florence E, Kershaw, Vassallator, Artiban, Baldhorn, Chance, Amboy, Guadette and the California horse of Renwick. Florence E won, Jim Renwick second and Violin third. Time, 1:16¼.

In the fourth race, for maiden two-year-olds, five furlongs, the starters were Fienie, Queen of Hearts, Argyle, Masterpiece, Gold Plate, Bob Burdette, Eager, Mary Ellis, Ella Wood, Miss Bowler and the California horse Solid Silver. The race was won by Miss Bowler, Pienie second, Solid Silver third. Time, 1:06. Rain began to fall heavily just before this race.

In the fifth race, one mile, the starters were Wizard, Huron, Vindex, Disturbance, Thadeus, Excelsior, Blanton, Bill, Sidy, Wellington, Roger Eastman, Novarro and Belle Pate. At the start Vindex, with Huron second and Eastman third. Time, 1:47.

BALDWIN'S HORSES ATTACHED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Sporting World says: Quite a sensation was created at Saratoga yesterday by the seizure of Baldwin's Volante and Rastido, on a bill of sale made by Justice Barrett, in a suit instituted by Lloyd Hughes, the jockey, and James Stewart, the trainer. Plaintiffs claim $2300 damages for breach of contract. Last winter it was understood that Baldwin had engaged

SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1885.

A Good Outlook.

The summer time in California is the time that tries men's souls. Just as the heat induces in the most energetic of people a disinclination to labor, so it seems to act on all industry and trade. Business goes a-fishing, so to speak; or it drifts off to the Yosemite, or camps in the mountains, or sports in the surf—does anything, in fact, that it can do, to do nothing. Summer is pre-eminently the dull season, all along the line. Houses in contemplation are not commenced; enterprises projected are held off; purchases are postponed, and sales are in statu quo. But as fall approaches all the latent energies of traffic and trade begin to revive; the summer siesta is over, and, fully awake to the great exigencies of the time, we plunge into the hurly burly of winter.

Last summer was the most remarkable one that Los Angeles ever saw, in that there was scarcely any of the accustomed reaction. The boom, in fact, was maintained all summer long; no cessation in building; little respite in business. This summer has not proven quite so phenomenal, but still we have had unusually lively times for the season. Visitors from other portions of the State and from the East have invariably commented on the activity here manifest. Our people have doubtless taken their summer vacation, but they have taken it in reliefs. There has been something of a check in buildings, but this was due probably to the operation of the law of supply and demand—an evening up of population and houses. With the renewed tide of immigration which will doubtless set in with the advent of cooler weather, the sound of the carpenter's hammer and the bricklayer's trowel will again be heard in the land. Several important business blocks are in contemplation, to be commenced as early in the winter as possible, and unquestionably a large number of dwellings will be erected.

In many essentials the city has gained ground during the summer. The Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railroad has been pushed forward until it is now well nigh an accomplished fact. The same is true of the cable road out Second street. The successful prosecution of these enterprises has stimulated others, and a number of railroad projects are announced which will no doubt be inaugurated, or even completed, before another summer arrives.

The agitation of the subject of manufactures has gone on notwithstanding the depressing influences of hot weather. While not much has been accomplished in a practical way, the field has nevertheless been explored, and undoubtedly there will be wide-awake capitalists and manufacturers to come in and occupy it. Such manufactures as we already have seem to be flourishing and extending their facilities.

The recent voting of bonds to the amount of $245,000 for municipal improvements gives assurance of a season of activity in public works such as Los Angeles has never before known.

Summing up the whole situation, we find that the outlook for the coming winter is most promising. While Los Angeles may not experience an excited and feverish boom—and perhaps it is best that she should not—the city will nevertheless move steadily forward in its march of progress. All signs point to a considerable influx of population. Property will be in request at good values. New suburbs will be opened up and the land will be improved. The wholesale and jobbing trade of the city will be increased and extended as we secure more and more the benefits of competitive railway traffic. The farmers of North Asia will enjoy a speedy reaction from their temporary backset, and will bring wealth for themselves and the merchants.

We have heard much talk about hard times, but Los Angeles has seen no hard times in connection with the present cycle. The East has suffered severely, and every other part of this State has been more or less depressed for a year, but the splendid impetus which our city and county acquired in 1883-4 has carried us safely over the slough of despond. Good times are now reviving in the Atlantic States. The wave of prosperity will sweep westward across the continent, and when that wave reaches the Pacific coast, Los Angeles will experience her second boom—the grandest boom of all—which will give the city a population of a hundred thousand. Meanwhile, until the boom arrives, we must be content to jog comfortably along in the right direction.

THE philanthropists of Washington City are organizing a movement looking to the establishment in that city of night schools for the masses. The encouragement is greater than was anticipated at the outset, and pupils will be gathered in from all ages, classes and conditions of life. American civilization recognizes the importance of educating the masses. When this is done the republic will be safe.

AFGHANISTAN is a box of inflammable material, and the British, Afghan and Russian forces are fooling around it with matches. A conflagration was nearly started yesterday when companies of Russian and Afghanistan forces met, and both unslung their arms ready for conflict. A word from either commanding officer would doubtless have precipitated a conflict between England and Russia.

Advertising Humbugs.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: In your issue of August 19th, under the caption, "Regulars vs. Irregulars," I read some sensible remarks about the extensive advertisement of quack doctors and quack medicines. We have heard it said that the American people like to be humbugged. I deny the charge, but will make this charge instead: Our people are too ready to believe the base lies of quack advertisements. The greater the humbug, the more extensive the ads, and the more wonderful the cures. The wonder is that our people will believe such stuff. To be humbugged is to be deceived. We do not like to be deceived. Our sin, then, is that we are too ready to believe what we see in print.

Just here I have a nut to be cracked by the press. I believe it is the duty of the press in any act, that may be presented at a stipulated price, provided there is nothing indecent or unlawful in it. If not morally cautious, they fail not to be pecuniarily so, in regard to printing any unlawful matter. So far 'tis well.

Let me suppose a case: Scribo is an editor, Bosh is a quack doctor. Bosh brings to Scribo a long, ingenious (and -to the simple-minded) carrying with it a conviction of truth. Bosh knows it to be full of lies, and Scribo, being an intelligent man, should know it as well; but he winks at it, and eases his conscience (if he has any) by saying: "It is none of my lics, and I get well paid—'tis an ad."

Now, if there is any wrong in deceiving the uneducated and simple minded, what proportion of that wrong will you saddle upon the shoulders of Scribo? Bosh writes it, and pays in advance for it, and runs his chance of getting his money back. Scribo, for a few dollars, prints the stuff and deceives thousands; not only that, but takes up valuable room in his paper which honestly belongs to his subscribers in printed matter of some use to the public.

If a man has an article for sale, with not enough of merit to give it sale, he goes straight to the press and puffs it up, and pays for a local and it is done. How long will it be, at this rate, till honest people will cease to advertise at all?

RE VERA.

[This critical and inquisitive correspondent does not seem to understand that the able and impartial editors whom he pursues with a sharp stick make a practice of publishing the sort of advertisements in question with a strictly philanthropical, motive—solely for the purpose of putting their readers on guard against the seductive wiles of the scheming advertisers. Unless their advertisements are laid before a discerning public, how on earth can the d. p. become acquainted with the deep-laid plots concocted for their ruin by the deadly drug-dispensers?—ED. Journalism in Bodie.

The Bodie Evening Miner quotes from an "esteemed cotemporary" as follows:

* * * * "The editor of this journal was not there [at the Henley reception] and, while being a Democrat, he does not accord with the gang of disruptionists who 'read out' the brains of the party. We detest political journalism of any stripe, but some incidents are too much—as it were."—Bodie Free Press.

Thereupon the Bodie Evening Miner "lets loose" in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

Well! for good, square, undivided, solo owner, originality, unstarched full measure, dyed in the wool, doubled and twisted, copper fastened, double back action, four hundred horse-power Superlative Gall! that takes the cake! The idea of the editor, even though he be a Democrat, of a superannuated radical Republican newspaper getting his back up and kicking because he was not consulted in relation to the largest and most respectable political gathering that ever assembled in the State of California! devilish clever! Such "gangs of disruptionists" as assembled in the Grand Opera House at San Francisco last Monday night generally make themselves felt in this country. If the editor of the Free Press is a Democrat, his sunlit disgrace him; if he is a Republican, the silly item is unworthy of him. But the Free Press has always been unfortunate in its half-and-half editors. In a hitherto attempt to carry water on both shoulders the suave Osborne [now of the Los Angeles Express] proved a dead failure in his efforts to follow in those illustrious footsteps, the astoot Childs lost his balance pole, fell astride of the fence, and split himself clear to the base of the very small brain. And now Jim Parker comes to the front and proposes to soothe the bandaged head of Republicanism by sneers at an honest and solid Democracy! Dear! dear! Time, "Jim Parker," time!

We call it a buckshot prescription, because a man loads his gun to the muzzle on the same principle."—[Atlanta Constitution.

"The only thing to mar the pleasure of the occasion," wrote an Arizona editor of a funeral, "was a little difficulty between the clergyman and one of the mourners, concerning the ownership of a flask found in the carriage they had occupied."

"Yes, sir, I kept a capital sense of humor and said many good things on the spur of the moment. The last time he saw John Roach he said to him, as he met him with extended hand: "Well, Uncle John, you are still building ships, I see." "Yes," was the shipbuilder's reply, "and the free-trade press keep hounding me." "Ah, well," was the General's quick rejoinder, "you know when we were boys we always stoned the best tree in the orchard."

PRESS POINTS.

Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal: General Grant built for himself a monument in every patriotic American heart.

Cleveland Leader: It is lamentable to see a clergyman admit the inefficacy of the gospel by leaving the pulpit for the political stump to work a reform.

Cincinnati Enquirer: There are symptoms that some of the great lights in the National Civil Service Reform League haven't got sense enough to push a hokey-pokey wagon.

Philadelphia Press: In the absence of the President the White House is being cleaned and repaired. We trust nobody will mistake this for the beginning of the great Aragan stable contract.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: It is evident that we are drawing near the final disappearance of prohibition from politics. Where it has succeeded in getting temporary control it was only to prove the falseness of its fundamental doctrine by humiliating experience. Where it still exists as a political force, it is alienating the support of self-respecting men. Though their faith in prohibition may not be destroyed, they cannot fail to see that it has been reduced to St. Johnism, and they know what that means.

APES FISHING FOR CRABS.

A Java Species that Sacrifices Its Comfort to Its Palate.

From the New York Sun.]

"They have on the coast of Java a peculiar long-tailed ape, and a sand crab that grows to extraordinary size and possesses great strength in its claws," said a gentleman who lived in Java years ago. "The apes are particularly fond of the crabs, which are very shy and wonderfully quick in their movements. They live in deep holes in the sand, but spend much of their time on the outside of their holes, where they run and hop about. They range in size from that of a silver dollar to that of our edible crabs. Their claws are not large, but have a grip that is vice-like. The apes make daily raids on the haunts of the crabs, and occasionally succeed, by creeping stealthily to within a few feet of a group of them, in springing upon them and capturing one before they have scampered to their holes. Usually, however, the crabs are so wary that, while the ape is still in the air during his spring toward them, they have separated and disappeared into the ground. The ape, finding himself too slow to make a capture, then resorts to a bit of strategy to secure a dinner. His mode of final capture inflicts upon him a pang of physical suffering, which is frequently more than he can bear, but his love for the crab as a morsel of food is so strong that he never hesitates to accept the personal discomfort which its capture involves, and usually bears it with a stoicism which might inspire admiration if it were not for its comical side.

"When the ape finds that he is foiled in his effort to capture a crab by springing at a group, he backs himself up to the hole into which one has disappeared. Sitting down, he thrusts his long tail into the hole. The crab, to punish such unwonted intrusion, seizes the end of the tail in its strong claws the moment it approaches near enough. Anyone who may have been so fortunate as to hide himself in the bushes unobserved by the ape making the raid, will have a hard time to restrain his laughter when the critical moment of contact between the crab's claw and the ape's tail is reached. There is a look of comical suspense on the ape's face as he thrusts his tail down into the hole. When the crab closes on the tail the expression of suspense departs. The ape gives an involuntary start, and then settles back on his haunches, while he closes his teeth together with a determined air, and, eventually, springing forward, out comes the tail from the hole, with the crab dangling to it. Instantly the ape wishes his tail forward and brings the crab to the ground with a force that stuns it and causes it to drop its grip. With a stone the ape smashes the shell of the crab, and is soon picking out the meat and proceeding with his meal.

"One day I was watching a large ape fishing in this way for crabs. The apes are as shy as the creatures they hunt and so persistently, and the least sound from the brush will send them scampering away. The ape I was watching made a dismal failure at his attempt to spring on a crab, and at once proceeded to fish one out of a hole. He selected a hole into which I had seen a very large crab disappear, and I anticipated fun. The ape's tail had gone its full length into the hole before his face indicated that the crab had made the connection. Suddenly he gave a start and a yell. He bent his body nearly double, and clapped his hands on his knees and wagged his head, with his teeth closed tight and his lips drawn down, while on his face was a look of agony and despair deeply intensified. He made several attempts to withdraw his tail, but fell back each time and howled as the crab drew it taut. Tears actually ran down the lugubrious face of the suffering ape, and when he clapped both hands to his forehead and swayed his body to and fro like a little old man tortured by the rheumatism, howling dismally the while, I could no longer restrain myself, and yelled with laughter. This frightened the ape, and he gave a spring forward. Out came the crab and away went the ape. The crab hung to the tail, and as far as I could see maintained its hold, in spite of the way it was lashed and trailed as the ape flew over the ground, rolling at every stump. He disappeared in the thick brush, but how he divested himself of the crab I never knew."

THE "DAISY"

Steam Fruit Canner.

FOR FAMILY USE.

Cans in the Jars.

Simple and Easy to Operate.

No Excessive Heat.

No Broken Jars.

No Spoiled Fruit.

DESCRIPTION.

This apparatus consists of a steam generator, heated by a double coal oil burner, from which a steam jet is forced through a flexible pipe into the fruit to be canned. It is made in two sizes, each neatly japanned, finished in Russia iron and furnished with a handle, by which it may be easily carried from place to place.

This apparatus is adapted for preserving all kinds of fruits and vegetables in glass or earthenware jars, or tin cans.

ADVANTAGES OF USING THIS APPARATUS.

No jars are broken. The heat is all utilized in the canning process, and none escapes to the discomfort of the operator. By the direct application of the hot steam the fruit is cooked in the quickest possible time and the most thorough manner. Owing to the th rough preparation of the fruit there is no loss from fermentation. Being cooked directly in the jar the natural appearance and flavor of the fruit is fully retained. A pint of fruit cooked in three minutes.

Sale of County Bonds.
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT, Whereas, there is now, and was on the 1st day of January, 1880, an outstanding indebtedness against the Los Angeles county evidenced by bonds thereof to the amount of four hundred dollars ($400), and no more, issued in denominations of five hundred dollars ($500) each, as follows, viz.:
The amount of sixty-thousand dollars ($60,000), evidenced by bonds designated "Bridge Bonds," issued under the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, entitled "An act to authorize the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County to issue and build bridges across the Los Angeles river, and San Gabriel and Old San Gabriel Rivers, in Los Angeles County, and to issue bonds for the payment of the same," approved March 3, 1877, which bonds bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, and were issued between November 13, 1878, and March 31, 1879, both days inclusive, and were payable on the 1st day of January, 1890, or at any time prior thereto, at the option of said Board, and which said bonds are numbered from 1 to 120, both numbers inclusive, and are each for the sum of five hundred dollars ($500); and,
The amount of three hundred and seventy-seven thousand dollars ($377,000), evidenced by bonds designated as "Southern Pacific Railroad Bonds," under the provisions of the following acts of the Legislature, to-wit: An Act to empower the Board of supervisors of the several counties in the State to aid in the construction of a railroad in their respective counties," approved April 4, 1870; "An Act to empower the Board of Supervisors of the several counties of the State to aid in the construction of a railroad in their respective counties," approved March 30, 1870; "An Act to repeal an Act entitled an Act to empower the Board of Supervisors of the several counties of the State to aid in the construction of a railroad in their respective counties," approved April 4, 1870, approved April 4, 1870, except as to certain counties therein named"; approved March 31, 1876. Which said bonds bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. p r annum, and are numbered from 1 to 377, both numbers inclusive, and are each of the denomination of one thousand dollars ($1000), were issued between October 15, 1875, and January 31, 1876, both numbers included, and are due on January 31, 1894, or any time prior thereto, at the option of said Board,
The amount of fourteen thousand five hundred dollars ($14,500), evidenced by bonds designated "Santa Ana Bridge Bonds," under the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, entitled "An Act to authorize the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county to issue and build a bridge across the Santa Ana river, in Los Angeles county, and to issue bonds for the payment of the same," approved February 4, 1874. Which bonds bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, and are numbered from 1 to 29, both numbers included, are each of the denomination of five hundred dollars ($500), and were issued on the 1st day of October, 1875, and due on the 1st day of January, 1890, or at any time prior thereto, at the option of said Board.
And the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), evidenced by bonds designated "Hospital Bonds," under the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, entitled "An act to authorize the Board of supervisors of Los Angeles county to purchase a farm in the county of Los Angeles, to build and establish a County Almshouse and Hospital thereon, and to issue bonds for the payment of the same," approved March 30, 1874. Which bonds bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, are numbered from 1 to 50, both numbers included, are of the denomination of five hundred dollars ($500) each, and dated on the 1st day of August, 1874, and due on the 1st day of January, 1890, or at any time prior thereto, at the pleasure of said Board.
And whereas, the Board of Supervisors of said county did, in compliance with the terms of the Act of the Legislature of said State, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of county and township governments," approved March 14th, 1883, on the 20th day of June, 1885, duly received to, and did, fund said indebtedness, and issued for each particular of said county, funding bonds numbered from 1 to 400, both numbers included, and are of the denomination of one thousand dollars ($1000) each, and numbered from 1 to 476, both numbers inclusive, and one of said bonds is of the denomination of five hundred dollars ($500), and numbered 477, and dated July 1st, 1885, having twenty years to run; but redeemable at any time at the pleasure of said county; bearing interest at four and a half per cent. per annum, such interest payable semi-annually at the office of the Treasurer of said county on the first day of January and July of each year on presentation and surrender of the interest coupons attached to such bonds; and
Whereas, said Board did duly direct the undersigned, as Treasurer of said county, to advertise for bids for the purchase of said bonds so issued as aforesaid;
Therefore, in accordance with law and the direction of said Board of supervisors, notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Treasurer of said county, does hereby offer said bonds for sale, and bids for the purchase of the same will be received at the office of the said Treasurer in the city of Los Angeles, up to and including the tenth day of September, 1885, at ten o'clock, a. m., when such bids will be opened, and such bonds sold to the highest bidder.
Provided, that none of said bonds will be sold for less than the face value thereof and all interest accrued thereon at the date of sale, nor shall any sale thereof be final or valid until approved by said Board of Supervisors.
The right is hereby expressly reserved to reject any or all aforesaid bids.

DISAPPOINTED FRUIT SHIPPERS.

Correspondence of the TIMES.

ORANGE, Aug. 2.—Weather too warm for comfort.

The trouble about getting fruit cars greatly disappoints shippers, and sometimes keeps them with all their hired help waiting for days for the expected car. This state of things must of necessity be a great draw back to the business, and unfortunately at present does not seem to be no remedy.

Mr. Joe Barger, near the mill, has just lost a fine cow with the black-leg. It is supposed that the disease was caused by too much dry feed.

Jack Weber is putting up a good business house in town, and the building is already rented.

Mr. Gardner, a stranger, is building a fine residence on a place recently purchased just north of Dr. McCoy's.

Mr. Fields, from Massachusetts, has not commenced what is to be the finest barn in this part of the country. His stock lately purchased from Mr. Riley, lies south of the Orange depot.

Robert McPherson's horse ran away last Monday, badly demoralizing the buggy shafts; the same day the butcher's team took a run, but were stopped with very little damage.

The Anaheim Union Water Company and the Yorbas are having trouble about water, which will probably result in a lawsuit. A.

MURDER AND OUTRAGE.

Brutal Slaughter of J. Faust and L. Murray.

Santa Herald:

A two-page outrage on the typographical art, published in Minnesota, under the contract for the "abolition of poverty, ignorance, wickedness, unthrift, drunkenness, crime, ignorance, pauperism and all evil," is hardly necessary to add that its "editor" is a communist, unable to write a grammatical sentence or correctly spell common English words. He is disbelieves and derides the idea of a Deity or moral responsibility, prescribes indiscriminate lust to the marriage relation, and wants everybody to run on a vegetable diet. In fact he is a specimen crank of the modern school of communism that disgraces some of the Western States. There are several such burlesques of newspapers published in the Northwestern States, but their power for harm is restricted by the bad printing of their incoherent rant. The criminal had not been apprehended at last accounts.]

The Vocalist of the Rockies.

Reno Tribune.

The burro is a condensed jackass. He is little all over except his ears and voice. He has long hair all over his body, four legs, two ears and one tail. His vocalist the burro stands without rival. He starts off with a low, sweet "hy—hy—hy—haw—he—haw—he—haw—haw!" and keeps it up till you tremble for his life; and just when he will surely stop, or die of his last out of misery, he disappoints your fond expectations by turning in a little more sound, reversing the gam and retreating all he has just sail.

A vocal solo rendered by a fully equipped burro is an experience never to be forgotten. I have seen strong men moved to tears as they listened to his sweet but melancholy cadence—because they had no cinb or battering ram with stick to show their appreciation and soothe their perturbed spirits.

The burro cannot sing without raising his tail. As his vocal organ limber up his tail ascends until it is extended in an horizontal straight line, and, from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail, he is one continuous, harmonious, exstant wave of sound.

I used to think the burro sang with his tail, but this was a mistake. The two things with his other end. But fin I know from experience: The best way to ride a burro is to hire a cowboy to do it for you.

Silk Exportation of How it Was.

Detroit Post.]

The Rev. W. W. Downes, pastor of the Bowdoin Square Baptist Church, of Boston, is in trouble, owing to his leadship for a Mrs. Annie Taber, also of Boston. Mr. Taber, accompanied by a couple of friends, called at his wife's house rather unexpectedly on Monday night, and finding her bedroom door locked burst it in. Within the room, it was dark, the gas having turned down very low, but as Mr. Taber had very thoughtfully brought a dark lantern with him, the invaders had no difficulty in discovering Mrs. Taber sitting on the bed in dishabille, while the reverend gentleman was seated on a chair. Mr. Taber has instituted suit for divorce, and is saying awful things of the pastor. The latter, however, says this is most unkind, and declares that he was merely assisting the fair lady to pack her trunk, and the room being warm he had removed his coat and vest. This is probably the true version. They are having very hot weather in the East, so far, indeed, that even the gas has to be turned out at nights.

Castilian Critics.

Washington Post.]

The Mexican editors have not yet made up their minds what was meant by our esteemed contemporary, the Citizen, in closing its article of welcome with these beautiful, but mysterious words:

"Buenos Dios, Señori y Señoritas."

The rest of the article was friendly enough, and it gave universal satisfaction. But why an apostrophe, otherwise so cordial, and appropriate, should conclude with "Good God, gentlemen and young girls," nobody has been able to divine.

There happens to be no such word as bilad, but it is assumed that Señores is meant. It all goes, however, and our editors will depart fondly believing that the customary Spanish was intended and applicable. They were uneasy at last, though.

"Crossest Man in Alabama."

"De crossest man in Alabama lives dar," said the driver as we approached a way-side home, near Selma, Ala., to ask accommodations for the night. At supper, and after it, "mine host" scowled at every one, found fault with everything earthly, and I was wondering if he would not growl if the heavenly hash didn't fit him, when incidental mention being made of the comet of 1882, he said: "I didn't like its form; its tail should have been fan shaped!"

But, next morning, he appeared half-offended at our offering to pay for his hospitality! My companion, however, made him accept as a present a sample from his case of goods.

Six weeks later I drew up at the same house. The planter stepped lithely from the porch, and greeted me cordially. I could scarcely believe that this clear-complexioned, bright-eyed, animated fellow, and the morose being of a few weeks back, were the same. He inquired after my companion of the former visit, and regretted he was not with me. "Yes," said his wife, "we are both much indebted to him."

"How?" I asked, in surprise.

"For this wonderful change in my husband. Your friend when leaving, handed him a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure. He took it, and now—

"And now," he broke in, "from an ill-feeling, growling old bear, I am healthy and so cheerful my wife declares she has fallen in love with me again!"

It has made over again a thousand love matches, and keeps sweet the tempers of the family circle everywhere.—Copyrighted. Used by permission of American Rural Home.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Stocks and Bonds.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Government bonds very dull and nominal.

Stocks have been less active to-day and prices quite irregular, with very decided advance in Omaha as one prominent feature. The market opened somewhat irregular, but within small fractions of last evening's closing, and after a slight decline in some cases the general list stiffened, and the highest prices of the day were generally realized by or soon after 11 o'clock. The movements for the rest of the day were quite irregular, but about half active, stocks closed at fractional gains over last evening's final quotations. Among old active list Pacific Mail shows a net gain of ½ and Union Pacific ¼ per cent. On the other hand, Express Continental is down ½ per cent., Ohio common is up ⅜, per cent., and preferred 1½ per cent. higher at 80½. The great change developed in these stocks was caused by the circulation of numerous reports, all tending to show that Omaha was about to be consolidated with the Northwestern on terms that were considered favorable to the Omaha property. Money easy, 1½.

BRIEFS.

Eight arrests yesterday.

The Santa Rosa sails south to-day.

Passenger travel on the railroads was only fair, yesterday.

Two deaths in the city yesterday, and three in the country.

Barnard & Benedict report the loss of a dark bay horse from Long Beach.

The very purest old adobe at the corner of Upper Main and Marchessault streets is being demolished.

Hitch your horses. M. Tomich and Hop Sing were arrested yesterday for failing to do sprinkling. They paid $5 each.

Thomas Finnerty, one of the Downey postoffice burglars, was sentenced by Judge Cheney yesterday to 8 years in San Quentin.

Freight business at this point was stirring yesterday. Yard-foreman Leonard states that he has never before had so busy a day.

Santa Monica will be lively to-morrow, with the Grand Army and Eagle Corps encampments, and Confidence Engine Company's picnic.

W. C. Snoddy was arrested on suspicion last night by Officer McMahon. Snoddy was prowling around Chinatown in a suspicious fashion.

Lewis Selis, manager for Barrett's Circus, has kindly extended an invitation to the little inmates of the Orphans' Home to visit the circus Thursday afternoon.

Captain P. M. Darcy started north yesterday with Wm. Evans, sentenced to four years in San Quentin for robbing a man on Commercial street, some weeks ago.

Petty thievery still goes merrily on. Two shawls—one cashmere and one shetland—were stolen yesterday from the carriage of T. F. Miller, of East Washington street.

Fourteen deeds, seven mortgages, one release, four miscellaneous papers and one marriage license—John Bredehoft to Mary Hauschedit—were filed with the County Recorder yesterday.

The most interesting case in the Inferior Court yesterday was A. M. Thornton vs. T. H. Ward, breach of promise. Demurrer filed and overruled. Verdict, guilty as charged. Sentence, ten beers or ten days.

The camp meeting at Long Beach is increasing in interest and attendance daily. Rev. Mr. Little, of Etiwanda, preached in the morning, and in the afternoon the time was given to a Bible reading on the subject of sanctification.

The wood-wagons on Los Angeles street, just north of First, are an unmitigated nuisance to the storekeepers there, who are often unable to get their own teams to the sidewalk. Council has been petitioned for months, but nothing has ever come of it.

Chris. Smith, who is charged with breaking open a trunk and stealing $60 therefrom on the 20th of June, and who was captured by an officer at Yuma and brought back, was examined in Justice Ramsey's Court yesterday and committed in default of $500 bail.

The TIMES is indebted to Steinecke & Bruning for some bottles of very superior mineral water, left at the office yesterday. All who enjoy "the cup that cheers but not inebriates" must be enchanted with this new beverage, which is sent out by Wieland's establishment, of San Francisco, and of which Steinecke & Bruning are the local agents.

Washouts on the S. P. R. R.

There were heavy storms on the S. P. R. R., between here and the Arizona line, yesterday. Two washouts occurred 25 miles this side of Yuma, delaying trains briefly. A worse one was east of Yuma, and delayed No. 21 about five hours last night.

Attend To-night.

Catalogues are now ready for the large sale to-night at the Diamond House. The silver and gold watches include Howard, Waltham and Elgin movements.

FRANK TOAL.

The Brutal Wife-Carver and His Light Sentence.

FIVE YEARS' IMPRISONMENT FIXED

Toal's Crime—Killing His Patient and Forgiving Wife With Sixteen Ghastly Gashes—Why He Didn't Receive the Full Term.

Frank Toal, the brute who for the last three years has been known as the most fiendish wife-beater and assaulter in the city, and who capped the climax, nearly three months ago, by dragging the unhappy woman from her bed and hacking her almost to pieces with a large, dull pocket-knife, has at last received a slight taste of his deserts. The record of his crimes against his wife in the last three years, could it be written in full, would make one of the blackest volumes ever penned. He has chopped her with hatchets, stricken her down with clubs, tried to shoot her with pistols, kicked her, stabbed her, poured boiling water over her, and in every way hideously maltreated the patient, forgiving creature who clung to him through thick and thin; and who, when he was arrested, would refuse to appear against him, though her wounds still bled from his inhuman blows. Toal is an Englishman, a blacksmith by profession; a short, thickset, brutal faced man of great strength but savage tastes. He has kept a couple of pet bulldogs, in order to see them fight each other; and when the more intelligent brutes sometimes refused to be parties to the shameful "sport," it is said by those who know him well that he was in the habit of getting down and biting them by the ears to make them ugly! Within the three years, too, Toal has been guilty of the brutal crime of mayhem, biting off part of the chin of a man with whom he provoked a row. He escaped his just punishment for this offense by means, it is said, of spiriting away the prosecuting witness. He was seldom punished for his assaults on Mrs. Toal, owing to her unwillingness to prosecute. As soon as her wounds would heal, or, perhaps, before, she would again be living with him. Last spring, however, after unusually horrible abuse at his hands, she at last made up her mind that she must leave him for good if she would save her life. She accordingly instituted suit for divorce, at the same time removing from her home and securing quarters for herself and children in the lodging house of Jean Cabos, 38 North Los Angeles street. Frank came there after her; and foreseeing the inevitable result, she applied to her attorney, ex-Justice John C. Morgan, for protection. Morgan accordingly secured a restraining order from Judge Branson, forbidding Toal to call upon his wife during the pendency of the suit. May 29th, Toal came around to pester his wife again. He had been drinking somewhat, and insisted that she should return to live with him. She told him no, she could never live with him again; she was afraid he would kill her. At last, about supper time, he went off. Mrs. Toal and her little ones went to bed at the usual hour, in a tiny back-room. About 11 o'clock Toal climbed over the back fences, found his way to the room where his family were, and broke in. He seized his wife by the hair and dragged her out into the yard. Then, with a heavy farrier's pocket-knife, whose large blade had a "heel" point (the edge being a straight line, and the back curving to meet it) he began hacking the unhappy woman to pieces. He inflicted sixteen ghastly wounds on her head, face and neck, before he was stopped by blows rained on his head by Cabos, who was called by the children. Officer Davis arrived and arrested Toal, who at once began to feign extreme drunkenness—but not until he had cunningly crawled a little ways and slyly slipped the murderous knife under some boards. On the way to the police station he told Davis that he had meant to kill his wife. A TIMES reporter saw Toal when he entered the police office, seven or eight minutes after the assault. He was not noticeably drunk—not so much but what he was quite straight, talked clearly and appeared to have all his wits about him. He was bleeding freely from cuts on his knuckles, inflicted by the handle in Cabos's hands; and asked not to be put in jail until he had a chance to wash. Five minutes later the reporter stood by the crimsoned blanket, spread upon the floor, upon which the brave and uncomplaining victim lay. Her gaping wounds were awful, even to those long accustomed to such scenes. No one cut, four inches long and two inches deep, across the back of the neck, made it appear as if her head would drop off if lifted. Two others in the neck, near either ear, were more than horrible. They barely missed the great blood-vessels of the throat, and yawned ghastly to the bone. Her jaw-bones were bared, and, indeed, it seemed almost as if her whole head could only by miracle, be held impossible that she should survive; but, thanks to a marvelously robust constitution, she did at last recover. Toal was examined before Justice Austin, pleaded not guilty and was held for assault to murder, bail being fixed at $8000, which he could not give. Information being filed against him in the Superior Court, charging the same offense, he renewed his plea of not guilty.

TOAL SENTENCED.

On advice, however, of his attorney, H. T. Gage, Toal consulted to change his mind. Accordingly, a few minutes after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, he was brought up to Judge Cheney's court. At 1:55 Mr. Gage rose and asked that his client be allowed to withdraw his plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty. District Attorney Holton consented, and the Court read the information against Toal for murder, to which Toal said, "I plead guilty," adding, "but I never intended to kill her." He waived time for sentence. Mr. Gage said there were reasons why testimony should be taken to fix the character of the punishment—Toal was drunk at the time of the assault, etc. He proceeded to call his witnesses.

Patrick Higgins, sworn: Have known Toal nine years. His character, when sober, was good—he was peaceable and industrious. Liquor makes him crazy—worse than anyone else. He can't control himself.

Mary Ann Toal sworn: "Am wife of defendant. We have been married twelve years, and have four children, aged 8, 6 and 4 years, and 23 months, respectively. My husband has been a good provider, and was kind when sober. When drunk he was as mean as possible. Don't think he would have assaulted me if not crazed by liquor. [Question by Gage, "How do you wish him to be punished?"] Oh, as' light as possible. I went to school with him when we were children. When he's in liquor he's different from anyone else I ever saw—wants to fight his best friend, and I think I was his best friend. [In answer to questions by the Court.] My husband has told me that liquor affected him different from anyone else. I told him often to quit it, and he said he would; and he would for a day or two, or maybe for a month." She then related the circumstances of the assault.

Frank Toal was sworn in his own behalf, and, having his answers put in his mouth by Mr. Gage, testified as follows:

"I don't remember anything whatever that happened on the night of the assault. Only know I committed the assault because I have been told so. I am sorry, sir. I was drinking before going to the house. Had no spite against my wife then, and have none now. If this was all settled up, I could love her the same as ever. The knife I cut her with was a little pocket-knife, with the blade broken." [Mr. Gage, who states that he has not seen the knife, put this statement in Toal's mouth. As a matter of fact, the blade was not broken.—REPORTER.]

H. T. Gage, Toal's attorney, was sworn, and said: "Mr. Toal tells me he is thoroughly repentant, and that he did n't know what he was doing. He had good grounds for defense, but did not desire to eat up his property thus. He has directed me to make a deed of trust, for his children and wife, of all his property, except his blacksmith shop."

Jean Cabos was sworn, and put through a course of bully-ragging by Mr. Gage. He detailed the circumstances of the assault at length, and maintained that he did n't think Toal drunk. A long cross-examination followed, but did not confuse the witness.

Ex-Justice John C. Morgan sworn: "Am one of the attorneys in Mrs. Toal's suit for divorce. Saw Toal the middle of that afternoon [May 29], in Col. Godfrey's office; he was so much under the influence of liquor that we couldn't transact any business with him. It was by my advice that Mrs. Toal left Toal's house. She went to Cabos's. Finding, on investigation, that the Caboses were a very decent sort of people, I advised her to remain there."

Mr. Gage then said that every element of murder, except the fact of death, must enter into assault to murder. He maintained that Toal was bereft of reason by drink, and could not form the intent to murder. Under these circumstances, he asked that the Court be merciful.

Judge Cheney said: "The evidence shows that liquor made Toal crazy; also that he knew it made him crazy, and had told his wife so. Therefore he drank with his eyes wide open. A man who knows that liquor makes him crazy, and then goes and gets drunk, should be held responsible for what he does when drunk. The law does not recognize intoxication as an excuse for crime; it has bearing only on the intent. This assault was most brutal. Had Toal killed his wife, his intoxication might have influenced a jury to reduce the charge from murder in the first degree to murder in the second degree. But assault to murder is not divided into degrees, and if it were, the prisoner has pleaded guilty to this information. Under the circumstances I feel it my duty to redress somewhat the offense. Had he stood trial and been convicted, I should have given him the full limit of the law, fourteen years in the penitentiary. Stand up, prisoner. Have you any reason why sentence should not be pronounced?"

Mr. Gage: "Only the reason already given—that he was too drunk to be able to form the intent to commit murder."

Toal: "The reason why I pleaded guilty was because I was advised to. I didn't mean to kill her. It wasn't a murderous weapon. I wouldn't hurt that woman! I've loved her twenty-eight years. I came over to this country and made a home for her, and then sent back for her."

Judge Cheney: "I don't know of any crime, outside of murder, which could be more diabolical than yours. You have a poor way of showing love for your wife. You are dangerous, and not fit to be at large. This is not your first offence. Had you stood trial and been convicted, I should have sentenced you for fourteen years. Under the circumstances it is the sentence of this court that you serve five years at San Quentin. Sheriff, remove the prisoner."

It is safe to say that nearly every one in the court-room was surprised at the lightness of the sentence. From the almost unparalleled atrocity of Toal's crime, and from the pertinent remarks thereon made by the judge himself, it was expected that the term would be at least ten years, four being knocked off from the limit, in consideration of the plea of guilty; but nine years off for the plea created a good deal of surprise and a good deal of disappointment.

No one was introduced for the State to prove, as might have been done, that Toal did intend to kill his wife; and no one but Cabos to prove that he was not drunk beyond reason. Furthermore, there was no evidence adduced to show that he was drunk at all at the time of the assault. He was drunk in the afternoon; but the last drink alleged to have been taken by him was at or before 6 p. m., and the attack occurred at least two hours after -day.

RECOLLECTIONS OF AN INDIAMAN.

"I remember the dock with wharves and the ships, and the sun I am looming forth, and the beautiful colors with bearded lips, and the beauty and mystery of the ships, and the magic of the sea."

Two Years Aboft the Mast.

CHAPTER I.

(IN LIEU OF PREFACE.)

The glamour of romance has ever been associated with the sea, and all who go down in ships therein. Many books have been written dealing with the romantic phases of a sailor's life; but most are distortions, and convey but a faint idea of the life of those who "Dwell by the mountain waves, Whose home is on the deep."

"Is a sailor's life really so hard as people say it is?"

"For," that is, the life of a merchant sailor, and harder because the people who say it is hard know very little about it. The people who know it is hard, I mean sailors themselves, do not talk. It is not gales of wind, nor bitter cold, nor fiery heat that make it hard. Not even famines and shipwrecks, because they are accidents, and of no more account, so far as life is at stake, than railway collisions and fires in churches and theaters are of account so far life on shore goes. It's the part that is so hidden that makes sailoring hard—bullying officers, grinding hard—bullying officers, grinding work, broken rest, wet clothes, wretched forecastles. You might read a hundred marine novels and never get at the truth. The only way is to serve before the mast, sleep in miserable bunk and eat and drink as sailors."

To write a practical tale of the sea, and at the same time instruct and entertain, has been the object in presenting this work to the public.

A few years since, riding with a party in one of our large sea ports, my attention was directed to a large ship at anchor in the harbor, and for a time my thoughts turned from the company, and recollections were called up that none present could appreciate. The ocean monster lay with towering spars and enormous spars sharply defined against the evening sky. I was going abstractedly and thinking of the past, when a creature in the form of a man interrupted me:

"Ay, been to sea! Cawn't admire ships as ships you know," and as fishby betook himself to nursing the head of his cane, thus showing his evident teeth to advantage.

I replied that I had been some years since, mentally wishing that he had been a voyage in a packet ship from New York to Liverpool.

"What a horrid life it must be," exclaimed a maiden lady, whose thirtieth birthday had been about to take place the last fifteen years, and whose dazzling rows of pearly teeth, made of tiny specks of gold inserted ingeniously, could deceive no one.

"Certainly horrid," and she drew the drapery of her mantle around her astonishingly developed collar bones and retreated into silence.

"But it is so romantic!" gushed forth a languishing creature with a voice like a Guinea hen.

"Lots sailors are so bold and look so manly!" and a sweet little miss of sixteen, whose ideas were formed from pictures seen on packages of bonbons and glove boxes.

"Terribly profane and ungodly people," ejaculated a clergyman in sepulchral voice, who suffered greatly from dyspepsia and only saw life through a ink-bottle. The remarks of the party, however, were soon diverted by some new object, and I returned to my reflections and was soon lost in a review of the past, and again in memory felt among ships and sailors.

The discovery of gold in California called into existence and perfected the triumph of naval architecture, the clipper ship. Thousands of adventurous spirits from all parts of the world clamored for rapid transportation around the stormy seas of Cape Horn to the new El Dorado, and to meet such requirements the mighty ships were created that, in long ocean voyages, eclipsed steam and made steam before unparalleled in the annals of ocean traffic.

When the first decade had passed, the race of American clippers began to die out. They were not generally profitable to their owners, and, owing to their peculiar construction, only fitted for carrying small and valuable cargoes which would pay high rates of freight. Everything was sacrificed to speed. When transportation across the isthmus of Panama was secured by rail, and connecting lines of steamers attached, their occupation was gone, and they were compelled to seek employment in distant seas. Some were purchased by wealthy English firms, and engaged in the India, China and Australian trade, while many American owners established lines from home ports to India, via Cape of Good Hope or London.

On board one of these ships it was my fortune to pass several years, and the following narrative will give, imperfectly, my experience during an eventful two years of that time. The ship was the largest of her class, as well as the fastest, making one of the quickest passages to India on record, and I can never forget those with whom my lot was cast. The storm and calm, the long and lonely night-watches, exposure to the vertical sun of the tropics, the blinding sleet and tumultuous seas of the far-off southern ocean, are things of the past; yet the past can never fade from memory, and it is with a sincere hope that these recollections may be of interest that they are brought to the notice of the public.

CHAPTER II.

THE OLLOGUY—ARRIVAL IN LIVERPOOL —WATERLOO DOCK—BECOME AN OFFICER—CAPTAIN'S ADDRESS—ASSUME OFFICIAL DUTIES.

"A ship boy on the high and giddy mast."

"Where is the mate?" said Captain —, as his burly form appeared over the gangway steps.

"Come ashore, sir," was my deferential reply, at the same time coiling up stray ropes that lay in confusion about the deck."

"Is the second officer on board?"

"No, sir; all the officers are on shore, and I am the only person on board belonging to the ship."

The foregoing conversation occurred on board the clipper ship Eddystone, and we will go back a little and describe in the manner in which it was brought about.

At the close of a stormy day in December, 1858, the ship before mentioned had just crossed the Atlantic, and, entering the River Mersey, we were taken by the steam tug Hercules to the quay of the Waterloo dock, Liverpool, and the crew worked the capstan with rapid tread to those peculiar longdrawn sounds of "Yeo, Heave," and "Heave Away!" commonly heard among seamen when any laborious duty calling for combined effort is necessary, and which sound so novel and, perhaps, attractive to landsmen.

More than two years before the mast had given me, amid the stormy scenes of the North Atlantic, some idea of seamanship, and the hardest, most perilous and trying school of the sailor had been passed in that region of almost perpetual storm, lying between the banks of Newfoundland and the Irish coast.

Soon the dock gates were passed, and the gallant ship, which had buffeted the stormy waves for forty days between America and Old England, lay idly moored among the tapering masts and spars of the commerce of the world. The crew soon disappeared, and alone on board I kept watch and ward; for even the officers had caught the spirit which had animated the denizens of the forecastle, and had gone to the nearest ale house to discuss the incidents of the voyage with boon companions.

They were glad to have me remain on board and guard against the inroads of dock thieves, who constantly watch every opportunity to steal anything, from a ropeyarn to the hawser by which the ship is made fast to the dock. As soon as night came the merchants to whom the cargo was consigned stationed a watchman on board, and it was at this time that the before mentioned colloquy took place.

The captain was a short, thick-set man, with square shoulders and a voice like a lion; a casual observer could not fail to see that he was a miniature magazine of human wrath, that the least spark of contradiction or contention would cause to explode. Not always choice as to his language, and looking extremely uncomfortable and constrained in his shore toggery, which was not by several years the latest style and cut. Evidently not pleased with the information given by me, he walked slowly about the deserted deck, chewing away vigorously at an unlighted cigar. Stopping at last and leaning over the capstan, he beckoned me to him.

"Young man," said he "you have been with me now nearly three years. You are something of a sailor. You have found me a hard man to deal with, but I mean well by you, and you shall go in the cabin and be my third mate. Do you like that? Go in the forecastle and take your baggage aft. You have got a handle to your name now, and if any old sailor fails to treat you with respect, you will always find me ready to lend a hand and show him his place. Yes," added he, "keep close in his place, and if you act like a man you never will have any trouble with me."

This speech was delivered with a Legree-like air, from which I have purposely omitted the adjectives, profane and otherwise, with which it was freely interspersed. No reply was made by me—none evidently was expected—and standing in respectful silence, I could only bow to the magnate, who turned and walked ashore, leaving me alone and as—officer.

The transformation was so sudden that it was bewildering, and with my experience, the responsibility seemed too great; but the fiat, from which there was no appeal, had gone forth. That night the rough hunk in the forecastle was exchanged for a stateroom in the cabin, and in future I was to live, move and preserve my dignity aft the mast, where evidences of nautical civilization are supposed to abound.

Pies.

Oh, the apple pie is a very nice pie,
A very nice pie, indeed;
And some people are who say to me,
"Of all it take be the best."
And the mince pie, too, is a very good pie,
As ever I put in my head;
If the c ust is crisp and brown enough
And the sugar is not too sweet.
And the pumpkin pie is a very nice pie,
For me and for you, you know,
If it's well made 'tis very good—
As squash and pumpkin go.
And the other pies is a very nice pie,
Of fruit so tart and red,
And a mouthful of 'em I call this pie
Of every sort ahead.
But the greatest pies in all the land,
If you Dieties well to me,

R ally, I believe what the poet says,
There is nothing like—
"The dear sand pies the children make
In the summer by the sea."

The sun shines brightly overhead but you do not mind the heat, for the cool breezes are blowing from the sea, and the white waves come creeping up upon the sands; the sea-gulls are skimming over the waves, and there is the sand at your feet white and sparkling, slipping through your fingers as you gather it up and running in a little trickling stream to the ground. But you scrape away and stir it into pretty round pies, and pat it into pretty shapes. You stick in the round pebbles for plums, and stir in perhaps a bit of seaweed—that helps to make your mince pies, you know. Then you take a cup and bring up some of the water from the sea. You stir it with a stick that you have found upon the shore and make a nice soft mud, and lo! your custard pie is done. So you write your notes on little bits of paper, and invite mamma and Jennie, Gracie and Ella, George, Harry and Willie to come to dinner with you on the beach. After they have all come, what fun you have altogether. There's pie enough to go round though you cut it in big, generous slices, and you sit there so long and laugh so loud that by and by the waves come running up to see what all the fun is about, and then you pull off your stockings and let them chase you. You even go out a little way to meet them, and they run gleefully over your feet, and curl round your ankles, and then one comes bigger than the rest and you scamper in to the shore laughing and shouting, and find that they have taken the last bit of your pie—not a sign of your feast is left. So there's nothing to do but to go on making pies to-morrow and the next day by the sea, and you enjoy it better than all the pies made in the kitchen at home, and you would rather go without them all t an—

"The dear sand pies the children make

When I was small my home was in a pretty New England town not so very far from the White Mountains of New Hampshire. There was a beautiful valley in which a wide river ran, and pleasant green meadows stretching away from the river's banks, in which, amid the tall grasses, the wild strawberries grew, sweet and plump, the most delicious fruit that ever ripened in the summer sunshine. Beyond the meadows were the hills, rising high and grand, covered with forests of pine and maple, of birch and oak and poplars, cool and shady spots, where in summer we used to play among the rocks, while the birds sang overhead, and little brooks would come tinkling down from some hidden spring. Here the wild mountain pinks grew on bushes taller than our heads, and jack-in-the pulpit in the shadow of every pine, and tall dandelions and buttercups, and in the spring the fragrant Mayflowers with their pink and white blossoms, and the wild sweetbriar rose that filled the woods with fragrance.

The squirrels there lived in the trees instead of in holes in the ground as they do here in California, and they had broad bushy tails, and were gay and saucy fellows, peeping at you from the boughs, their black eyes twinkling merrily as if they thought there was nothing in the world so fine as to be a squirrel and live in the woods. I remember traveling once among the woods of New Hampshire. The road wound along with the great forests on either side. I looked away into the cool depths of the wood and thought it very beautiful indeed. I could see the squirrels running from limb to limb of the tall trees; could hear the robins sing, and the little brook running away. Jack-in-the-pulpit nodded at me every time the breeze stirred, and the moss was green, the gold winged butterflies were very plenty in the sunshine. Driving along we came to an Indian encampment. There were a lot of "bucks" lying on the ground while their squaws were busy cooking their dinner in a large kettle over the fire. The pappooses were having a merry time running a race, and they were as swift as young deers. I saw two Indian girls pretty soon, who were about as large as I was then, who came running across the road in front of our horses. When they reached the fence on the other side, they laid their two hands on its top rail and swung themselves over like a flash without their feet ever touching the fence. I thought that a wonderful feat for them to perform, and forthwith I made up my mind that I should like to be an Indian. I even went so far that I almost decided to run away and go out into the woods to live. I thought of it every day for weeks. I grew tired of school, and looked longingly out into the great dreary depths of the forest whenever I rode through it. One day an Indian gave me a beautiful basket, woven in bright colors. I was greatly pleased with the gift, but when I looked up into the Indian's face I was afraid. He had high cheek bones, as all Indians have, keen, coal-black eyes and long black hair. His face was painted after the fashion of savages, which his place. Yes," added he, "keep close in his place, and if you act like a man you never will have any trouble with me."

HIS CONTEMPORARIES.

Grant's Opinions of Soldiers and Statesmen.

DISPASSIONATE AND FAIR VIEWS.

A Kind Word Spoken for McClellan—Discriminating Remarks Upon Stonewall Jackson—Gambetta, Bismarck and Napoleon.

Young's "Around the World."]

I have no doubt that Lincoln will be the conspicuous figure of the war, one of the great figures of history. He was a great man. The more I saw of him the more this impressed me. He was incontestably the greatest man I ever knew. What marked him especially was his sincerity, his kindness, his clear insight into affairs. Under all this he had a firm will and a clear policy. People used to say that Seward swayed him, or Chase or Stanton. This was a mistake. He might appear to go Seward's way one day and Stanton's another, but all the time he was going his own course and they with him. It was that gentle firmness in carrying out his own will, without apparent force or friction, that formed the basis of his character.

STONEWALL JACKSON.

The tactics for which Jackson is famous and which achieved such remarkable results belonged entirely to the beginning of the war and to the peculiar conditions under which the earlier battles were fought. They would have insured destruction to any commander who tried them upon Sherman, Thomas, Sheridan, Meade, or in fact any of our great generals. Consequently Jackson's fame as a general depends upon achievements gained before his generalship was tested, before he had a chance of matching himself with a really great commander. No doubt as able and patient a man as Jackson, who worked so hard at anything he attempted, would have adapted himself to new conditions and risen with them. He died before his opportunity. I always respected Jackson personally and esteemed his sincere and manly character.

AT THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR.

McClellan was then in Cincinnati in command. He had been appointed Major-General in the regular army. I was delighted with the appointment. I knew McClellan and had great confidence in him. I have, for that matter, never lost my respect for McClellan's character, nor my confidence in his loyalty and ability. I saw in him the man who was to pilot us through, and I wanted to be on his staff. I thought that if he would make me a major or a lieutenant-colonel I could be of use, and I wanted to be with him. So when I came to Cincinnati I went to the headquarters. Several of the staff officers were friends I had known in the army. I asked one of them if the General was in. I was told he had just gone out, and was asked to take a seat. Every body was so busy that they could not say a word. I went over to make a visit to an old army friend, Reynolds, and while there learned that Governor Gates, of Illinois, had made me a colonel of volunteers. Still I should like to have joined McClellan.

FREMONT.

This pomp and ceremony was common at the beginning of the war. McClellan had three times as many men with guards behind his tent as I had before me. I thought it necessary at the head quarters of a much larger command. Fremont had as much state as a sovereign and was as difficult to approach. His headquarters alone required a large transportation as a division of troops. I was under his command a part of the time and remember how imposing was his manner of doing business. He sat in a room in full uniform, with his maps before him. When you went in he would point out one line or another in a mysterious manner, never asking you to take a seat. You left without the least idea of what he wanted or what he wanted you to do.

MCLELLAN.

McClellan is to me one of the mysteries of the war. As a young man he was always a mystery. He had the way of inspiring you with the idea of immense capacity if he would only have a chance. Then he is a man of unusual accomplishments, a student and a well-read man. I have never studied his campaigns close enough to make up my mind as to his military skill, but all my impressions are in his favor. I have entire confidence in McClellan's loyalty and patriotism. But the test which was applied to him would be terrible to any man, being made a Major-general at the beginning of the war. It has always seemed to me that the critics of McClellan do not consider this vast and cruel responsibility—the war a new thing to all of us, the army new, everything to do from the outset, with a restless people and Congress. McClellan was a young man when this devolved upon him, and if he did not succeed it was because the conditions of success were so trying. If McClellan had gone into the war as did Sherman, Thomas or Meade, had fought his way along and up, I have no reason to suppose he would not have won as high a distinction as any of us.

THE MARCH TO THE SEA.

The march to the sea was proposed by me in a letter to Halleck before I left the Western army; my objective point was Mobile. It was not a sudden inspiration, but a logical move in the game. It was the next thing to be done. We had gone so far into the South that we had to go to the sea. We could not go anywhere else, for we were certainly not going back. The details of the march, the conduct, the whole glory belong to Sherman. I never thought much as to the origin of the idea. I presume it grew up in correspondence with Sherman; that it took shape as those things always do. Sherman is a man with so many resources and a mind so fertile than once an idea takes root it grows rapidly.

PLEASED WITH PEACE.

I was never more delighted at anything than the close of the war. I never liked service in the army—not as a young officer. I did not want to go to West Point. My appointment was an accident and my father had to use his authority to make me go. If I could have escaped West Point without bringing myself into disgrace at home I would have done so. I remember about the time I entered the Academy there were debates in Congress over a proposal to abolish West Point. I used to look over the papers and read the Congress reports with eagerness to see the progress the bill made, and hoping to hear that the school had been abolished, and that I could go home to my father without being in disgrace. I never went into a battle willingly or with enthusiasm. I was always glad when a battle was over. I never want to command another army. I take no interest in armies. When the Duke of Cambridge asked me to review his troops at Aldershot I told his Royal Highness that the one thing I never wanted to see again was a military parade. When I resigned from the army and went to a farm I was happy. When the rebellion came I returned to the service because it was a duty. I had no thought of rank; all I did was to try and make myself useful.

BISMARCK AND GAMBETTA.

Speaking of the notable men I have met in Europe, I regard Bismarck and Gambetta as the greatest. I saw a good deal of Bismarck in Berlin and later in Gastein, and had long talks with him. He impresses you as a great man. Gambetta also impresses me greatly. I was not surprised when I met him to see the power he wielded over France. I should not be surprised at any prominence he might attain in the future. I was very much pleased with the Republican leaders in France. They seemed a superior body of men. My relations with them gave me great hopes for the future of the Republic. They were men apparently of sense, wisdom and moderation.

NAPOLEON.

I have had an aversion to Napoleon and the whole family. When I was in Denmark the Prince Imperial was there, and some one thought it might be pleasant for me to meet him. I declined, saying I did not want to see him or any of his family. Of course the first Emperor was a great genius, but one of the most selfish and cruel men in history. Outside of his military skill, I do not see a redeeming trait in his character. He abused France for his own ends, and brought incredible disasters upon his country to gratify his selfish ambition. I do not think any genius can excuse a crime like that. The third Napoleon was worse than the first, the especial enemy of America and liberty.

JOHN P. NEWMAN.

Rev. John P. Newman, who is known throughout the length and breadth of the land for his learning and power as a pulpit orator, but more especially as the trusted friend and spiritual advisor of General Grant, was born in New York City, September 1, 1826, and was educated at Cazenavia Seminary, N. Y. He became pastor of the Metropolitan Episcopal Church, New York City, and afterwards of the Metropolitan M. E. Church, Washington, D. C. It was while he was presiding there that Gen. Grant became President and attended that church, thereby rendering the pastor popular. President Grant sent Dr. Newman around the world in a government ship on a mission to inspect the consulates, with a salary of $5000. Here was an opportunity for foreign travel which has furnished the doctor with a store of information sufficient to render his services interesting for years to come. He was chaplain to the United States Senate from 1869 to 1874. All through General Grant's illness Dr. Newman was in almost constant attendance. This is not surprising, however, for the latter was exceptionally favored by the General when at the heighth of the latter's career, and it was just that the doctor should reciprocate when his previous benefactor was overwhelmed with trouble. Before the General's illness Dr. Newman was residing in San Francisco, and it was here that he delivered his celebrated funeral oration, on the death of ex-Governor Stanford's son. Dr. Newman is a member of the Society of Biblical Archæology, and the author of "The Throne and Palaces of Babylon and Nineveh," and several other works of Oriental travel.

HOUSE AND HOME.

While our early mornings and late afternoons are cool and comfortable, there come a few hours at midday when the all-absorbing thought is how best to keep cool. Even then upon the hills there is almost invariably a breeze astir that does much to relieve us from positive discomfort, but upon the lower levels, in the more thickly settled portions of the city, this cooling breeze does not so readily find you.

I know of nothing more imperative during the heat of midsummer than the avoidance of rich and hearty food. Let the diet be simple and light, and the daily bath a habit not neglected. The stomach is one of our worst-abused servants, and the season of its revolt is almost invariably that of summer.

I am glad to note the increasing tendency in Southern California toward the adoption of light and comfortable clothing. The heavier dress fabrics are less worn than formerly, and a consequent larger degree of bodily comfort is the result during the summer months. But above all things else, pure water, diet and cleanliness are the most important essentials to health. With a due regard to these we need not stand greatly in fear of ill health or of epidemic diseases. The summers of California, particularly along the coast, where the heat is tempered by the sea breeze, ought not, with proper attention to the laws of health, to be more productive of sickness than other seasons of the year. It is well, at this season especially, to be regular in our habits, avoid all excesses in eating raw and indigestible food, particularly cabbage, salads, cucumbers and fruits not fully ripe. Boil all water for drinking purposes. Well-cooked mutton may be eaten, and rice properly cooked is a most wholesome food. It is not well to allow long intervals to occur between meals. An empty stomach is as deleterious to our well-being as an overloaded one.

The following suggestion, in regard to the benefits arising from the use of salt for the throat, I clip from "The Household:"

In these days, when diseases of the throat are so universally prevalent and in so many cases fatal, we feel it our duty to say a word in behalf of a most effectual, if not positive, cure for sore throat. For many years past—indeed, we may say during the whole of a life of more than forty years—we have been subject to a dry, hacking cough, which is not only distressing to ourselves but to our friends and those with whom we are brought in business contact. Last fall we were induced to try what virtue there was in common salt. We commenced by using it three times a day—morning, noon and night. We dissolved a large tablespoonful of pure table salt in about half a small tumblerful of water. With this we gargled the throat thoroughly just before meal time. The result was that during the entire winter we were not only free from coughs and colds, but the dry, hacking cough had entirely disappeared. We attribute these satisfactory results solely to the use of salt gargle, and most cordially recommend a trial of it to those who are subject to diseases of the throat. Many persons who have not tried the salt gargle have the impression that it is unpleasant, but after a few days' use no person who loves a nice, clean mouth and a first-rate sharpener of the appetite will abandon it.

I pick up from week to week many hints that are valuable to the housekeeper. The following, which have been gathered from many different sources, will, I doubt not, be acceptable to my readers:

A wise housekeeper is careful where she keeps her flour, for she knows it is more readily tainted than milk.

Do you know that milk which has turned or changed can be sweetened and made fit for use again by stirring in a little soda?

Cold rain water and soap will take out machine grease, where other means would not be advisable on account of colors running, etc.

An uncomfortable tight shoe may be made perfectly easy by laying a cloth wet in hot water across where it pinches, changing several times. The leather will shape itself to the foot.

A delicious sauce for plain rice pudding is made by stewing some apples and grapes until perfectly soft, then rub them through a sieve, sweeten, put a lump of butter in, and if too thin stir in a little cornstarch.

Kerosene will soften leather belts or boots that have become hard from exposure or use around the wash room. Good for the harness when hard from rain or dampness. Wash with warm water, then grease with good animal oil.

Beef fritters are nice for breakfast; chop pieces of steak or cold roast beef very fine. Make a batter of milk, flour and an egg, and mix the meat with it. Put a lump of butter in a saucepan, let it melt, then drop the batter into it from a large spoon. Fry until brown; season with pepper and salt and a little parsley.

Fried apples make a nice entree, cut across the core in slices, and then browned in lard, or butter and lard mixed; drain them and serve them hot. They make a nice garnish for roast pork when served in this way. Some cooks use beef drippings instead of lard and like the flavor better.

A delicious filling for a cake is made by putting one cup of powdered sugar into a saucepan with one-quarter of a cupful of water. Let them simmer gently until the sugar is entirely dissolved, and, is fact, until it is stiff when dropped into cold water; then add to it the white of one egg beaten to a froth, half a cup of chopped raisins, half a cup of chopped walnut meat, and a tablespoonful of cocoanut; add a few drops of vanilla also.

Potato fritters are very nice for supper, and are made in these proportions: Three large potatoes and three eggs, two tablespoonsful of cream; boil the potatoes and beat them until they are light; beat the eggs very light and mix them with the potatoes, add salt to your taste, beat the cream in last, mould the potatoes into round balls, sift flour over them and fry until brown in hot lard; drain them on a napkin before serving.

A pudding which is nice with a good sauce is made of three parts of bread crumbs rolled quite fine, one part tart apples chopped and one part raisins and English currents, a tablespoonful of salt, and water to moisten sufficiently. Mix well together and steam for two hours.

Currant Cake: A small cake to be eaten fresh for tea is made of half a cup of butter, one cup of sugar beaten together, two eggs, half a cup of sweet milk, one a d a half cups of flour, one teaspoonful and a half of baking powder; stir in one cup of well washed, drained and dried English currants; if they are not quite dry sprinkle a little flour over them.

Graham puffs for breakfast are richer and a great deal nicer than the plain gem. Take one pint of sweet milk, one pint graham flour, half a teaspoonful salt, and one egg; beat the egg, then add the milk and the flour gradually; beat it very briskly for four or five minutes, then pour into buttered jem pans; bake in a hot oven.

Rolled beefsteak is a very good way for cooking an inferior steak. Take a round steak, beat it and spread it with a dressing, such as is used for poultry, begin at one end and roll it neatly, tying it to keep it in shape. Put it in a bake pan with a little water, and bake until the meat is tender, basting it frequently. Thicken the gravy in the pan with a little flour wet with cold water, and season it nicely, adding a little catsup or sauce of some kind. Pour it around the meat. Cut it as you would a berry-roll, slicing off the ends neatly.

I like variety, it is better for health; though I do not advocate too many dishes upon the table at once. But I like to avoid ruts in the bill of fare, as well as in other things in life. But it is easy for the tired housekeeper, especially one who does all of her own work, to get into furrows, but a very hard thing to get out of them.

Go and Get a Title.

Tulleje Chronicle.]

If a citizen of any standing feels the need of a military handle to his name, all that is necessary for him to do is to visit St. Helena, where the generous editor of the Times will donate one without solicitation from his extensive stock of "Majahs" and "Kurnels." We have for a long time noticed the liberality of the editor in this matter, and when the other day he unselfishly and without ostentation bestowed a Colonelcy on plain Banker Goodman, we thought it was about time some public notice should be made of his generosity.

DOCTORS AND DUPES.

The Regular Practitioner Versus the Quack.

THE SPECIALIST'S SPECIAL FEATURES.

The Unassuming Family Physician—A Good Man to Know—His Habits and Mode of Life.

BY THE DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER.

A recent exchange, under the head of "Important Facts," expresses the following sentiment:

"Medical treatment and practice are in general terms the exact opposite of the truth, and if a man wants to be an invalid all he needs to do is to patronize a doctor; if he wants to die let him follow the doctor's prescriptions faithfully. If he would live and be healthy, let him give the doctor as wide a berth as possible."

This is excellent! The writer is pungent and truthful, but he lacks perspicuity. He fails to state just who he is talking about. Of the ubiquitous advertising quack, scarcely enough of this style can be said. He is well known to the American public, but California is his peculiar domain. Among our generous and unsuspecting people he "spreads himself like a green bay tree." He struts and swells over the columns of the newspaper, flaunts himself in the face of every school boy and girl in the form of a hand-bill, an almanac, or a funny book. He announces himself as a specialist of diseases of the lungs, heart and kidneys, of the eye, ear and throat; he can cure, without fail, scrofula, rheumatism, catarrh, brochitis, dyspepsia, piles, worms, and a "

A National Monument—Where Shall It be Located?

The Washington Star says: "The New York subscription for a Grant monument at Riverside Park drags from the start. Almost all the millionaires of the city have been put on the committee, but, as usual, there is no concert or enthusiasm among them and no outpouring of liberal checks. The community makes only the faintest response to the elaborate and ingenious appeals of the committee and the newspapers. Only one large subscription has been received, and very few of any kind. It looks, in short, as if the city was now to give another striking proof of its lack of public spirit and liberality, of which there have been so many mortifying illustrations in the past. It is quite likely that Congress will be asked to come to the rescue of this monument, as it was besought last winter to redeem New York from disgrace in the Bartholdi statue scandal. But if a national monument is to commemorate Grant's public services, it should appropriately be raised at the National Capital. New York, by a smart bit of business enterprise, secured the custody of Grant's remains, and the people of the country now seem disposed to let that city shoulder the responsibility it has assumed of providing a suitable monument for the grave."

Such a result might have been expected. The reverent and patriotic work of rearing a national monument to General Grant is something that the whole people would gladly take part in if the matter were properly presented to them; but after they have witnessed what looked very much like a scramble, accompanied by something akin to sharp practice on the part of New York to secure the burial place of the Old Commander, it is not strange that the people are "backward in coming forward" with their subscriptions. In this state of the case it becomes the duty of New Yorkers to put their shoulders to the wheel all the more energetically, raise the principal part of the funds necessary for the Riverside monument, and leave the mass of the people of the country at large to concentrate their efforts on a monument at the National Capital. We believe it will yet come to that. Should Congress come to the aid of the enterprise, it is extremely probable that whatever appropriation it may make will be voted only on condition that it be expended upon a monument at Washington City.

Save the Boys and Girls.

The Boys and Girls' Aid Society of San Francisco appears to be accomplishing a good work. It is certainly working in the right direction. Dr. Wines, one of America's noblest philanthropists, has justly said: "Every movement for the relief of society from the fearful burdens of vice and criminality, has forced upon thoughtful minds the conviction that the only solution of the problem is to be found in the application of radical remedies in the period of childhood." This same opinion is voiced in the great increase of child-saving institutions throughout the world. Enlightened civilization has arrived at a practical comprehension of the fact that if an evil has to be destroyed we must go back to its source. Destroy the springs from which an evil flows and how quickly the stream will dry up. So if we can educate that class of children in our State from which the hoodlum element is supplied, remove them from the midst of vicious surroundings and evil influences, place them in good homes, or in reformatory institutions, we have taken the first great step towards destroying the source from which the idle, vicious and criminal ranks are supplied, and the surest step towards public reform. This is the work that the Boys and Girls' Aid Society of San Francisco is striving to accomplish, and it should have the encouragement and support of every philanthropist in the State.

THE Chicago Times says General Sheridan has called the Governor of Kansas an ass. It is not stated whether the Lieutenant-General made the announcement in a general field order, or just worked off the observation unofficially. The reason for "those languages" was the peculiarly idiotic course of His Excellency in calling upon the Federal Government to send troops to protect the border of the State from the Indians. The troops were sent and posted. General Sheridan then went out to ascertain the cause of the Indian threat, and found that it was wholly due to the outrageous trespasses of the cowboys and cattle kings upon Indian lands. The Indians were found without animosity towards anybody except these gentry, and all they wanted was to be let alone and protected in the possession and occupancy of the lands guaranteed them by law and treaty. This is a reasonable demand upon the part of even an Indian. General Sheridan will give scant comfort to the marauding cowboys, and they know it.

NINE million dollars' worth of property was consumed by fire in the United States and Canada during the month of July. Add to this the property loss by storms and other disasters during the same time, and it makes July a month long to be remembered in this country.

Eastern Heats.

Already the number of fatal cases of sunstroke in Washington City this summer is greater than during any entire summer in the previous history of the city, and there is yet more than a month of hot weather to look forward to before the cooler days of autumn shall set in. It has been a season of unprecedented heat, and the proverbial "oldest inhabitant" of that section does not remember such severe heat as that experienced in Washington during the month of July. We have no reason to complain of the few hot hours which we encounter here at midday while our nights and mornings are so full of refreshing coolness. It is the hot weather that has no break in the long twenty-four hours that impoverishes the strength and makes its victims liable to succumb to weakness or disease. This hot summer at the East will have a tendency to send a good many more people to this coast. The extremely warm summers of the Atlantic Coast are not any more enjoyed than is the frigid cold of their long winter. Our equable climate will have a powerful charm for them, and with the early fall and winter we shall see them coming. The tide of travel will set in strongly in the direction of the Pacific Coast, and Southern California will not fail of receiving her share.

COLONEL FRED GRANT is authority for the statement that the story of General Grant's life will be brought down in his new book not only to the close of the war, but to the date of the General's death. This would certainly be most desirable. The story of General Grant's military life has been told by a great many very competent writers. The General's own story of his experience will of course be more interesting and more valuable than any of these. But his account of his public career after the war will be quite as interesting as his own story of his experience during the war.

A YOUNG lady in Jacksonville, Ogn., died Friday from the effects of eating poisoned ice-cream. Young men should paste this in their hats. We little know what dangers we incur when we indulge in ice-cream; that is, the girls little know. The perils of the practice cannot be too forcibly impressed upon the fair creatures. Avoid the deadly ice-cream!

THE fall trade has opened with a boom in New York, if the statements of the Commercial Bulletin are correct. According to that journal, the season has opened a fortnight earlier than usual and merchants have been obliged to curtail the vacations of their clerks. This is an encouraging state of affairs. It is the beginning of the end of the depression.

"HE spends his time billyposting against the administration," is the unique charge made by the Washington Hatchet against an "offensive partisan." The Hatchet is the coiner of a new word. Look out now for the verb "to billygost;" it will shortly ramify the dictionaries and be in daily use. The declension is easy.

A TRAGEDY is reported from Redding. The editor of the Redding Independent had his roller for inking type washed the other day and hung it outside to air awhile. During a brief absence a buck Indian with his squaw and papooses came along and ate it up. Journalism on the border has its drawbacks.

THE Sacramento Record-Union wants the Grand Army to take the monument matter in hand "and institute a canvass from one end of the State to the other." We want to see the Grand Army of the country at large concentrate its efforts upon the erection of a Grant monument at the National Capital.

AN Arizona paper with some previousness announces that "the new railroad from Los Angeles into the San Gabriel Valley was opened for traffic on the 1st instant." The date when this road will be regularly opened for passenger and freight traffic is, however, only a little way off.

THE full text of Queen Victoria's address on proroguing Parliament is given in to-day's dispatches. There is nothing incendiary or communistic about it, and Her Majesty is to be congratulated on the promulgation of so conservative a document.

SOME of the dry goods houses of Washington City have introduced immense patent fans into their establishments, and their continuous revolutions keep the atmosphere of the great shops cool for their customers.

"THE better way to erect a monument in memory of Grant is to estimate the cost of a brick, so as to give each person a chance to contribute the price of a brick," is a suggestion coming from "the other side."

"He was the truest as well as the bravest man that ever lived," was the remark made by Gen. James Longstreet, when he recovered from the emotion caused by the sad news of Gen. Grant's death.

CONKLING for the civic part, and Sherman for the military part of the Grant address before Congress next winter, is the latest suggestion, and it's not a bad one.

SANTA BARBARA is still agitating the sewer question. The pros and cons are numerous and lively.

DURING the past twenty years the production of potassic salt in Germany has increased nearly ninefold. In 1864 the yield was 2,336,791 centners, while in 1884 it had increased to 19,383,920 centners. There are seven important basins where this salt is obtained, and the salts, aside from their worth through the chemical industry, have proved to be of inestimable value as manures, both in German and foreign agriculture. The salt chiefly used for this purpose, because of its chemical compounds, is technically known as kainite. Last year Germany consumed 922,799 centners of kainite, and Prussia 782,660. It is believed these salt basins are inexhaustible.

THE SAUNTERER.

I dropped into a picture store on Spring street, one day last week. I should dislike to have the art culture of Los Angeles judged by the majority of pictures that are on exhibition there. They are not the work of local artists, thank heaven! There is that much to save us from mortification. But that it is possible to sell such pictures in this community as some of those there on exhibition, is enough to cause a blush. Perhaps they won't sell, though. While in at this establishment I stepped before a picture of the Adirondacks. It has a waterfall coming down from the heights. At first glance I took it to be a monumental, "Queer place, that, for a monument," said I to a friend who stood by me.

"Yes," was the response. Then going nearer and looking at the picture, "Why, 'tisn't a monument, its a waterfall. I'm sorry for the Adirondacks, and I'm sorry for anybody that will buy such a picture as that."

"Fine picture, that," said the dealer, coming up.

"Who painted it?" I asked.

"Don't know," was the response.

"Which do you sell most of, pieces like that," pointing to a fine marine sketch, "or pictures like this?"

"Oh, those like this I think," responded the dealer, evidently hoping he had a customer.

Well, I gave another look at the waterfall, the red hills, and the trees that were so stiff the biggest kind of a cyclone couldn't bend them, and rushed out, my only comfort to be found in the hope that the dealer lied and that there was not a person in Los Angeles so lacking in the discrimination of art as to buy such a picture as that "Scene in the Adirondacks."

One day last week a woman might have been seen standing for some time looking up and down one of our street-car lines. There was a look of uncertainty on her face, mingled with that of anxious interest. Finally as The Saunterer came up, she asked:

"Is this the cable road?"

"No, madam, it's one of our street-car lines. Cable road isn't running yet. Won't be for some little time yet."

"Well, now, ain't I glad I asked you, for if you hadn't told me I should 'er gone home and told 'em I'd seen the cable road," and she went off beaming with gratitude, her face as smiling as the round full moon.

Though there are about two hundred tents of Los Angeles people pitched upon the sands at Santa Monica, it is almost impossible to discover what places they have dropped out of here in the city—the people, not the tents. It seems as if the throng upon the streets was almost as large and the hotels as full. The rooms at the Nadeau and the Hollenbeck blocks are nearly all filled. There are not a large number of vacant houses. There's some room, of course, yet at our hotels, but a question for serious consideration is, What are we going to do with all the people that come to Los Angeles next fall and winter if after the strong and steady tide of travel sets in? Our great need of a first-class hotel ought to be considered and acted upon. What has become of the project for a $1,000,000 dollar hotel at the head of Second street, talked of by Madame Rumor a few weeks ago? It is what is needed.

Two years ago the tract lying between Court House and Second streets was waste land, where cows were staked out and a bridle path ran over the steep hill near that stretched from Hill street into the deep gulch beyond Olive street. Now the vast, sloping hillside has vanished, the deep gulch lying between the line of first and Second streets is filled up. Olive street, a wide and beautiful boulevard, runs over this made land, beautifully graded, as far as Court House street, and fine houses stand along the line. The transformation is complete. Just so are we growing.

The Saunterer was passing a lovely home on one of the principal streets of the city the other day. In the fine garden was a group of small boys. I stopped to look at them, for I'm interested in boys. They did not observe me, but I could see them and hear plainly all that they said. I noticed a miniature catafalque in the shade of one of the trees. It was draped in black, and covered with wreaths of choice flowers. Two miniature cannons were placed at its rear, and a pile of dark-colored marbles to represent cannon balls were placed in front. A small box covered with black was used for a casket, and its lid was having its handles had been tacked. It rested upon the dais under the arched canopy of the miniature funeral car.

"Now, Henry," said one of the boys, "you must make the oration, and one of us must be a minister and make a prayer. We cannot have a funeral without that, nohow, you know. You'll be the minister, won't you, George?"

"Well, ye-s-s," was the response.

Shortly all arrangements were made. Two of the boys drew the black car slowly down the garden walk, two walked beside it, and the others behind. With measured tread and slow the little procession moved on, each boy with solemn face, to the low beat of a tiny drum, until they reached the shadow of an over-arching tree, where boxes had been arranged for seats, and a larger box hidden by folds of black cloth served the purpose of a speaker's desk. The "orator" sat by the desk, and the improvised minister gravely took his seat beside him. Then the boys sang "In the Sweet Bye-and-bye," and as the music of the boyish voices died away on the still summer air, the little "minister" stood up. Every boy's head was bowed in reverent silence, while the prayer was said:

"O God, you have taken our great General. We are sorry he is dead, for he was good and brave. Make him happy in Heaven. Help us to grow up and be good men like General Grant. Amen!"

Then the "orator" delivered his little speech. At the close of this they fell into line, the low beat of the drum sounded and a heavy dinner bell suspended from one of the trees was tolled slowly, and the funeral cortege moved on down the garden walk, and was still marching as I turned to go. The Memorial Day, so generally observed in Los Angeles, had left its impression on the hearts of those boys. Grant was something more than a name to them. Grant, the hero, the soldier, the ruler and the man, was no fiction for those wide-awake young Americans. The story of his great deeds had taken hold upon their lives; his message had touched their hearts with tender sympathy, and in imagination they were laying him to his last rest as tenderly and as reverently as the nation had done a few days before. Those impressive ceremonies on the 8th of August were to them, as to thousands of other American children, a page of history that will not be forgotten and whose lesson will quicken their ambition, while it teaches them those great qualities which were so conspicuous in the character of the nation's immortal Chief. It is unconscious that some of the grandest lessons of life are learned, and we are teachers when we think not of it.

WASHINGTON.

The Navy, Like the Army, Must "Dress Up."

A SAIL EVERY THREE YEARS.

The Usual Budget of Political Chit-Chat and News from the National Capital.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—First Comptroller Durham says he is not exactly satisfied with Loring's explanation of his accounts as Commissioner of Agriculture, and unless he can offer better reasons for expenditures for seed, etc., than have yet been submitted, he (the Comptroller) will have to refer the case to the Solicitor of the Treasury for the institution of legal proceedings.

PER DIEM, NOT SUBSISTENCE.

First Comptroller Durham has given a decision that, under the act of March 3d, 1885, making appropriation for the collection of internal revenue, officers of the bureau are only entitled to a per diem of $3, in lieu of subsistence, while traveling and away from home on duty, and are not entitled to that while at home.

Officers of the Marine Hospital have been ordered to visit the cities of Tampico and Bagdad, Mexico, near the Texan frontier, to investigate reports that yellow fever prevails in these cities.

A MONUMENT, "QUEER PLACE, THAT, FOR A MONUMENT."

An order similar to that recently issued by Secretary Endicott, will shortly be sent out by the Navy Department. The regulations require that officers shall serve three years at sea and three years on shore, returning at the end of that period to sea duty. Complaint has been made by some officers that they did not receive their full time on shore. To remedy any such evils that may exist, two officers, one from the line and one from the staff, will probably be detailed at an early date to keep a record, showing the kind of work at which officers are employed and the length of time they have been engaged. When three years of shore duty have elapsed the officers will be sent to sea.

Weekly Mirror.

Four to One—And More Too.

The above figures give a comparative idea of the result of Monday's special election held to decide the question of the city's issuing bonds to the amount of $565,000 to pay for needed municipal improvements. The bonds were carried by an overwhelming majority—more than four to one. It was a splendid victory for the cause of progress and improvement. Out of a total vote of 2000 (exact)—a small vote, as was predicted—the proposition received the large majority of 1939, being 997 more votes than the requisite two-thirds. The excess above and beyond the legal number required to carry the measure was well nigh equal to the total vote (378) against the bonds.

The meaning of this vote is unmistakable. It is, first, a popular declaration in favor of progress in the work of local improvement; second, a decision by the popular court (the voters and property-owners of to-day) that posterity shall of right lend a hand in paying for benefits conferred upon them by the wise and enterprising builders of this generation; and third, a popular rebuke of reckless and unjust assaults made upon a municipal body which, whatever its faults, has never before been accused of corruption, and could not, with any reason, have been accused, in the present instance, of a purpose to get control of the people's money for its own purposes, since the appropriations voted must be expended by a succeeding Council.

The result of the vote is a subject of public congratulation. The progressive element of Los Angeles is in the ascendant.

The Assessment Roll.

The County Auditor has finished his listings of the Assessor's books, and finds that the assessment roll for the county amounts this year to $32,813,-361, against $34,051,026 last year, showing a decrease of $1,237,483. A morning contemporary, with its usual aptitude in guessing wrong, went out of its way some days ago in order to wring a compliment for the County Assessor, a political favorite, and stated that the increased assessment this year would be $15,000,000 more than last—a statement that excited only the hilarious derision of those who know anything of county affairs. It is within the knowledge of almost every one in this county that there has been a decided increase in the property value. How, then, can it be shown that the Assessor has done his duty by reading the amount by over a million? If the Sacramento or other papers should charge that Los Angeles county has lost over one thirty-second of her property value in one year, it would be indignantly denied by every one here, because we know that it is not true. And yet the County Assessor has so returned the figures. They will not bear scrutiny, however. Is it not rather clear evidence of hasty and careless work? Be it understood that such a reduction of the assessed value will not reduce taxes, for it is a direct bid for the State Board of Equalization to raise the assessment from fifteen to twenty-five per cent.

Mormon Infamy.

The Mormon church organs at Salt Lake City, it will be recollected, undertook to deny their messenger with respect to the United States by placing the flag at half-mast on the Fourth of July. They had—"lied like a trombone," and they knew it. They are trying the same hypocritical tactics since the death of General Grant,—in this case denying that they had any intention of insulting the memory of the Old Commander in refusing to lower their flags to half-mast when the news of his death was published; but the other papers in the small towns refuse to hide their hatred of the Government of the United States, and a correspondent at Panola, Utah, thus gives his reasons for the conduct of the people—and infamous reasons they are:

We had lost no Grant. Why should a Mormon mourn for the death of a Gentile? We are always happy to hear of the death of a Gentile—particularly if he not one of the Elect. Then the flag was not to be displayed from any building, as such, a death as that hurts our pockets, consequently affects our hearts. To see the heavenly smiles our village people wore that day one would be led to suppose they belonged to the Millennial Star and were waiting for the second coming.

Another nail in the coffin of polygamy!

"How will you have them, baked, fried, boiled, pot-pie, or one of my stews?" These are the questions habitually asked of "the boys" of his household by that bon vivant and good sportsman, Al. Canfield, of Santa Barbara, when he finds himself a-field in pursuit of California valley quail. And the response from the hungry hunters always comes back: "Give us one of your stews." How he stews quail, Mr. Canfield describes as follows:

First, place the birds in a camp kettle and cover the same with cold water; place the kettle on a slow fire until the contents have boiled slowly ten minutes, then add by a lump sugar-pepper and a butter the size of a large hen's egg; as soon as melted stir thoroughly, then add two heaping handfuls of California mushrooms, two onions, chopped fine; stir again and allow all to boil slowly ten minutes longer. Then add one pint of Sonoma white wine and one tablespoonful of Lea & Perrin's Worcestershire Sauce; then stir again, and add the least quantity of flour thickening. As soon as cooked add salt and pepper to taste. Additional good flavor may be obtained by the use of a sprinkling of fresh parsley, chopped fine, stirred into the stew just before removing from the fire. The stew should not be cooked longer than one-half hour.

Is not the contemplation of such a dainty dish enough to make us all wish for the coming of the quail season?

The mugwumps who made the complaint say: "We are still on the track of Postmaster Jones, of Indianapolis." This reminds the Chicago Inter-Ocean of the fellow who owned a great wolf dog, for which he had paid a big price and of which he made large boasts. He invited a party of friends to a grand hunt. The track of a wolf was soon struck and the hound opened out beautifully, and soon ran out of sight of the hunters, who followed on to be in at the death of the wolf. Meeting an old woodsman, the owner of the animal inquired, "Have you seen anything of a dog and wolf on the road?" "Well, yes, mister, I did." "How were they making it?" "Well, mister, it seemed when I saw 'em as if it was nip and tuck—nip and tuck—but the hound was about three jumps ahead." And that is about the result of the mugwump hunt in Indiana." By the way, this anecdote applies pretty well to the pursuit of the City Council by the steamed Herald in the matter of the bonds. The Herald was not the wolf in this case.

One of the reassuring signs of the times is that the iron trade is looking up. A dispatch from Pittsburg says that the outlook has not been more favorable for a number of years. Many of the mills of that city are running on double time. The Spartans once made iron their measure of values—their money. The modern world gives iron the scarcely less important office of the index of industry. As the iron trade goes so goes the prosperity of the country. Iron is first to feel a depression, and first to record a reaction. All hail to the favorable signs from Pittsburg!

That eloquent old statesman, Richard W. Thompson, of Indiana, delivered one of his characteristic addresses at the Grant memorial services in Terre Haute, on the 8th inst. Mr. Thompson is now seventy-six years old, and yet he retains wonderfully the energy and fire of earlier days. He was first elected to Congress as a Whig forty-four years ago, and is one of the oldest living of a group of statesmen of that period who held a large and honored place in the public mind, and it is just to say that age and gray hairs have added to his honors.

A paper on this coast says that the prettiest little scheme yet devised for land-grabbing is this: A man and his wife separate, and after getting a divorce they go to a favorable locality and take up adjoining claims. Having complied with all the legal requirements and secured clean titles, they become reconciled, remarry and settle down on a double homestead. "This seems to be regarded as a reflection on the looseness of the United States land laws, but what kind of commentary is it on our divorce laws, that such operations are possible?" asks the Alta California.

The magnificent strides made by the city of Chicago in the increase of her tax-roll are exhibited by the latest assessment, which shows that the total value of taxable property in Illinois, outside of Cook county, last year was $605,250,611. In Cook county the valuation last year was $141,296,890. This year the valuation in the State, outside of Cook county, is $588,224,804, and the valuation in Cook county is $145,309,147. Decrease in valuation in the counties outside of Cook, $17,025,817. Increase of valuation of property in Cook county, $4,012,257.

The Anaheim Gazette has an eye to the picturesque. It says: "Yumawards the wave of civilization takes its way. In solemn conclave assembled, the Yuma Indians have resolved to discard the supela, otherwise known as the breech-cloth, and substitute pantaloons. This innovation will result in making the Indians look more civilized, but it will be at the expense of picturesqueness." We suspect that this will be a case where the custom of dispensing with the G-string will be more honored in the breeches than in the observance.

George W. Calderwood speaks by the card, and this is what he says: "Nine dollars out of every ten spent for party prohibition in this country comes from Democratic coffers. When I was editor of the American Prohibitionist I was placed in a position to know this. A vast deal of temperance literature and prohibition tickets were sent out from my office, paid for by the Democratic State Central Committee in checks signed by their Chairman and Secretary, and payable at Reinhardt's Bank at Columbus" (Ohio.)

A contemporary points out that in this country there is a gradual decrease in the number of persons composing a family. In 1880 the number of persons to a family averaged 5 56-100, in 1860 it was 5 28-100, in 1870 the average had fallen to 5 9-100, and in 1880 it was 5 4-100. The above rate of decrease would make the present average five persons to a family. The obvious conclusion to be drawn from this array of social statistics is that this country is not "keeping up its lick" in the matter of producing people.

When the administration finds that one of its hungry and "offensive" partisan appointees has turned out to be an incompetent and law-breaking officer, it does not denounce him as such, but sends a commission to investigate him, which commission reports that the derelict official has simply "misapprehended his duties." This is a new one in political nomenclature.

The probability is that these are warm days for young January, the defaulting Deputy State Treasurer—a regular January thaw, so to speak. The youthful culprit is now dallying with the Superior Court of Sacramento. And if there is anything this side of sheol which is worse than everything else, it is to be in hot water at Sacramento about this time.

After nearly a year's absence at his old stamping ground in Ohio, Andy W. Francisco (formerly of the Times and Mirror), has returned to Los Angeles and rejoined his family, at their beautiful home on Ninth street. Mr. Francisco reports great business depression all through the East, and is mighty glad to get back to the g. e. of C., where he is much welcome.

In Merced the people are being stirred up with a hot poker in the hands of the weather clerk. The thermometer there scores 120 degrees for several hours during each day and hardly falls below 100 degrees at night. Let Los Angeles take her dose of 104 degrees for a few hours each day without grumbling. There are fates worse than ours.

Harry N. Morse, the famous California detective, has turned editor, and the first number of his paper, "Morse's Merchant's Patrol," has reached our table. It is a notable sheet, filled with matter of the peculiar class to be expected from such a source. One feature of the paper is an original "detective" story in each number.

The silver dollar seems to be gaining in popularity. A report from Washington says that the coinage now averages about $100,000 a week more than at the same time last year. More than two millions of Uncle Sam's cart wheels are turned out every month.

Twelve volumes of the census of 1880 are published, and twelve more are yet to come. The work progresses very slowly, and there is great dissatisfaction among the subscribers, who want to get to the end of the continued story.

The jury in the Prindle murder trial at Oakland, after being out four days, failed to agree. Next Wednesday the case is to be set for a new trial, and Oakland will have the delectation of wading through all of that slush again.

James W. Marshall.

The death of this notable pioneer, who is accredited with the discovery of gold in California, has attracted wide attention, not only in California, the scene of his discoveries and labors, but also in the East, where the press treats the matter with much sympathy for the old man who expired in poverty in a land grown rich, as he always claimed, from his discovery. The Sacramento and other up-country papers write of Marshall in the same spirit, while several of the San Francisco journals oppose this view vigorously, and do not hesitate to "write down" the subject under discussion. The Post and the Chronicle both take the position that Marshall's discovery of gold was a mere accident, something that he stumbled upon, and for which he is entitled to no special credit. He never was animated by a desire to turn his discovery to account for the benefit of humanity, but would have concealed it and appropriated all the results to his own private use, had that been possible. Marshall did not labor for the great discovery of which he was the accidental hero, and never burned the midnight oil in laboriously devising a beneficent scheme for the good of his countrymen. Had he done so the case would be different. So argue these journals, and therefore, say they, California and posterity owe the gold discoverer nothing but good will, the State having discharged whatever obligations it was ever under to him, by paying him a pension running through a number of years.

These utterances are not without plausibility or reason, though it seems rather a hard view to take of a case wherein a single individual was concerned on the one side, and on the other the people of an entire State—of the whole nation, for that matter—were recipients of the rich results flowing from Marshall's discovery.

Marshall was always clamorous to have the Legislature vote him a lump sum instead of a stipend in the form of a pension, and his inveterate besieging of the legislative doors at Sacramento from session to session finally had the effect of causing him to be classed as a colossal bore. Then he was cut off entirely from State aid, and ultimately died in poverty. His habits, too, were against him, and there seemed little encouragement for the Legislature to continue spending money upon the wrecked old man. It was, at best, a hard case, with many sad features in it.

As to the main proposition itself—to whom is properly due the credit of discovering gold in California?—there is ample ground for disputing the justice of Marshall's claim, notwithstanding the popular admission thereof. It is of record, and has been again and again shown, that gold was discovered and placer mined in or on the borders of Los Angeles county long before the date of Marshall's find at Sutter's mill on the 2d of February, 1848. The claims of Piru creek are actually before those of the South Fork of the American river; yet little attention was then given to these southern placers, and it must be admitted that Marshall's discovery was first in importance, because it was he who gave it to the world through a fortunate combination of circumstances which happened not to strike the southern gold field.

We present to-day a portrait of the dead pioneer. He was always chary about giving permission to have himself photographed, and it was only late in his checkered career that his "counterfeit presentment" could be obtained. The Times published a sketch of Mr. Marshall several days ago.

Business.

The Chicago Inter Ocean remarks: "For two years the country has been passing through a period of lethargy and business depression. This condition is periodical, and is always succeeded by times of remarkable activity in all lines of human effort. There are already indications of a business revival and of the dawn of another period of prosperity." Testimony to the same effect comes from various commercial centers on the Atlantic side. Within thirty or sixty days, we have no doubt, we shall see a vast improvement in the state of trade, business and industry in the East, and it will not require a long time for the wave to roll across the Sierras and touch California. We have no doubt that the long depression felt in the Atlantic and Middle States will retard immigration to this coast in some measure; yet, despite this, next winter is going to see a large volume turned in this direction.

The Boston Globe wants either George William Curtis or Henry Ward Beecher to deliver Grant's funeral oration—"a man-milliner to mince or an old woman to mouth over the great deeds of a great warrior and the achievements of a great civil ruler!" says the Kansas City Journal. This is severe, but none too severe. Neither of these men is a suitable selection to speak upon Grant dead.

A lawsuit involving the right to use the spring-tooth harrows of the country, as well as to sell the stock in hand and to manufacture more of the same sort, was decided by Justice Stanley Matthews, of the United States Court, yesterday. The decision went in favor of plaintiffs in the action, and now it is said that every dealer selling and every farmer using one of these implements is subject to royalty.

Who says that limes are not a gilt-edged product? Owing to a shortage in the San Francisco market, the price of this fruit has advanced from $12 to $50 a box. So says a dispatch. The lime famine is likely to last two weeks longer, so there will be a chance for the few growers and dealers in Los Angeles who may have stocks on hand, to send them up and get the speculative prices.

There is a story out to the effect that the river Clyde, in Scotland, was set on fire the other day, and burned for thirty-six hours before the flames could be quenched. If the weather in Scotland is anything near as hot as it is in Los Angeles this week, we are prepared to believe the story.

The cholera is yet a long way off, but when it starts on a forced march, no army can keep pace with it. Death in seven-league boots is an enemy to be dreaded. Let us fortify the United States against his approach.

And now El Mandi's followers and successors have promulgated a rebellion in Khartoum, sacked the treasury and played smash generally. England will get that country yet.

The able suggestion is made by an offensive partisan Republican contemporary that the administration might acquit itself of the obligations it seems to be under to Mr. Kelley by sending him to Terra del Fuego. This is worth Mr. Cleveland's earnest and statesmanlike attention. Mr. Kelley's recent experience in getting singed in Italy and Austria eminently qualifies him to invade the "Land of Fire" with impunity. He must be a regular salamander by this time.

A few days ago English reports had Oliver Pain, El Mahdi's French generalissimo, dead as a hammer, having executed him by command of the British officers lately in the Soudan. Now Oliver turns up in the guise of a Catholic Priest arrested in Bombay. Pain must be a cat with nine lives; the other seven are yet to be heard from. El Mahdi himself was killed five times by the press reports.

The Republican campaign in Virginia was opened by General Wise, candidate for Governor, in a speech in Richmond one day last week. He said there are in Virginia 128,000 negro voters and 210,000 white voters. Of these he said he expected to receive 120,000 colored votes and between 50,000 and 60,000 white votes. If his expectations are realized, Virginia will go Republican by 22,000 majority.

A bloody war has broken out between the Washoes and Piutes of Nevada, and it is thought that they may massacre each other to a certain extent. Well, if it must be, so be it. The people of the United States can look on with a good deal of equanimity, knowing that their loss will be the eternal gain of the happy hunting grounds. Can't somebody get the Sioux and the Apaches by the ears?

DIABOLISM

On Board the T. W. Fulton, an Atlantic Coast Steamer.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—An explosion on the steamer T. W. Fulton occurred yesterday, just after she had left her dock at Philadelphia on her trip to Wilmington, Del. As she was opposite pier No. 8, south wharves, the passengers and crew were startled by an explosion which shook the boat from stem to stern. When the smoke cleared away it was found that the entire forward part of the vessel above the water level had been badly damaged and a number of passengers injured, some severely. The pilot house and the entire upper deck presented a scene of complete wreck. Boats proceeded at once to the injured vessel, and with the assistance of the police boat Stockly, which was lying near by, at once proceeded to relieve the injured. An ambulance from the hospital soon arrived and took most of the injured to that institution. The injured, so far as known, are: John E. McDunn, aged 9 years, severely injured about the legs; Silas Reed, badly contused; Bessie Bradley, ankle dislocated; Samuel Cooper, injured about the head and body. The steamer is owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

THE INJURED.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—The list of wounded numbers fifteen. Edward Young, of Wilmington, Del., fireman of the Felton, was injured about the head and body. Wilson Wrong, engineer, was standing on the wharf when the explosion occurred, and was thrown backward over a bench and sustained injuries of the head. Many of the passengers were mostly women, taking their babies out for a fresh air trip on the river. Their escape is accredited to the providential fact that but few were in the forward part of the steamer.

Edward Young, fireman, says that when the explosion occurred he was carrying the only thirty-five pounds of steam to the square inch. Andrew Linker said to-day that he inspected the boilers last May and found it in good condition. The iron was tested. It is stamped 50,000 pounds, and broke at 56,000 pounds. An indentation in the head of a rivet, however, is shown beyond a doubt that the explosive force came from without and not from within. Captain Hay, of the Felton, was on the wharf when the explosion occurred, and was thrown backward over a bench and sustained injuries of the head. Captain Hay says that the shock was terrific, and he is confident that the explosion was caused by dynamite. The explosive had been placed forward and ahead of the boiler. The steamer came up from Wilmington at 8:30, and lay at her wharf until 10 o'clock last night. Mr. Linker, who is engineer in charge of Andrew Jones of Bridgeton, N. J. He could not be communicated with to-day, but Captain Wiley says that Linker told him that he was attempting to board the steamer last night with watchman would have informed him of the fact. While the steamer lay at her wharf this morning passengers came aboard and took chairs on the hurricane deck, or aft. Officers and deckhands were busy, and no suspicion was paid to the movements of passengers. Several of them carried baskets and satchels. A bundle or package was also carried aboard by each, without attracting attention. An official report was made to H. F. Kennedy, Superintendent of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railway Company, under whose supervision the steamboat is operated, said that the explosion had been confined to a space cracked about a foot in length. The explosion is believed to have been caused by a cartridge of some kind placed under the head of the boiler. Detectives have been put on the case. The Felton was insured for $50,000.

Minister Denby Goes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—Colonel Denby, United States Minister to China, sailed to-day on the steamer Rio Janeiro for his post. He was escorted to the steamer by Colonel Poe, Chinese Consul, and several officials of the Chinese Consulate General. The latter were bearers of many handsome floral pieces of various designs. Regarding statistics of Chinese arrivals furnished him by Surveyor of the Port Morton, Colonel Denby remarked that they differed from those furnished by the Chinese Consul by several thousands.

A Clerical Sensation.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—Something of a sensation was caused by the arrest late last night of Rev. W. W. Downs, pastor of the Bowdoin Square Baptist church, and Mrs. Fred W. Tabor at the instance of the woman's husband. The case was called to-day, but postponed. Mr. Tabor today began action for divorce on the ground of adultery. Rev. Downs has been in trouble with a portion of his flock. He asserts his innocence and claims that this action is part of a plot to ruin him and drive him from the church.

The Hot Wave.

MERCED, Aug 18.—The hot wave continues unabated. The thermometer stands at 120 in the shade several hours during the day and falls but little below 100 during the night.

WALLA WALLA, W. T., Aug. 18.—To-day was the hottest ever experienced in this locality, the thermometer registering 108 in the shade. Business was almost suspended, everybody trying in vain to keep cool.

A Big Rancher Arrested.

DENVER, Aug. 18.—A Pueblo special says that McMullen, a ranchman living thirty miles east of there, was arrested yesterday by the United States Marshal for contempt of court in failing to remove fences on government land. McMullen made a show of resisting arrest and was shot in the leg by the Marshal. He has thirty thousand acres illegally fenced.

Fatally Wounded His Mistress.

OAKLAND, Aug. 18.—Robert Mitchell, a barkeeper of San Francisco, wounded his mistress, Minnie C. Siqueres, on Broadway street near Ninth, one of the most public places in the city, this afternoon. The cause of his act is said to be her refusal to live with him. Mitchell was arrested and jailed. No hopes are entertained of the woman's recovery.

Decrease of Immigration.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The number of immigrants landed at Castle Garden since the first of January has been about 30,000 less than during the corresponding period last year. The decrease was most marked during the first four months of this year. There was quite a marked increase in Scandinavian immigration.

WASHINGTON.

The South American Trade Question

REPORT FROM THE COMMISSION.

Our Grandest Trade Opportunities Neglected—The Government After Ex-Commissioner Loring.

Associated Press Dispatches to the Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The Commissioners appointed to visit the Central and South American States in the interest of more intimate national and commercial relations between those countries and the United States have submitted a report to the Department of State of their work in Uruguay and the Argentine Republic. At both Buenos Ayres and Montevideo the Commission sought from commercial communities information concerning the present condition of commerce and suggestions as to the best means of promoting trade with the United States, the result of which will be submitted with the report to the President. The report to the President is in preparation. The report in part says that the share of the United States in the enormous commerce of the River Platte country, which includes Paraguay, Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, is lamentably insufficient, and less than it was half a century ago. The reason is very apparent. Twenty-one lines of steamships connect these ports with those of Europe, while there is no regular steamship communication whatever with our country. From forty to sixty steamers arrive at Buenos Ayres every month, and not one from the United States. The few products of our fields and factories found there are brought sometimes in chartered vessels, but more frequently come by way of Europe. Merchants with one voice, say that, because of the absence of steam communication, they can afford to buy in the United States only such articles as cannot be obtained elsewhere. The representation of a communication to the President of Uruguay was made the subject of a great deal of ceremony and military display, being the desire of the government as well as the people to testify in this manner to their admiration for the "Grand Republic," as the United States is universally acknowledged to be. The President of Uruguay and his ministers, after expressing with great ardor their admiration for the United States, their efforts to imitate our government in all things and their desire for closer relations, accepted without discussion, each and all of the propositions submitted by the Commission, except that which relates to a reciprocal treaty with the United States. To this they would have readily assented also if the commission had felt justified in encouraging them to expect that the Congress of the United States would consent to a reduction or a removal of the duty on wool, that being the chief product of Uruguay and the only article exported to the United States which is taxed under our tariff. With regard to the proposed common coin and international Congress they were quite enthusiastic. The Government of Uruguay, they said, was not in such a financial condition as to give substantial aid to the project for the dredging of a steamship line between its ports and the United States, but very earnestly hoped that something might be done in this direction and would agree to afford steamers special privileges in the matter of harbor duties, etc. The presentation by the Commission to the President of the Argentine Republic was, at the President's request, attended with such formality as was consistent with the diplomatic rank and usage, and the usual complimentary addresses were exchanged. "The formal topics for consideration at our conference with President Roca and his government," the report continues, "were all cordially approved by them. Nowhere has the Commission met with more genial hospitality, and whole-souled desire for closer political and commercial relations with the United States, than in the Argentine Republic. That country aspires to be to South America what our country is to the Northern continent, and is making very rapid strides in that direction. The President earnestly desired more intimate commercial relations with the United States, but said they could not expect trade without transportation facilities. The Argentine government was willing to do as much as the United States in giving financial aid to a steamship company that would sail vessels between the ports of the two countries, and he suggested that we should legislate at once to make the markets of the United States accessible to Argentine importers.

ACTING SECRETARY OF WAR.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Chief Clerk John Tweedale, of the War Department, will act as Secretary of War during the absence of Secretary Lincoln. The Secretary will be absent from Washington till October 1st.

OFFICES AFTER THE EX-COMMISSIONERS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—First Comptroller Durham has written a letter to Mr. Loring, ex-Commissioner of Agriculture, in which he says the latter is in error if supposing that any of the rejected accounts are for machinery or experiments. He explains the two claims disallowed amount to about $200,000, and were solely for expenditures for seed and labor. He concludes his letter by saying that, while the statute may authorize Loring to make, he shall proceed in the case under due process of law.

COOLING THE OFFER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Acting Postmaster General Stevenson to-day declined a proposition by the American District Telegraph Company of Philadelphia to take charge of the immediate delivery system of that city, on the ground that the law contemplates the maintenance by the department of its own delivery systems.

MORE CIVIL SERVICE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—Commissioner Thomas, of the Civil Service Commission, thinks that the messengers to be selected for the delivery of special letter stamp letters will be appointed under the civil service law.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 18.—A warrant has already been issued by the Treasury Department for the payment of undisputed claims against the World's Exposition at New Orleans, amounting to $168,026. There remains only about $61,980 to be paid on account of claims, the justice of which is admitted by the managers of the Exposition. The list of the Congressional appropriation of $235,000, amounting to $85,000, will be reserved for the payment of such disputed claims as may be found just and equitable.

CHIEF CLERK AT MARE ISLAND.

C. H. Wenington was to-day appointed Chief Clerk at Mare Island Navy yard, vice G. W. Simonton.

SILVER COINAGE INCREASING.

The Treasury Department to-day purchased 200,000 ounces of silver for delivery at the Philadelphia Mint for coinage into standard dollars. It is learned at the Department that there is to be quite a brisk movement in silver dollars all over the country. The issue averages about $100,000 a week more than during the same period of last year, and is slightly in excess of the regular monthly coinage of $2,000,000.

OPINIONS AS TO AD VALOREM.

An evening paper says that over two hundred replies have been received at the Treasury Department to the circular letter calling for an expression of opinion from manufacturers and importers on the subject of tariff revision. As a rule the contributions contained more complaints of the ad valorem system than suggestions for its improvement.

CENTAVORABLE TO THE PANAMA CANAL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The Post's Washington special says: The report of engineer Menocal is very unfavorable to the Panama canal, both in respect to its finances and to the engineering problem.

COUNTERFEIT BEER STAMPS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 18.—In regard to the allegation that the Internal Revenue Bureau had discovered a large number of counterfeit beer stamps in use, the statement is made that some seizure stamps were made in New York, Missouri and Arkansas, and that, in each case, when submitted to an expert, they were pronounced genuine.

THE CROOKED WHISKY.

A Part of it Released—Indignant Manufacturers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—In regard to the recent seizure of a large quantity of whisky, shipped to this city from Peoria, Ills., which was alleged to have been in fraudulently-constructed barrels with an intention to defraud the government, it is learned that an order was received in this city to-day from Washington, directing the release of all whisky consigned by Woolner Brothers, and also that consignments of the Manhattan Distilling Company had been released by compromise, whereby the distilling company are to pay the tax upon one gallon of whisky in each of 83 barrels out of 100 shipped by them, with the understanding that they would file a claim in the United States courts to recover the extra tax so paid. The shipments of the Great Western Distilling Company and Zell, Schwabacher & Co. are still detained, pending an investigation by revenue officials. It is understood that there are upwards of 4000 barrels of whisky which will be affected by the action of the government, and it is thought the entire matter will be compromised and then taken into the courts. Wholesale liquor men of Philadelphia, representing a capital of $20,000,000, have addressed a letter to the Revenue Collector of this District concerning the alleged fraudulently constructed barrels, claiming that the packages are regularly made, and informing him that, unless they are prohibited to pursue their business without further interruption, they will bring action against the government for damages sustained.

MAXWELL.

The St. Louis Murderer Procures Counsel and Sets out to Write for the Papers.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 17.—Very little of general interest has developed in the Maxwell case to-day. He had a number of callers during the day. The police authorities restricted the permits and allowed but few persons to see him. The chief event of the day was the retaining of John I. Martin by Maxwell, as counsel, who says when formal action is taken against his client, he will not waive preliminary examination. Maxwell is still in the police "boldover" and it has not been ascertained when he will be turned over to the sheriff. His attorney has given him permission to write for a newspaper, and he will probably do so. He will begin business at once and thus derive a little revenue. He claims to have $6000 invested in English funds, and expects to arrange for a transfer of some of it here, but just how he is without a dollar and wholly dependent upon police authorities for everything he requires.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—The Chronicle's St. Louis special says: Walter H. Lennox Maxwell, the murderer of Arthur Preller, was identified yesterday by Fernow, the druggist from whom he purchased six ounces of chloroform. That Maxwell has made a full confession is proved by Detective Tracey's statement yesterday afternoon, in which he said: "There is not a single link in the chain of evidence missing. There is no doubt, too, that Maxwell's defense will be that Preller died from an overdose of chloroform administered for medical purposes." Maxwell says he has often administered medicine to Preller. He says he got the chloroform in London and in the provinces, having studied it at Victoria College and University; but he has no diploma.

WHICH SHOWS MAXWELL TO BE BROKE.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18.—A letter is published here to-day, dated Sunny Bank, England, July 13, 1885, and signed Samuel Maxwell, which speaks of his son, H. M. Brooks, having left home last January on a business trip to Ireland, and that no word had been received from him since. It had been learned, however, that he had the curate of an adjoining parish for a companion, and that they had indulged in various excursions, and that Brooks's name had got mixed up with the St. Louis trunk tragedy and also got mixed up with Dr. Maxwell. The letter shows great distress on the part of the writer, and makes an urgent appeal for information in regard to the person supposed to be under arrest. Part of the letter was shown to Maxwell and he recognized the signature as that of his father, and pronounced the letter a forgery. He will write his father and tell him that he (Maxwell) is innocent of the murder of Preller and that he has a perfectly good defense.

MAXWELL PUBLISHES A CARD.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18.—Maxwell published a card this afternoon, denying that he has given any reason why outlines or ideas of his defense, as published here this morning. He furthermore denied having told Sheriff Kirkham that Preller's name is Brooks, and says, no matter what is published, he will not talk about the case, or give any one an idea what his defense will be.

The letter previously referred to, signed Samuel N. Brooks, is genuine, however, and was received here by John D. Vincel, a brother of the Mrs. Maxwell. Mr. Vincel replied to it, and is daily expecting another letter from the same person. Meanwhile he was placed in the Sheriff's custody and jailed to-day.

HIGHFLYERS.

Their Scores at Saratoga and Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The attendance at Monmouth Park to-day was the largest of the season, except that of July 4, and was a representative gathering. Eastern and Western turfites had congregated to witness the decision of the question as to who owned the best horse of 1885, and the decision was in favor of the West. Howard Payne was not scratched, and after a match at a mile and a quarter for $2500 a side, with $2500 added, will be run off between Miss Woodford and Freeland to-morrow.

In the first race, free handicap, three-quarters of a mile, Avalon won by a head, Julien C. second, Juliets Colt third. Time, 1:15¾. Mutuals paid $86.35.

In the second race, Most and Ghandon stakes, for two-year-olds, three-quarters of a mile, Fonso won by two lengths, Kabels second, Laura Garrison third. Time, 1:16¾.

In the third race, choice stakes, three-year-olds, 1¼ miles, Richmond won by a length, Wanda second, Longview third; time, 2:40.

In the fourth race, free handicap, 1¼ miles, Sam Brown won as he liked, Elgin second, Barnes third; time, 2:11¾.

In the fifth race, sweepstakes, ages, $1000 each, with $2000 added, 1¼ miles, Pontiac went to the front at once, leading all. Down the back stretch Miss Woodford lapped Pontiac, and so they went over the stretch, where Pontiac fell back and the others closed and a magnificent race ensued up the homestretch, Woodford by a head, Pontiac being twelve lengths behind; time 2:09.

In the sixth race, for three-year-olds and upwards, selling race, mile and a furlong, Little Minch won by four lengths, Queen Esther second, Torpedo, third. Time, 1:58¾.

In the seventh race, handicap, mile and a half, six hurdles, Tallyrand was never headed, winning with great ease, by two lengths. Time, 2:50¾.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Lively Go a Booming—Yellow Fever in Port.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—The Pacific Mail Company refused to-day to receive mails on the steamer Rio Janeiro, which sailed this afternoon for Yokohama and Hong Kong. Merchants, anticipating this action, sent their letters aboard the steamer in government stamped envelopes.

YELLOW FEVER IN PORT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—The city was startled this afternoon by news that the Norwegian bark Jorsalfarer, from Acapulco to British Columbia, had put in here with Panama yellow fever aboard. The captain reported that one sailor died with the fever on the trip up, and that several others were down with the same disease. He put into this port for medical assistance. The vessel has been quarantined, and officers are now investigating the disease.

LIMES BOOMING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—Owing to a "corner" in limes, prices have advanced from $13 to $50 a box in two weeks. It is said there are not more than 7000 limes in the city at present. The scarcity is due to a combination of merchants, who control the Acapulco market. The scarcity will continue about two weeks longer, when another steamer is expected.

THE CHOLERA.

The Frightful Mortality Record Continued.

MADRID, Aug. 18.—Returns show that in the whole of Spain yesterday there were 4830 new cases of cholera and 1718 deaths.

IN FRANCE.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 18.—The cholera is spreading in suburban villages. A whole family has died of cholera.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 18.—Twenty-seven deaths from cholera were reported at Marseilles to-day.

A CHOLERA SCARE IN DETROIT.

DETROIT, Aug. 18.—To-day Policeman Guyman was taken sick, turning black in the face and having a desire to vomit. He suffered great pain, and it was said he had cholera. There were some affirming that it was a true case of Asiatic cholera, while others believed it plain cholera morbus. Several other officers at the same station were taken sick with similar symptoms. There seemed a good beginning for a cholera scare, but an investigation shows that, while one or two men have mild attacks of cholera morbus, most of them have no such disease. Officer Guyman was suffering severely from constipation, which caused nausea, and an emetic was given and has somewhat relieved him. Others were similarly affected.

A STRIKE:

The Knights of Labor Order It,

THEREFORE THE MEN WILL NOT WORK.

The Wabash Road and Gould's Southwest System Affected—Opposition to the Knights the Cause.

Associated Press Dispatches to the Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 17.—Last Friday there came to this city four members of the General Executive Committee of the Knights of Labor. The mission of these gentlemen was to have a conference with Colonel Talmage, General Manager of the Wabash Railway, in regard to the relations existing between members of the Knights of Labor and the railroad company, which are said to be in quite a disturbed condition. Talmage being out of the city, the gentleman was telegraphed, requesting him to state when and where a conference could be had. To this Talmage replied that he saw no reason why he should meet the committee for the purpose named; that he was not aware of any dissatisfaction existing among the employes of the road, and he declined to confer with the committee. As an apparent outcome of this, there was promulgated at Moberly, Mo., where the Wabash Railway has ext

The County Assessment—Correction.

The TIMES was on Tuesday led into making a serious error of statement in connection with the publication of an abstract of County Auditor Montaño's official "statement of the values of property in the county of Los Angeles for the year 1885," which that official personally handed in to this office for publication, at the same time calling particular attention to the alleged fact that the assessment was more than a million dollars less than for last year—a statement which was a surprise to us as well as to every intelligent and observing man in the community, as all know that the increase in property values during the year has been marked and material. The unfavorable comparison made then was not only unjust to the county, in that it proclaimed its material retrogression instead of its progression, but the comments made in connection with the publication were unjust to an official whom the TIMES has no desire to misrepresent or injure—County Assessor Bilderrain, upon whose official assessment the Auditor's statement is built.

We therefore hasten to correct the erroneous statements and comparisons sent forth unintentionally, and to endeavor to do justice all around, as nearly as may be.

The comparative totals given in Tuesday's TIMES were $34,051,026 for 1884 and $32,813,453 for 1885, showing an apparent falling off from last year of $1,237,483. Instead of this being true, the actual increase over 1884, as shown by the Assessor's roll, is over four and a half millions of dollars. The error arose by including in the total for 1884 the twenty per cent. increase put on by the State Board of Equalization, and also the item of $2,530,940 assessed by the same board on railroad property in the county, and making no provision for these large items in the total for 1885. This being the case, it can be readily seen that, the basis being wrong, the comparison must necessarily be erroneous and unjust.

In order to present the case more fully and specifically, we print below comparative statements—for 1884 and 1885, respectively—drawn from the Assessor's records. To the statement for 1885 are added estimates to cover the possible action of the State Board of Equalization:

Valuation for 1884.
Real estate not otherwise specified.....	$12,386,177
Improvements to be sold at auction.....	2,371,185
City and town lots.....	4,599,724
Improvements on same.....	2,441,156
Improvements on all property assessed to others than owners of land.....	63,886
Total value of all real estate.....	$23,279,127
Total value of personal property.....	9,014,903
Total value of all property as returned by County Assessor to-day.....	$28,274,030
Which was increased by the State Board of Equalization 20 per cent.	5,654,806
Total, exclusive of railroad property.....	$33,928,836
To this is to be added the assessed values (apportioned by the State Board) of franchise, roadway, etc., of railroads, which was.....	2,530,940
Aggregate for 1884.....	$36,459,776

Valuation for 1885.
Real estate not otherwise specified.....	$13,390,154
Improvements on same..	2,774,654
City and town lots.....	5,335,744
Improvements on same..	4,562,758
Total value of all real estate.....	$26,061,309
Total value of personal property..	6,874,804
Total value of all property as returned by County Assessor..	$32,736,112
Twenty per cent. added to the above (should the assessment be raised so much by the State Board of Equalization) would make.....	6,547,222
Making the total, exclusive of railroad property, to-day..	$39,283,334
Add railroad assessment (estimated)	2,500,000
And the aggregate for 1885 reaches	$41,783,334

From the above it will be seen that the Assessor's official figures for 1885 (which are subject to slight correction by the Board of Supervisors) show, exclusive of the apportionment of the railroad assessment by the State Board of Equalization, and independently of the twenty per cent. raise by the State Board, a net increase of $4,462,082 over his assessment for 1884; and the total valuation for the county, should twenty per cent. be added, the same as last year, and the railroad assessment be put at $2,500,000, will reach the grand aggregate of $41,783,334, being a total increase of $5,323,558 over the valuation for 1884. The question of another twenty per cent. increase this year is, however, only surmise as yet.

Grant at the Grave of Rawlins.

The Washington Hatchet makes public the fact that when General John A. Rawlins died, his family being at that time in reduced circumstances, General Grant had his Secretary of War and former Chief-of-Staff buried in a style befitting his position, and paid the expenses out of his own pocket. An old soldier of the War Department tells the story. He also states that the remains of General Rawlins were placed in the vault of the Congressional Cemetery at Washington, and after several months it became necessary to remove them for final interment, and the sexton sent a note to General Grant informing him of the fact, and that there was no lot for burial. By that time a subscription of over $100,000 had been raised for the widow of General Rawlins, but she had married again, and failed to provide a resting place for the body of her first husband—perhaps not knowing that none had been provided.

The old soldier says: "Well, General Grant was equal to the emergency. He purchased a lot and paid for it himself. When he called his Cabinet together and asked the members to go with him to the burial, they accompanied him. When the casket was opened the corpse was found in a perfect state of preservation, every feature natural. Grant and one member of his Cabinet were the only ones that looked at it. Then an improvised funeral cortege was arranged, and honor paid to the memory of the dead officer, as the remains were permanently laid away. Grant was much affected, and planted a shrub with his own hands over the grave. He was, withal, the most complete man I ever knew. He was always equal to any occasion."

THE Rev. Sam Jones says: "I am a Democrat, and have always voted that ticket, but when a party straddles a whisky barrel, the Angel Gabriel could not make me vote for it." And Sam fell from grace with one fell swoop in the eyes of Kentucky and Ohio Democrats when he made that announcement.

Bonded Opinions.

The action of the people of Los Angeles in voting, last Monday, in favor of the issuance of bonds for municipal improvements has attracted general attention throughout the State, and is made the subject of editorials in leading San Francisco papers. The Bulletin, without referring specifically to this city, has an article taking a general view of the practice of municipalities going into debt, which it deprecates, and in supporting its objections discusses somewhat the constitutional phase of the question, and also the part that posterity has to play in these transactions. The Bulletin's idea, in a nutshell, is that it is better to pay as you go, etc.

The Chronicle, on the contrary, favors going into debt, and argues that towns and cities can make money by doing it. Under the heading of "A Sensible Course," it says: "The citizens of our interior towns are developing an enterprising tendency which is highly commendable. The people of Los Angeles voted on Monday, by five to one, in favor of an issue of $245,000 bonds for municipal improvements. Only a few days before Alameda authorized an issue of something over $100,000 bonds for public improvements. Fresno is in the market with $80,000 bridge bonds, just authorized. The facts show that the people are alive to the necessity of developing their resources and improving their cities, and are not afraid to run in debt for a good purpose. It is by such means as this that great communities are built up—not by the mean, narrow-minded policy which unhappily governs this city, and which prevents any improvements that cost money.

"A city or county which is afraid to run into debt can never progress rapidly. The savings of a community—no matter how prosperous—accumulate too slowly to furnish the large sums required for modern improvements. It is always necessary to mortgage the future and to trust to posterity to defray part of the cost of betterments of which it enjoys the advantage. Persons who belong to the Bourbon school of finance shudder at the idea of running into debt even when it is plain that the debt will be doubly repaid by the outlay of the money. We have people in this city who insist that the sewer shall not be constructed, and that the city shall fail to run, rather than increase the bonded indebtedness or issue a few bonds. They have a conviction when it is proposed to bond the city for a few millions to pave the streets that beautify the thoroughfares. They are too narrow-minded to realize that their policy prevents the city growing, whereas the opposite policy would start it on a new lease of prosperity and activity, in which the burden of the debt incurred would not be felt.

"In the towns of the Eastern States which issued bonds to introduce water, and lay sewers, and put up electric lights, and build bridges, and pave streets, real estate is worth twice as much as it is in towns where they were afraid to run into debt, and population increases twice as fast in the one as in the other. Our friends at Alameda, Los Angeles and Fresno are pursuing a wise course and we hope their example will be followed. The bonds are a good investment, and there will be no trouble in finding a purchaser for them—if not here, certainly at New York."

The case is here very well stated by our metropolitan contemporary. Of course, there is such a thing as a municipality or an individual going too far in the direction of mortgaging the future; the temptation to do so is strong, and the instances where it has been done are too frequent. But the case of the city of Los Angeles is not one of these, and we have no doubt whatever about a favorable issue to the progressive, yet conservative, action of her citizens in the special bond election of August 17, 1885.

A Bad Stroke for Sacramento.

The long-dreaded closing of the Sacramento river to navigation seems to be close at hand. The time was when ocean steamers were able to make their way up the river as far as Sacramento, but that has long passed. Lately the channel has been filling with debris to such an extent that the passage of the light-draught river boats has been menaced. Dispatches to-day state that the steamers Modoc and Apache are both aground on a bar just below Sacramento, and that it is almost certain that navigation will be entirely suspended in a few days. A meeting of citizens of Sacramento has been called to consider plans for keeping the channel open. If river navigation is entirely stopped, it will be a great blow at the commercial prosperity of Sacramento. That city has hitherto enjoyed a leverage on the railroads, by which it was enabled to keep freight and passenger rates at a low figure, and Sacramento has accordingly maintained a successful rivalry with San Francisco for the interior trade. But if Sacramento's best ally, the river, now deserts her, the commerce of the city will be left entirely at the mercy of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, of Kentucky, and it may not fare so well as formerly. It is to be hoped that the citizens of Sacramento may be able, by prompt and vigorous measures, to avert this threatened catastrophe.

THE Supervisors Thursday concluded the purchase of the Central School lot for a courthouse site. It is understood that the Board has in its possession written propositions from the owners of the New High and Temple street corner, which make the scouring of this property with the rest a matter of certainty, and that without unletting the county to a great extent. It is optional with the Board to exchange property across the way, on Temple street, in the formerly purchased Court-house site, foot for foot, thus obtaining the desired corner without a cash outlay. In the present state of county affairs this would probably be advisable. It is a satisfaction, at least, to know that the county is sure of obtaining the corner lot without suffering extortion, either now or at some future time.

A PRIVATE letter received in Washington from the Bermuda Islands reports the serious illness of General Russell Hastings, who lives there. He has had hemorrhage of the lungs. In 1878 he was married at the White House to Miss Emily Platt, the niece and adopted daughter of ex-President Hayes. He was on the latter's staff in the Rebellion, and was badly wounded in the service. General Hastings is engaged in a unique industry at Hamilton, Bermuda—the growing of calla lillies, of which he had a large plantation. His market for the flowers is New York and other Atlantic cities.

IN a letter from Long Beach Judge Widney gives the TIMES a most graphic description of a wind-storm which occurred at that place last Tuesday. The hot simoon swept down from the north and was encountered and determinedly opposed by a cool ocean wind from the south. For a brief time the conflict waged fast and furious. A cloud of dust and things went up into the air. The waters of the ocean ran in strong currents and eddies. Zephyrus retreated temporarily, and as the simoon gained possession of the field the thermometer went up to 101 degrees. But the south wind quickly rallied, came back and carried the day, driving his superheated but esteemed contemporary inland. Then the thermometer fell to 74 degrees. In the last onslaught the canvas covered peanut stand was rent into smithereens and borne aloft. While all of this conflict of the elements was going on, General Edwin Ward, sat calmly in his Flying Fish Cottage penning the following lines:

Should summer heat or wintry cold your health and comfort touch,
Then think of this place with such unrivaled claims more equitable than all,
We go that way a Eastern folk must say and sure there'll be a rush,
Because they live each day and where even winter's gay, come what may in Southern California.

While the terrific storm was raging without, as we previously stated, General Edwin Ward was seated within his Flying Fish cottage penning these mocking lines. We have heard of such heartless acts before. We have heard how Nebacudnezzer played the bass-viol while Titus sacked Jerusalem, and only in this can we find a parallel case with General Ward's heartlessness. Why should the Flying Fish have been playing on the tum-tum of poesy, while the peanut stand of Long Beach was being riven and wrecked by the cruel wind? Why should the Flying Fish be beckoning with the fin of enticement and promising an equable climate to the Eastern visitor at such a time? Why was the changeable thermometer of Long Beach stultified, derided, belied, by these insinuating strophes from Flying Fish Cottage? We pause for an answer to these several conundrums.

THE dynamite gun, recently constructed in the shops of Ribbon & March, at Jersey City, weighs forty-three tons, and has a barrel sixty feet long. It is fired by compressed air, and carries a projectile five feet in length, a chamber in which is loaded with 180 pounds of dynamite. The dynamite explodes when the projectile strikes. It is said to be the most powerful gun in the world. The TIMES office is to be supplied with one. People with grievances must be provided against.

THE expected strike of railroad employés on the Wabash line and in Gould's southwestern system seems to have been postponed for some unexplained reason. Still it is impending and may be generally inaugurated in a few days. As the head officers of the Knights of Labor have issued an order for it, there must either be a strike, a compromise or a disregard of authority, which would probably disrupt the labor organization.

THE elections which recently took place in Utah resulted in almost a clean sweep for the Mormons. In one county only the Gentiles, or Liberals, elected their officers, and in the entire Territory they secured but one member of the Legislature. The Saints protested against the issuance of certificates to the few Gentiles who were elected. No, it will not do to admit Utah to the Union yet awhile. The Saints are too well up in politics.

THE probability now is that the Santa Barbara Improvement Company will carry out their long-talked-of project, of purchasing and improving the waste estero land to the east of the city, and make of the same as fine a driving park as may be found in Southern California. The TIMES is glad to note each step towards improving and beautifying the already charming little city by the sea.

THE Atlantic system of the Southern Pacific railroad comprises the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio, the Texas and Northwestern, the Louisiana and Western and the Morgan line. This system shows gross earnings of $3,994,000 for the half year lately closed. The net earnings were $1,511,000. This shows "what the traffic will bear."

IT is said that Arthur saved about $75,000 of his salary during his term as President. It seems that he only spent $100,000 during his term of three and a half years. It is known that Hayes was much the more liberal of the two Presidents. He was not ostentatious, however, in his hospitality.

THE citizens of Santa Barbara are enthused over the introduction of a private electric light into one of the business houses of that city. When they see how well the thing works, and what an advance it is over the old system of gas lights, they may be induced to try it on their streets.

THE anarchists of Paris have taken the reported death of Oliver Pain so much to heart that they have threatened to wreak their vengeance on the British Consulate in that city. The Consulate was strongly guarded Wednesday, and the doors were kept closed until evening.

A TELEGRAM from London makes it morally certain that the murderer Maxwell is none other than Hugh Brooks, the wayward son of a farmer at Hyde, England. This was intimated several days ago, but subsequent reports contradicted the theory.

THERE is a general feeling of relief over the break in the intense heat of the few days past. Its attendant hot nights were something new to the experience of the average Californian. It was like a return to the dog days of the East.

HANGING FIRE.

The Big Railroad Strike Not Yet Inaugurated.

WILL THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR OBEY?

It is Believed that They Will in Some Quarters, and in Others Will Not.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

DENVER, Aug. 19.—No action has thus far been taken by the Knights of Labor employes of the Union Pacific upon the St. Louis order. Wabash freight is being handled as usual. Railroad officials claim that the order will be ignored by the Union Pacific Knights.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—The action of the National Executive Committee, Knights of Labor, in issuing a general order to Knights employed upon roads west of the Mississippi, prohibiting the handling or repairing of Wabash rolling stock, has been followed by no serious results to-day. Members of the Wabash Committee, which is in session here, are of opinion that the full force of the order will not be felt by the railroads for several days yet. Telegrams have been received by them from different parts of the State from Branch Assemblies of the national organization endorsing the issuance of the general order, and indicating their intention to stand by it. A meeting of Knights all over the West will be held as soon as the order is received by them, and it is expected that concerted action will be taken by the 21st at the latest.

T. J. Russell, of the committee, says: "Resolutions calling for the impeachment of United States Judges Brewer, Treat and Krekie will be carried out if possible. Congressman Warner and General Aalmer will draw up articles of impeachment, which will be introduced in Congress, and pushed with all the influence which the Knights can command."

Trouble is expected at Kansas City shortly. A number of yard and train men at that point are Knights, and, in obedience to yesterday's order, it is thought that they will refuse to handle Wabash cars, in consequence of which all Wabash freight will be sidetracked.

NO DISTURBANCE OF TRAFFIC YET.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—Nothing has yet been received from any point in the State or beyond of any trouble growing out of yesterday's order of the Knights of Labor. In all likelihood nothing will occur for a day or two, or until the order shall have reached at least the principal points on the roads named in the order.

The National Executive Committee having turned the matter all over to the District Committees with power to act, they will issue no more orders, and started this morning for their homes. They will have some other matters to look after. Members of the Committee representing Knights on the Southwest system, left for their homes last night and will return to explain yesterday's order to the various assemblies. The Wabash Committee will remain here and transact such business as may be necessary. There has been no delay to passenger trains here so far and none seems to be apprehended immediately, although it is understood that the order applies to passenger coaches as well as to freight cars and other rolling stock. So far has there yet been any embargo on freight trains. The government of trains in the Union Depot yards has in no wise been disturbed as yet.

NONE HAVE QUIT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—No employes of the Wabash Railway have quit work as yet in response to the order of the Knights of Labor.

THE BOW OF PROMISE.

Encouraging Report of the Crop Prospects in the South.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—The Baltimore Manufacturers' Record will publish to-morrow nearly two pages of crop reports, covering the whole South from Virginia to Texas, showing that the prospects for crops and the outlook for business in that section are remarkably good. Not only is the acreage in cotton, corn and tobacco crops the largest on record, but the reports are almost unanimous in stating that the yield per acre will be as well as smaller crops, excepting wheat, will greatly exceed the best crops ever before produced. It is also shown that the crops have been made at a lower cost than in any preceding year, and liens on crops for money advanced to farmers are much less than heretofore. Official reports from South Carolina show that, while that State will produce about 4,000,000 bushels more of corn, and probably over 4,000,000 bales of cotton more than last year, the aggregate amount of agricultural liens given to obtain advances upon growing crops is $3,000,000 less than in 1882, notwithstanding the fact that the intervening years 1883 and 1884 were unfavorable crop years. In Georgia the Agricultural Department estimates the corn crop at 40,000,000 bushels, against 31,000,000 bushels last year, and 24,600,000 bushels in 1883. The reports from the whole South are of the most flattering character, some stating that the yield will be the best for years; others, the best for twenty years, and many the best in the history of the country.

It is thought by the United States Commissioner of Agriculture that the increased acreage of corn over last year and the splendid yield which is now assured will give the total crop of about 50,000,000 bushels of corn more than last year. The cotton crop, it is believed, is safe for much the largest yield ever made, and for at least one million bales more than five hundred thousand bales more than last year. Of tobacco, fruits and vegetables, the crops are the largest ever grown in the South, while rice promises a splendid yield, and sugar is a far more satisfactory and profitable crop than in 1884. The outlook for manufacturing in the South is already showing a decided improvement, and prospects throughout the South for the fall and winter trade are reported as unusually good. In the organization of railroad and manufacturing enterprises there is great activity, and the outlook for the industrial interests is particularly promising.

EX-UNION PRISONERS.

Meeting of the National Organization in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—The National Association of ex-Union Prisoners of War began its twelfth annual session to-day.

The following committee on credentials was appointed: Comrades Button, Pipple and Stark. Before this committee concluded its labors, reports of officers were handed in.

In his report President Shanklin said: "There has been no very marked progress in our organization during the past year. Our hopes of extending our organization so far as to include all ex-prisoners, with complete State organizations, has not been fully realized. Much practical work has been accomplished that must produce results in the immediate future. We have now regular chartered associations, either State or local, in fifteen States, as follows: Pennsylvania, nine; Michigan, seven; Ohio, five; Indiana, three; New York, two; Colorado, two; Massachusetts, Connecticut, Illinois, Wisconsin, Maryland, Virginia, California, Kansas and District of Columbia, one each, making a total of thirty-seven. The Treasurer was absent and his place was occupied by Dr. G. A. Gesler, of Fremont, Ohio, and his report showed that $311.16 had been received during last term.

The meeting then adjourned and members were escorted through the United States Mint by comrades of the Pennsylvania State Association.

THE CHOLERA.

A Case Discovered in New York—Reports from Spain and France.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—A dispatch from Health Commissioner Raymond, Brooklyn, warned the sanitary authorities today to be on the lookout for Henry Eyners, 22 years old, sailor of the schooner John Gibson, who had left the vessel now lying at Brooklyn dock sick, with symptoms suspiciously like those of yellow fever. The John Gibson came into port from Cienfugos August 6, and was detained in quarantine till August 15, when all being well on board, she was allowed to come up to her dock. It is reported now that the captain had died on the voyage from fever. Another report has it that there was no sickness on board, which if true, cannot be ascertained at present. Eyners left the ship yesterday, and it was found that he had crossed the city to New York. Search was at once made for him. Before it was begun a citizen had found Eyners lying very ill in Battery Park and had helped him to No. 27 State street, where he fell in the hallway, unable to go further. Here Dr. Conant, Sanitary Inspector, found him and had him at once removed to Riverside Hospital. During the night he developed well-known signs of the dreaded disease. This morning he was removed to quarantine, and the premises in State street were disinfected. Brooklyn Health Officials are looking after the ship and its partly discharged cargo. Health Officers say they do not believe that yellow fever could become epidemic in New York in its present excellent sanitary condition.

IN SPAIN.

MADRID, Aug. 19.—There were 4271 new cases of cholera and 1338 deaths throughout Spain yesterday.

TOULON, Aug. 19.—There are eight cases of cholera in garrison here.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Private reports received here give the number of deaths from cholera in Marseilles at almost double that already announced. A dispatch to Reuter says that the sanitary condition of the city is alarming, and that the epidemic is extending northward.

IN SPAIN.

MADRID, Aug. 20.—The only cleanly persons who have been attacked by the cholera scourge are public officials, who are compelled to visit the hot beds of infection. Many people are returning to the city, which they consider safer than the provinces.

Tuesday's returns show that there were 322 new cases and 150 deaths in the city of Granada; 348 new cases and 125 deaths in the province. Two doctors have died from Madrid to Genoa have died of the disease. Doctor Alto saved fourteen out of fifteen patients in the second stage of the infection by administering an enema of ether. He has been authorized to apply the remedy in the hospitals.

In the fourth race for three horses, three years old and upwards, non-winning allowance, three-quarters of a mile, the starters were Rod, Mira, Navarro, Bald Horset, Minnie Meier and Annie Laidlaw. Navarro was never headed; Minnie Meier second, Bald Hornet third. Time, 1:18¾.

Fifth race, winner to be sold at auction, selling and non-winning allowances, one mile and seventy yards; the starters were Ernest, Radbo, Leroy, Emma Manley and Whiggig. Emma Manley won easily; Leroy second, Ernest third. Time, 1:50¾. The winner was bought in by the owner at the entered price.

AT HARTFORD.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 20.—The $10,000 Hyde race was run to-day, Jay Davis winning it; Adelaide second, Kenilworth third. Seven heats were trotted.

The unfinished 2:23 class race was won by Nutboy; Bittersweet second, and Breeze Medium third.

BOATING.

Courtney and Conley Against Gaudaur and Hosmer.

ALBANY, Aug. 20.—Between 10,000 and 15,000 persons witnessed the double scull race between Courtney and Conley against Gaudaur and Hosmer at Pleasant Island this afternoon. Gaudaur and Hosmer were the favorites two to one. The race was started shortly after 5 o'clock, Gaudaur and Hosmer getting off first. Both crews pulled about thirty strokes a minute. Before a hundred feet had been passed Courtney's tremendous strength was felt, and at twice that distance his boat was a quarter length ahead, the pulling being increased to forty-two strokes a minute, which was maintained to the end. After passing Island Park, Gaudaur and Hosmer put in their best efforts and almost evened up, but at the upper end of the island Courtney and Conley had put clear water between the foreigners and themselves, and the stake-boat both boats sought to make short turns but they had not calculated the strength of the tide and were borne against the stake-boat. Courtney and Conley made a bad foul, and those who could not see the cause of the accident thought it was a short turn. Courtney's oarsman was at his old tricks. There was a cry of "Who sawed the boat!" But Courtney and their friends paid no heed to the water again and sped on. Gaudaur and Hosmer fouled the stake-boat, but only slightly. All along the home-stretch Courtney and Conley had clear water between the boats. Gaudaur and Hosmer made a plucky struggle for a stern race, and when they were a quarter of a mile from the finish, closed up the lead from five to three lengths, but Courtney and Conley would let them come no nearer, and this distance was preserved to the finish. Courtney received an enthusiastic ovation. The time, considering the tide and the turning of the stake boat, was phenomenal, beating all previous records by a generous margin, and was 17:57¼.

It was immediately after the race Gaudaur and Hosmer entered a protest, claiming that the boat of Courtney and Conley had been assisted around the stake-boat by the occupants of the latter. The referee declined to allow the claim.

A DOUBLE SCULL CHALLENGE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Hanlan and Lee to-day issued a challenge to the winners of the double-scull match between Courtney and Conley and Hosmer and Gaudaur, for a three-mile race for $1000 a side and the double-scull championship of the world, time and place to be mutually agreed upon.

KU-KLUX AGAIN.

Brutalities Perpetrated by Them at Dalton, Ga.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Aug. 20.—There is intense excitement at Dalton, Ga., this morning over a visit paid that place by a band of Ku-Klux last night. There were fifty men, well disguised, who entered the city shortly after midnight. They visited a house of ill-fame owned by Mrs. Jane Kidd, and the woman and six of her boarders were dragged from their beds and each one given fifty lashes. Some of the women are in a critical condition, and may die. The band then went to the house of Tom Carver, a noted thief, and beat him to death, after torturing him for half an hour. Another negro man named Armstead was so terribly beaten that he will die. The mob then notified several persons to leave the place at once or they would be killed. No clue can be had as to the identity of the band.

Sacramento Steamers Grounded.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 19.—The steamers Modoc and Apache are both grounded today upon the bar just below this city, the Modoc having been there all night. It is almost a certainty that navigation will be entirely suspended in a few days. Mayor Brown is to call a meeting of citizens to consider the subject of keeping open the channel, as the closing of the river will deprive Sacramento of cheap freight, and interfere seriously with the bringing of State Fair exhibits.

What the Traffic Will Bear.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Condensed statements of the Atlantic system of the Southern Pacific Company show earnings as follows: The total gross earnings of four lines, including Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio, Texas and Northwestern, Louisiana and Western, and Morgan line, were $3,994,000, being an increase over last year. The net earnings for the same time were $1,511,000, an increase of $567,000.

WASHINGTON.

What a Canada Judge Says About the Hibbs Case.

LOOKING AFTER MONEY ORDER ACCOUNTS

Some Facts About the Coinage and Transmission of Silver Dollars—Other Department News.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The full text of the decision of Judge Crease, of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, in the Hibbs extradition case, has been received at the Postoffice Department. In his preamble Judge Crease says: "It is a case of considerable importance because the complaint is for an offense which has no exact parallel in the history of extradition cases, and the danger that would arise of repetitions, should it not prove to be an extradition offense, will be easily understood. When it is considered that there are some 15,000 postmasters having the same facilities as the prisoner in the issuance of money orders in the United States, and if one such can, with impunity, unblushingly confess to having abused his trust by embezzling $30,000 in three days, and then avoid all punishment by merely skipping across an imaginary boundary line, it is easy to understand the mischief such an example to even a few of that great army of money masters might do." Judge Crease pays a high compliment to Solicitor General Goode and to the officers who traced Hibbs and brought about his arrest. He concludes as follows: "While I cannot conclude without acknowledging the assistance rendered to the court by Solicitor General Goode, I trust it will not be inappropriate if I echo the words of the learned Judge in the Windsor case. While I deal with the law as it is, I may wish that the government of the United States may see its advantage in adding to the catalogue of extradition crimes all those offenses which have been for some time pressed upon its attention from this side of the line, and I do so with the object of saving endless time and expense to both countries. It would be especially welcome to those magistrates on both sides, whose duty it is under the Washington Treaty to carry out the law."

LOOKING CLOSELY AFTER MONEY ORDER POSTMASTERS.

The chiefs of the Money Order Office and Finance Division, and Special Agents of the Postoffice Department, have been instructed to call immediate attention of the Postmaster-General or First Assistant Postmaster-General to all cases of delinquency in money-order matters on the part of postmasters which may come to their notice by reports of special agents or otherwise. A special packet of lemon-colored papers is to be prepared for such cases, the color being designed to call attention to the enclosure from among the mass of papers which reach the desk of the Postmaster-General and his assistants. Heretofore cases of this kind have been allowed to take a routine course, going, with other correspondence, to correspondence clerks of the office and, as a result, many postmasters who have failed to keep up their deposits have been able to retain their offices after their delinquencies have been reported upon.

A MATTER OF SILVER DOLLARS.

A prominent official of the Treasury Department said to-day in regard to the complaint of bankers and mining men of Salt Lake City against the recent order regulating the distribution of silver dollars, that the order in question was made necessary by the great expense attending the transportation of that coin from one point to another. As an illustration, he said it would cost over eight dollars to ship one thousand silver dollars from San Francisco to Salt Lake City, and as much more to ship it back, which expense would deprive the government of the entire profit realized from the coinage. The difficulty at Salt Lake in the official's opinion, would be averted if bankers were willing to accept fractional silver coin instead of standard dollars. The former would be delivered to them at their places of business without delay and without expense to them, and would answer the purposes of standard dollars. He said, further, that the efforts of the present administration to promote the circulation of silver coin is meeting with great success, especially in the case of subsidiary coin, which, until the present movement began, was wholly unavailable, and a dead weight.

LABOR TROUBLES.

A Free Fight Among Pennsylvania Coal Miners.

SHENANDOAH, Aug. 20.—The miners and laborers employed at Lentz, Lilly & Co's colliery here were recently notified that a five per cent. reduction in all wages would go into effect at once. The men held a meeting and resolved not to accept the reduction Tuesday. Hungarians and Polanders were put to work at the mine, and although the striking miners watched their movements closely, no disturbance occurred until late in the evening, when the foreigners were attacked. The excitement brought to the scene crowds of persons, and in less than ten minutes the fight became general, and all were participated in by one hundred men and boys. All sorts of missiles were used, including stones, clubs and fence-rails. From fifteen to twenty-five persons were seriously, and several Hungarians were fatally injured. As soon as one man became injured he was carried away and the battle was renewed. The Hungarians fought desperately and showed a determination not to leave the place. Yesterday morning they returned to the colliery and went to work and have not been since interfered with. Another encounter is expected, however.

SHIPWRECKED.

An English Ship Foundered Off Point Reyes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—It is reported that the British ship Haddingtonshire, from Astoria, Ogn., for Liverpool, loaded with salmon and flour, went ashore this morning off Point Reyes, fourteen miles north of here, and eighteen lives were lost.

The Merchants' Exchange has just received the following particulars of the loss of the British ship Haddingtonshire: The vessel left Astoria July 6 and got down as far as the equator when she struck a heavy gale which so disabled her as to oblige the captain to put back to San Francisco for repairs. In that gale she lost four seamen and her chronometer. When off this port last night she encountered a dense fog, and, while groping about, ran on the rocks near Point Reyes at three o'clock this morning. The vessel and cargo are a total wreck. All on board, except one sailor and the cabin boy, were drowned. The cargo consisted of 12,000 barrels of flour, valued at $50,000, and 17,700 cases of salmon, valued at $54,000. The Haddingtonshire was a new vessel, launched at Glasgow in October, 1884, and owned by J. A. Shepherd, of Glasgow.

SMALLPOX.

The Pest Has a Strong Foothold in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—Thirty-two new cases of smallpox were reported here today. Some of the affected persons reside on the principal West End streets. One case was reported in the lodge of Raven's Crag, the residence of the late Sir Hugh Allan. The theaters have all been closed. Disinfectants are to be used in the watering of the streets. The provincial government has been petitioned for the use of the exhibition buildings for a smallpox hospital. At a meeting of the boot and shoe manufacturers to-day, a petition was drawn up asking the city council to prohibit meetings, circuses, etc., to hold a new smallpox hospital, and to prevent health officers from riding on street cars. The manufacturers said that fall orders from the West were being canceled on account of the epidemic in the city.

Think They've Caught Him.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20.—Information has been received here of the arrest in Mexico of a man believed to be Aufdemordt, the absconding Sub-Treasurer's clerk from this city. A detective has gone to identify him.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—A dispatch was received here to-day confirming the statement that Aufdemordt, the New Orleans defaulting Sub-Treasury clerk, was arrested to-day at Monterey, Mexico. No details were given.

American Bar Association.

SARATOGA, Aug. 19.—The American Bar Association assembled here to-day in its eighth annual session. The annual address was made by the President, Hon. John W. Stevenson, of Kentucky. He spoke in favor of advancing the science of independent jurisprudence, and promoting a thorough administration of justice, and urged the necessity of uniformity in legislation throughout the several States. Members of the General Council, one from each State, were chosen. A resolution was passed for the appointment of a commissioner to report what action, if any, the association should take in view of the contingent necessity for legislation for the relief of the Supreme Court of the United States from its overplus of business.

At the evening session David Dudley Field submitted a paper on "Judicial Delays and Uncertainties," and a paper by Reuben C. Benton, of Minnesota, on "The Distinction between the Legislative and Judicial Function," was read.

A Dead Defaulter.

FORT WORTH, TEX., Aug. 19.—A startling rumor spread through this city to-day to the effect that the late John Nichols, Vice-President of the City National Bank, whose sudden death occurred last Monday, was a defaulter to a large amount. Immediately after his demise the officers of the City National Bank called a meeting of all other bankers in the city to investigate the affair. This committee report that they find the late Vice-President Nichols a defaulter to the amount of about $30,000, and that the committee consider the bank sound. Nichols' funeral yesterday was the largest ever witnessed in this city. The body will probably be sent from the mines to the Chesapeake tracks.

The Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—The supposed priest, "Father Konories," by name, who was arrested at Cochin, on the Malabar coast, on suspicion of being a spy, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment. During his examination he admitted that he had been in Egypt and was acquainted with Arabi Pasha, but he refused to answer further questions. Several witnesses have left here for Cochin, to try to identify him. His appearance tallies with Sir Wylin Barring's description of him.

Salt Lake Elections.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 20.—The canvass in the recent election in Utah was almost completed to-day. The Mormons elect the Legislature by a large majority and all county officers except in one county. The Liberals elect one member of the Lower House and the county and county officers in the same county. A protest was filed by the Mormons against the issue of certificates of election to the Liberal candidates. It was overruled by the canvassing board.

Buried in Quicksilver.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—A rich maiden lady named Mentray recently disappeared. The female servant, named Mercier, told the neighbors that she had gone into a Convent, leaving her to manage the property. The servant brought her own relatives to the house to live. Suspicions being aroused, the police entered the house and discovered the body buried in quicklime in the garden. The servant and her companions tried to escape but were arrested.

MORE OF THE PEARCE-FRANCIS SCANDAL.

The Pall Mall Gazette Gets a Letter from a Young Lady—The Cased Man Wants Satisfaction.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The Pearce-Francis scandal has assumed a new phase. Pearce shows that attempts to blackmail him were made by the family of his alleged victim; Miss Francis, who admits that she was intimate with Pearce. She has written the following remarkable letter to the Pall Mall Gazette: "In the account in your paper of what happened between my father and Pearce, it was stated that Pearce had seduced me. Now, you do not consider or care how much such statements affect me or my name, and it is most cruel to me. It is no well-known thing that, for some time lately, I have been exposing all wrongs done to young girls, that I feel sure, from what has been said about me, that every one would class me with those unhappy girls, so I ask you in simple justice to print this letter in your paper. In the first place I am nearly twenty-five years old, so that when I left my father's house last January I was twenty-four. Pearce had nothing at all to do with my leaving, and what you said about Pearce having seduced me is quite false. I am not bound, at my age, to tell you why I preferred to leave my father's house. For some time now I have been living in the family of a gentleman as companion to his wife, but, after the public mention you have made of me and the cruel wrong you have done me, I may have to leave, and if I do, I cannot see, at this moment, what is to become of me. Surely, then, it is only fair and just to me that you should insert this letter."

The London newspapers generally denounced the Pall Mall Gazette for refusing to publish the letter of Miss A. M. Francis exonerating Mr. Pearce from the charge of having enticed her from home. The solicitor for Pearce publishes a letter, in which he says that he has been instructed by his client to refrain from prosecuting the girl's father on a charge of common assault and battery, for beating he inflicted on Mr. Pearce, the other day, on the alleged ground of his betrayal and cruelty to the young lady. Because of the trivial penalty which would attend a conviction, but to prosecute him on a far graver charge. The solicitor says the public to suspend judgment on the whole case until its merits be developed by the courts.

OHIO DEMOCRATS.

Hoadley and Warwick for Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—The convention was called to order at 10:15 and the committee on permanent organization reported.

Hon. John Follett was chosen permanent chairman. The principal feature of a short speech made by Follett was a strong endorsement of the present administration. He complimented the convention on the favorable auspices under which it had met, with the national government Democratic and the State promisingly so.

The committee on credentials reported all delegations full and no contest.

The committee on resolutions reported to the convention at this point by the introduction of W. A. Miles of Columbus, member of the committee appointed at the late meeting of the State Temperance Union to memorialize the State Conventions of the two parties for a resubmission of the second section of the constitutional prohibitory amendment. The second amendment provides for closing saloons on Sunday, and a general remedy of existing evils from the drink traffic. A majority report was created in the Convention by a glass of water being handed to Miles while he was reading the report. It was referred to the Committee on Resolutions under the rules.

The Committee on Resolutions not being ready to report, the Convention proceeded to the nomination of candidate for Governor. Congressman Geo. W. Geddes offered the name of Governor Hoadley, in quite a lengthy speech. He concluded his eloquent effort by moving a suspension of the rules and the nomination of Hoadley by acclamation, which was received with long applause. General Michael Ryan, of Cincinnati, seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously, with the exception of a few voices from Hamilton county.

W. V. Marquis, of Logan county, in a short speech, presented the name of John G. Warwick, of Massillonf for re-nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. The motion was immediately put and carried unanimously, amid great applause.

Charles D. Martin was nominated for Supreme Judge. On the third ballot Gibson Otherton was nominated for the vacancy on the Supreme bench, vice Okey, deceased. The ticket was completed by the nomination of Peter Brady for Treasurer, James Lawrence for Attorney-General, and Henry Weills for member of the Board of Public Works. All were nominated by acclamation.

The platform was read at 2:30 p. m., and several sections were received with applause, and all was unanimously adopted. The convention then adjourned.

PLATFORM.

First — The Democracy of Ohio in convention assembled, congratulate the country upon the election and inauguration of the Democratic candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States. These fortunate events, and the wise administration that has followed, have already dispelled the illusion that Democratic success is inconsistent with the business interests of the country, or perilous to the rights of freedmen. A revival of prosperity, and the increase in the value of property already begun, have demonstrated the beneficence of Democratic principles even before any session of Congress has enabled the country to realize the full fruition of their application by legislation.

Second—We congratulate President Cleveland and his Cabinet on the auspicious beginning they have made in necessary reforms of the government and heartily endorse their administration.

Third—We approve the measures taken by the Democratic Congress for preventing the acquisition of unearned lands by railroad companies, and the Democratic President in firmly holding public lands for public uses and in preventing their unlawful occupation.

Fourth—We reaffirm the platform of principles adopted by the Democratic National Convention held at Chicago in 1884.

Fifth—We commend the administration of Governor Hoadley and the work of the Sixty-sixth General Assembly as wise, honest and economical.

Sixth—We especially commend the fidelity of the Democratic members of the Sixty-sixth General Assembly to the pledges of the party in favor of licensing the traffic in intoxicating liquors, and we denounce the fraud and hypocrisy of the Republicans in defeating this wise measure of reform.

The Democratic party is, as it always has been, opposed to sumptuary legislation and unequal taxation in any form, private conduct, consistent with public welfare and the rights of others, and of regulating the liquor traffic and providing against the evils resulting therefrom, by a judicious and properly graded license system. Under the present Constitution of Ohio such a system is property and is required to be measured by its money value. We therefore are in favor of a Constitutional Amendment which shall permit such a system, and we promise its submission for adoption by the people if the necessary three-fifths of each branch of the next General Assembly be composed of Democrats.

The Democratic party favors arbitration as the best means of settling differences between laborers and employers.

We favor the establishment of an intermediate penitentiary for the reform of prisoners not belonging to the criminal classes; the adoption of the pending constitutional amendment, changing the date of the annual State, county and congressional elections to November.

We mourn the death of General Grant. As citizens of his native State, without distinction of party, we sorrow at his loss and cherish the memory of his modest and heroic character and his great deeds as among our proudest public possessions. We sympathize with his bereaved widow and children, and we treasure the hope that his last words, urging harmony and good will between the sections, may be so taken to heart by his fellow citizens that sectional alienation and hate may be things of the past.

IOWA DEMOCRACY.

The Platform Adopted by the Cedar Rapids Convention.

CEDAR RAPIDS., Aug. 19.—The Democratic State convention reassembled at 2, and after a lively debate on the amendment to increase the liquor license to $500 as a minimum, passed the following resolutions:

The Democratic party of Iowa announces the following platform of principles;

We declare in favor of the repeal of the prohibitory liquor law of the State of Iowa as unjust and hostile to temperance.

We pledge ourselves to favor and use our best endeavors for the enactment of a license law of $250, with power to increase the same from $250 to $1000, as may be deemed best for public interest in various localities of the State, as expressed by the legally constituted authorities of such localities.

While we oppose all monopolies, we recognize the right and duty of the government to give the greatest possible liberty to every citizen consistent with the rights of every other citizen, and to believe in, and announce as one of the fundamental principles of the Democratic party, that labor is the foundation of wealth and that the laborer should be the special object of care of the government.

That, in Governor Cleveland the country has found a man of solid judgment, conscientious integrity, unswerving fidelity, patriotism and courage equal to that of Andrew Jackson. In his efforts for economy, for exposure of criminal acts of the Republican party and its officers for his unflinching firmness in dealing with the cattle kings, for his stand in behalf of reform, his efforts to restore public lands to settlers, for his efforts to enforce law against polygamy and for his constant watchfulness of the public welfare, he deserves to receive unswerving support.

The first formal ballot for Governor resulted in the nomination of Hon. Chas. E. Whiting, of Monona county.

A spirited debate resulted upon the nomination of Hon. E. H. Gillette, of Des Moines. Greenback candidate, for Lieutenant-Governor. Adjourned.

Mississippi Democrats.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 19.—The State Democratic Convention to nominate a State ticket met to-day. Governor Lowry and Lieutenant-Governor Sharkey were re-nominated. No other nominations were made this evening.

The following resolution, offered by W. H. Hardy, of Meridian, was adopted by a rising vote:

Resolved, That the Democratic party of Mississippi in convention assembled, hereby expresses their appreciation of the honor conferred by President Cleveland upon the party and upon the State by the appointment to a Cabinet position of its illustrious patriot, honored and beloved by Mississippi, Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar; and

Resolved, That in the policy of President Cleveland, so far as disclosed, we see not only nothing to condemn, but everything to inspire confidence in his wisdom, integrity and statesmanship, and we hereby express our unqualified indorsement of the same.

The convention then adjourned until to-morrow morning.

H. H. Adler, who for the past year and a half has resided in our city, is shortly going to his home, San Francisco, to remain.

The three daughters of R. W. Waterman, owner of the Waterman mines, left this city for Chicago yesterday, via the Atlantic and Pacific and Chicago and Alton railroads.

E. A. Edwards planned to start yesterday with the Mathes excursion, his destination being Chicago. He got left, however, and had to go up on a special at 5 o'clock, catching his companions at Monrovia.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs Ida Roberts, daughter of Barney Carter, attempted to commit suicide by taking laudanum. She is out of danger. Despondency is stated as the cause for the rash act.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Burning Question—Again.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: I have been surprised at the responses to inquiries in the matter of cremation. Numbers of those addressed are outspoken in its favor. I do not wish to trespass on your space to an unseemly extent, but should be glad to see in print the following letter from Rev. Dr. Fay. I have two others, but cannot ask space for their publication. Their receipt, however, has suggested the idea which I wish to advance, namely, that every one who believes in cremation to the extent of being willing that his or her body should be subjected to the process, send a postal-card with name and address to me at the Nadeau Block, or to Griffin & Schroeder, No. 4 West First street, or Heinszman's drug-store. This will ensure a large number of names at once, and materially hasten the time of calling a meeting of those whose names have been given. Let those who read this notice please comply.

O. B. BIRD.

DR. FAY'S LETTER.

Dear Dr. Bird: I, too, am deeply interested in cremation. I believe it to be not only a sanitary measure of great importance to cities and large towns, but also a reform that when seen in its true light, will bring unspeakable relief to many a delicate and sensitive nature. It has been the business of my life to elucidate and emphasize the soul's hope of immortality; and though we can readily understand what David meant when he said that "even in the Valley of the Shadow of Death he would fear no evil," yet who that has reflected upon the process of decomposition that goes on in the grave, has not experienced unspeakable recoil from the very thought of it, though all the glories of the Resurrection are just beyond? There is a great difference between the fear of death and the repulsion of the grave. Who would willingly die and be buried as sea? or, as in disasters on the modern navy, after a terrible battle in midsummer, be thrown into a trench with scores already a putrid mass, and simply covered with dirt? Is not the thought revolting? Wholly irrespective of the life immortal, a person may therefore wish to have his body disposed of in the manner that would least shock his own refined sensibilities. In England, where land is expensive, and millions are poor, one grave is made to serve the purpose of a family—the first who dies being buried from twelve to fifteen feet below the surface, the next immediately above that, and so on. And in connection with interments there, I have witnessed that which made me feel that any means by which the slow and repulsive process of decomposition of the grave would be obviated, would be a great improvement upon the present system. Incomparably do I prefer to have my cast-off body at once resolved into its native dust, than as my friends think best, rather than have it laid in a cemetery—the most lonely spot on earth—and where the hour after the last sod is placed, the tombstones; the thoughtless tramp upon my resting-place and comment upon my epitaph; and the heavy storms that would flood the country would make me a very lonely man indeed. Connected with my lowly bed; and after a few years, even then, cupidity might require me to be exhumed and carted and dumped elsewhere. How many times have I been done! No! Let the purifying flames, instead of loathsome worms, have my flesh when I can no longer use it. Very sincerely,

ELI FAY.

CITY AND COUNTRY

PERSONAL.

Saturday, August 15.

Brigadier General John B. Mathews is taking up a tired system by passing his nights at Santa Monica.

R. Melrose, editor of the Anaheim Gazette, sailed on the Santa Rosa for San Francisco yesterday, accompanied by his daughter.

Judge James A. Gibson, of the Superior Court of San Bernardino county, returned with his family yesterday from a pleasant vacation at Santa Monica.

Professor L. L. Van Slyke, of the University of Michigan, is briefly visiting friends here, on his way to the Sandwich Islands, where he has accepted a situation as government chemist. He was a classmate of City Attorney McKinley.

Sunday, August 16.

Chas. N. Stamps, a well-known vineyardist of Orange, is in the city for a stay of a few days.

Hon. J. De Barth Shorb, having returned from the north, went on to his home at San Marino yesterday.

R. L. McLain, agent here of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, returned yesterday from a business trip to San Francisco.

I. J. Mathes, who recently returned from the East with an excursion party, is in poor health. His father-in-law, Mr. Strohm, will make the next trip.

J. H. Woodward, the wicked and circumstirring "Jayhawker" of the Cincinnati Inquirer, now a railroad official with headquarters in San Francisco, is in the city, but plans to go north again this week.

Tuesday, August 18.

Asa A. Clark, of Toledo, Ohio, has come to Los Angeles with his family to remain.

Richard O'Neill, the great cattle man, dropped in from the north on Sunday.

J. L. Truslow, General Passenger Agent of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad, is at the St. Elmo.

Wednesday, August 19.

Prof. J. N. Kerns and wife, of Santa Ana, homeward-bound from their northern wedding tour, are at the St. Charles.

Geo. C. Bryant, of Riverside, the father of the Banning Colony, came to Los Angeles with his family and will spend a week at Santa Monica.

Prof. L. D. Smith, Superintendent of city schools, came back from the mountains about three weeks ago, with an attack of typhoid fever. He got on well until the present aggravated hot spell, which has completely prostrated him. His condition is now deemed extremely critical. His wife returned from the East, Sunday, to care for him.

Thursday, August 20.

MRS. O. W. Childs is enjoying life at Lake Tahoe.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, is at the St. Elmo. He left his wife to rusticate in Compton.

Frank Emerson, of the Southern Pacific Railroad freight office, is getting around after a long siege with typhoid fever.

L. E. Mosher and wife took the noon train for San Francisco yesterday. They plan to be absent a week or ten days.

John L. Truslow, General Passenger Agent of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, returned to San Francisco yesterday.

Frank Van Vranken and wife, who have been spending their honeymoon here, returned to their home, in Oakland, yesterday. They are greatly enamored of Los Angeles and find it unspeakably delightful, they may come back here for good. Mr. Van Vranken is chief clerk in the office of the General Passenger and Ticket Agent, S. P. R. R., at San Francisco.

Friday, August 21.

Colonel H. H. Markham has gone to San Francisco, and will be absent for a week or ten days.

Logan Thinks of a History.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Sun's Washington special says: General Logan said to-day that he had in view, and might write at some future time, a history of the war from the stand-point of a volunteer officer. Two of the histories which we now have, those of Grant and Sherman, were written by West Pointers. He might write the story as a volunteer to volunteers.

Damages for Slander.

HOLLISTER, Cal., Aug. 20.—After seven days of trial the Portuguese Union, of this place, got a verdict against Joaquin Silva Serpa, a prominent Portuguese, for $500 and costs. The suit was brought for $5000, for slander. It will be appealed.

The Spanish King's Displeasure.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The Figaro states that the King of Spain, in order to show his displeasure at the assumption of Germany of the control of the Caroline Islands, has resigned the honorary colonelcy of the regiment of German Uhlans, which was some time ago bestowed upon him.

Too Much Land for Navigation.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 20. — The steamer Apache, from San Francisco grounded again yesterday near this city. She discharged a part of her load upon the bank, came to the city and discharged the balance; then returned to the bar to re-load and bring up the remainder.

Stage Robbed.

STOCKTON, Aug. 20 —The Sonora and Milton stage was stopped yesterday evening five miles from Milton by highwaymen. The driver threw out the express box, but it contained nothing of value. A posse left Milton this afternoon in pursuit of the robbers.

A Thunder Storm.

YREKA, Cal., Aug 19.—There was a heavy thunderstorm at Little Shasta this morning. Lightning struck Terwilliger's barn, burning 150 tons of hay and two buggies. The animals were all saved. The same storm visited Yreka at 4 a. m., without damage or rain.

Have Not Raised the Fares.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—No progress was made to-day in negotiations now pending between passenger agents of the trunk lines regarding higher rates of fare. During the day several agents called at Commissioner Fink's office, but no regular meeting was held.

SEATTLE, W. T., Aug. 20.—Senator Harrison, of Indiana, who arrived here to-day, says that he will soon return East and will spend a week in Ohio speaking in behalf of Forsker.

BRIEFS.

Thursday, August 20.

Geo. H. Bundy, father-in-law of Assistant City Attorney F. P. Kelly, got overboard and then took a cold bath. He is shelved for repairs.

The Rockaway Restaurant, on San Fernando street, was broken into, Tuesday night. The burglars got all there was in the cash-drawer—50 cents.

Hong Sa, one of the Chinamen fined $10 by the Mayor for being in a tan game, and whose case was carried up by Colonel Howard as a test, was discharged yesterday by Judge Cheney.

The Santa Monica Hotel is crowded with guests. The rumor which circulated about town yesterday that the hotel and bath houses were burned down, was wholly without foundation.

The outer door of the safe at Geo. T. Hanley & Co.'s spice mills, San Fernando street, was blown open by burglars at 3:30 yesterday morning. The explosion wakened the neighborhood, and the robbers decamped without booty.

Train 20 last night made the first passage over seven miles of new track—including a 600-foot tunnel—between Castaic and Summer. This was made to lift the road from the river-bed, where it was in constant danger of washouts.

The notorious Anita Sanchez was arrested by Officer Demousset, last evening, all on account of her child again. Her father had taken the infant, and she assailed him with tongue and fist. She is out on bail. Charges, battery and disturbing the peace.

Track-layers begin this morning on the cable-road trenches on the heavy grades back of Bunker Hill avenue. The cutting down of the two big hills and filling Hope street valley has been an enormous undertaking, but it is at last accomplished.

Ah Tee, the Chinaman arrested Tuesday night for attempt to rape the eight-year-old daughter of Emmanuel Casselo, was up before Justice Austin yesterday. He was held in $2500 bail for examination at 10 a. m., August 28.

Next Sunday will be a big day at Santa Monica, with the Eagle Corps and G. A. R. encampments, etc., and train arrangements will be made accordingly. A train will go from here at 9:30, besides the regular one at 10 a. m. Returning, one will leave Santa Monica at the regular time, 4:30 p. m., and the other at 10 p. m.

The brush fires back of the Santa Monica mountains are raging very furiously. Cinders fell all over the city yesterday; and in the afternoon the smoke filled the sky in a solid bank north of the city, entirely shutting out the mountains. These fires probably have something to do with the extreme hot weather.

Friday, August 21.

The total assessment of the city this year is $16,274,488.

One death in the city yesterday, and two in the country.

The Warner Brush & Crosby excursion arrived in good order from the East yesterday afternoon.

A good many have gone down to attend the Methodist camp-meeting, which began yesterday at Long Beach.

A cable road to Crescenta Cañada is now proposed. The office of the promoters is at 112 North Spring street.

The annual State camp-meeting of the Christian church, now in progress at Santa Ana, will conclude August 31st.

The high wind along the coast Wednesday uprooted three tents at Long Beach, and made itself felt elsewhere.

Candelaro Martinez, of Azusa, recently taken from jail on a writ of habeas corpus, was returned to jail yesterday on the same charge—assault to murder.

Coroner McFarland has received an anonymous note, charging an infanticide at Laguna. If the writer will send in his name in confidence, the Coroner will investigate.

Two trains, aggregating sixty cars, of through freight from New York passed north yesterday. This freight goes from New York to New Orleans by steamer, and thence to San Francisco by rail, arriving in fourteen days from New York.

The District camp meeting began yesterday with a sermon from Rev. Chas. Snelling, of Riverside. The discourse was appropriate to the occasion. In the evening a prayer and praise service was held. The meeting opens with very encouraging prospects.

With highwaymen and burglars as active as they have been in this vicinity for a week, the need of caution is evident. These fellows will not "be shy" until some attempted victims perforate a few of them with button-holes of the .44 caliber variety.

A little excitement and less blaze was occasioned at the county court-house, yesterday afternoon, by a minor stunt. Some one tossed it from the superior Court window; it caught in some of the mourning decorations of the building, and burned several yards of black bombazine before the blaze was extinguished.

PASSENGER COACHES.

Description of the New Cars of the S. P. R. R.

On Wednesday a reporter of the TIMES inspected the new coaches which have just arrived for the San Gabriel Valley railroad. The passenger coach is about the same size as those of the Southern Pacific railroad, but in furniture and "fixings" it is far superior to any other cars on our local roads. The seats are all made of close woven cane, and are provided with a patent arrangement, which will add much to the comfort of passengers. The seating capacity is fifty-six. The interior of the car is finished with cherry, with nickel-plated trimmings for small hangings. The windows are 24x36 in size, filling the car with light, and giving passengers a good opportunity to inspect the scenery along the road. Each car is provided with a water cooler in the finishing, and able to stop it almost instantly, even when detached from the rest of the train. The outside of the passenger coaches is a Pullman finish. The other coach which has arrived is a combination car, the front compartment to be used for mail and express purposes, and the rear compartment to be upper story is to be occupied as a residence.

The car is fitted up with all the comforts of the regular passenger coach. The locomotives are all provided with ingeniously contrived spark-arresters, by which cinders and sparks are kept entirely extinguished, thus preventing cinders from flying through the air.

Two more passenger coaches have been ordered and one combination car. It is expected that the road will be completed to Pasadena by the 26th or 27th of this month.

City Auditor's Estimate of the Tax-Levy.

City Auditor W. W. Robinson presented to the Council Wednesday his statement and estimate of the tax-levy of 1885-86, based on the condition of the funds August 1st, 1885.

The funded debt of the city, August 1st, 1885, amounted to $255,000, with interest amounting yearly to $17,850.

The assessment for this year is $16,-111,744. His calculation for the necessary levy is as follows:

	Cts. on $100	Will Produce
1 and S. Fund, 1870	2.5	$ 4,176 48
R. R. L. and S. Fund, 1877	.6	1,171 76
1, 1, 1, and S. Fund, 1877	9.9	14,500 52
G, 1, 1 and S. Fund, 1878	2.5	3,696 57
Bond Fund, 1881	2.5	3,861 75
Cash Fund	70.0	108,224 90
Fire Department Fund	19.7	30,457 20
Gas Fund	13.2	18,862 56
Street Sprinkling Fund	6.0	9,268 85
General Sewer Fund	3.5	5,665 85
Common School Fund	10.0	15,460 70
Common School Fund	2.0	2,971 40
Library Fund	2.6	4,019 78
Salary Fund	1.5	2,346 77
Gen'l Imp. Bond Fund	2.0	2,929 40
	154.6	$237,304 31
	164.6	252,315 61

The two estimates are to cover the case of the school fund. In case the General School property report of District Attorney Holton submitted as follows:

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County—GENTLEMEN: In compliance with your instructions I did, at 10 o'clock a. m. this day, in front of the office of the City Clerk of the city of Los Angeles, at public auction there had, bid the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars ($75,000) in behalf of said county of Los Angeles for what is known as the "Central School Property" in said city. That thereupon, that being the highest and best bid therefor, said property was struck off and sold to Los Angeles county for said sum of $75,000. That said sale was made with the understanding that said city should have the right to remove all improvements therefrom. That the sum of $12,000 should be paid to-day; $25,000 more within six months and the balance within one year, and that a deed should be executed and delivered upon payment of the entire sum.

Respectfully,

GEO. M. HOLTON,
District Attorney.

On motion of Supervisor Lindley the County Auditor was instructed to draw a warrant upon the Courthouse and Jail Fund for the sum of $12,000 in favor of J. C. Kays, City Treasurer, on account of purchase of Central School property.

Report of Horticultural Commission filed.

In the matter of Howland road, proposition of Gordon Howland read and proposition rejected.

On motion Hill street, in American Colony, was declared a public highway.

On motion a new school district, known as Pico school district, was formed out of Rancho and Los Nietos school districts.

On petition of A. M. Peck and others viewers were appointed for opening of Cypress avenue, in Ballona road district.

In the matter of assessment of Fotimos property for the purpose of maintaining a fire department, Board met as a Board of Equalization for that purpose, and proceeded to examine assessment roll of said town.

In the matter of fixing rates of tolls for wharf at South Santa Monica. Ordered that Juan Bernard be allowed to charge and collect 10c per day for each person going upon said wharf, at the pleasure of the Board.

On motion the Auditor was authorized to transfer $10 from the General Road Fund to the Los Nietos Road Fund.

On motion the County Surveyor was allowed $15 per month for office rent on and after September 1st.

Adjourned until Friday.

EAST LOS ANGELES.

A Budget of News from Across the River.

Mr. Pollard has nearly completed the spacious two-story building which he has been erecting near the corner of Downey Avenue and Truman street. This, together with the building of like dimensions which was built by Mr. Pollard, makes one of the finest business blocks in this part of the town. The lower portion is done off for stores, one of which will be occupied about August 20th by Mr. Baker as a grocery. The upper story is to be occupied as a residence.

Messrs. Sheldon & Pierce, late from Texas, have gone into the manufacture of pure home-made candy on the corner of Downey avenue and Truman street. They will supply both the wholesale and retail trade.

McGraw Brothers are building a shop in the rear of their ice cream parlors to be used in the manufacture of candy.

Pierce Brothers have opened a real estate and insurance office next to their livery stable.

Clement & Gay, who have been doing business for some time past on Aliso street, are erecting a commodious two-story building on Downey avenue, where they will move their furniture and picture business into their new store about August 25th.

Mrs. Peter Potts has been visiting friends at Tustin City during the past week.

Mr. William Pierce has been spending a few weeks at Santa Monica. The ocean air and bathing has greatly improved his health.

Mrs. Charles Eulles, Mrs. Dr. Shoemaker and daughter, in company with several of their friends from the west side, have gone to Catalina Island to rest and recuperate for a few weeks.

Mr. Noah Palmer will leave for a two-week's visit to his old home the first of the present week.

One of the most urgent demands and almost a necessity of this rapidly growing suburb is a good hotel. It could be filled as soon as completed. We must have a hotel here in the near future. What enterprising hotel man will see and improve this fine opportunity?

WELLINGTON.

ORANGES GALORE.

Statement of Shipments from Southern California in 1885.

Through the kindness of L. E. Mosher, agent here of the S. P. R. R., and A. J. Hechtman, chief clerk in his office, the TIMES is enabled to present the following interesting figures relative to the orange shipments from Southern California during the past year. There were forwarded to through Eastern points, from Los Angeles, Riverside and intermediate points, 22,172,390 pounds of oranges, over 1100 carloads of 20,000 pounds each. About half of these were from Riverside and vicinity. There were also 300 carloads extra shipped locally, or 6,000,000 pounds more, making a total of 28,072,390 pounds, in 1403 3-5 cars. There are on an average 300 boxes to the car, which gives a total of 421,080 boxes. A fair average of the number of oranges in a box is 150; and it follows that Southern California has contributed sixty-three million, one hundred and sixty-two thousand oranges to consumers abroad, after supplying the demands of her own large population.

HALL'S HAUL.

A Nervy Daylight Footpad Arrested by a Citizen.

Friday, August 21.]

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning, as A. W. Hall was walking along Alameda street, coming to Upper Main, he saw a tough-looking citizen robbing a drunken man on the sidewalk about opposite the Capital Mills. The victim was feebly protesting as the footpad went through his pockets; and the footpad squared off and hit the victim a vicious blow in the face, knocking him against the fence. Then Hall loomed up, grabbed the robber, and took him and the robbed both in tow. The robber had the stolen pocket-book on him. At the plaza Mr. Hall got reinforcements in the shape of Officer Berry. The robber, who was locked up, gives the name of John Scott. This robbery on a frequented street by broad daylight was surprisingly audacious; and Mr. Hall's amateur arrest came in just right.

Mojave River Valley.

The Calico Print speaks as follows of the lands of the Mojave river valley, in the vicinity of Hesperia—the colony-to-be in which Major Bonebrake and other Angelenos are interested:

The agricultural region north of the San Bernardino mountains, when compared with the great desert surrounding it, is but a small fraction, yet when considered without such comparison, is considerable in proportion. The fertile land, as far as has been tested, lies along the tortuous Mojave river, and at points where the water flows above the surface, consists of thousands of acres of good land that requires irrigation and cultivation to make them valuable. The most favorable localities at present are at Oro Grande, Burcham's Waterman, Grapevine, Fish Ponds, Hawley's and Camp Cady. The California Southern Railroad passes through the most extensive portion of these lands, which will result in their settlement and thorough cultivation. This portion of the Mojave desert will, ere long, blossom as the rose. The nearest locality to the mines which has received some cultivation is at Grape Vine and Fish Ponds. Near the former some four and a half miles of irrigation ditches have been dug, but the settlers have devoted more attention to mines and other enterprises than cultivating their lands, hence, results have been small. At Fish Ponds, A. Marsh has a good-sized vegetable garden and melon patch, from which he supplies Calico and Daggett with melons and vegetables, and does a thriving business. He has considerable pasture land, besides a large area of soil that will produce luxuriantly when properly cultivated. This section, as well as all the fertile land along the Mojave river, will be extensively cultivated when the California Southern is completed, and cheap transportation is provided to numerous mining camps.

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Proceedings of the Meeting Held Last Night.

Friday August 21.]

The regular meeting of the Los Angeles Manufacturing Association was held in the call-room of the Produce Exchange last evening. Vice-President Geo. T. Hanly in the chair, and present eighteen others.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Sutherland Hutton, for committee to investigate the matter of a pipe-line from the Pico oil regions to this city, presented a report showing what a pipe-line had done for Cleveland, O., as an example of what similar enterprises might do for this city.

A pipe-line 100 miles long was run from Cleveland to the oil regions, through which a wealth of crude petroleum poured into Cleveland, followed by a long train of manufacturing establishments dependent upon this product. Now the amount of capital invested there in the enterprise is over $27,000,000; and the aggregate value of petroleum products $43,705,218. This state of affairs is due to the enterprise and foresight in securing a pipe-line before New York or Philadelphia. Los Angeles, standing as it does on the border of a petroleum belt greater in extent than that of Pennsylvania, with flowing wells phenomenal for their lasting qualities, needs but to follow Cleveland's example to take rank as a manufacturing city of great wealth. It is to be regretted that the pipe-line now building from Summerland, a mere venture, was not brought to San Pedro through this city, necessitating the erection of refineries here. We hope before many months, however, to be able to report that the work has been done and the desired enterprise will be put in operation. Received and filed, and committee continued.

Messrs. Harris, Farrin and G. L. Stearns, for committee to find how much waterpower can be utilized from the zanjas without lessening their irrigating availability, reported that they could no; find any such power to be available. Neither the City Engineer nor the Zanjero could tell. L. Winter and Col. Threlkeld also spoke briefly to the same subject, mentioning the value of the zanjas. Which it had been decided by the Council, two years ago, to close. Col. Threlkeld moved to continue the committee and add Councilman Hamilton. Carried.

E. A. Edwards, of the committee on fuel, was unavoidably absent, and the report of his committee was passed till next meeting.

Committee on new members was continued.

Mr. Threlkeld move dappointment of committee of one to wait on Council and Mayor, and invite them to attend the next meeting of the Association to discuss the subject of manufactures, and particularly the question of water power from the zanjas. Carried. Committee, Col. Threlkeld.

John Hall spoke of needed industries here. He mentioned a fine quality of kaolin here, from which the best quality of cement pipes could be made, not to mention chinaware; and dwelt on the need of glass-making of all sorts; linseed and flax growing for bills; beet-growing for sugar; silk-raising; packing and sauce making; book giving; bill of sale signed "Chas. C. Abbott." The property avaits identification at the police office; but there is little doubt whence it came. "Abbott" is in the city jail. His accomplices, if he had any—and no doubt he had—have not yet been caught. Mr. Kent offers $100 reward for the recovery of his property, and $50 for the conviction of the purloiners thereof.

ORANGE.

DISAPPOINTED FRUIT SHIPPERS.

Correspondence of the TIMES.]

ORANGE, Aug. 2.—Weather too warm for comfort.

The trouble about getting fruit cars greatly disappoints shippers, and sometimes keeps them with all their hired men waiting for days for the expected car. This state of things must of necessity be a great drawback to the business, and unfortunately at present there seems to be no remedy.

Mr. Joe Barger, near the mill, has just lost a fine cow with the black-leg. It is supposed that the disease was caught in the much dry feed.

Jacob Weber is putting up a good business house in town, and the building is already rented.

Mr. Gardner, a stranger, is building a fine residence on a place recently purchased, just north of Dr. McCoy's.

Mr. Fields, from Massachusetts, has just commenced what is to be the finest barn in this part of the country. His ranch, lately purchased from Mr. Sibley, lies south of the Orange depot.

BONDS IT IS!

Monday's Waterloo for the Old Fogies and the Herald.

THE VOTE OVER FOUR TO ONE FOR BONDS.

The Progressive and Public Spirited Element on Top—"Bonds, Yes," 1617; "Bonds, No," 378.

Monday, August 17th, has come and gone; and its sunset saw scored a glorious victory for the progressive element of Los Angeles. The question of voting 10 issue bonds for municipal improvements to the sum of $245,000 had been fully explained and only submitted to the citizens by Council; and the answer startled even the most sanguine friends of the bonds. The popular verdict in favor of the proposed improvements and the proposed method of securing such improvements, was given with no dubious tone. It was outspoken, emphatic, overwhelming. The few egotistic Rip Van Winkles who opposed this as all other steps of progress, had their breath taken away.

The polls opened with early morning, and polling went on quietly all day. It was not expected to get out a heavy vote, so many voters are out of town at the various seaside, mountain or spring resorts. Had all these resorters been at home, the majority in favor of the bonds would have been even more overwhelming, for they are largely of the class which voted almost without exception for the bonds. The vote was a good one to be called out on a non-political occasion.

At sunset the polls were closed, and counting began. It was already well known, however, which way the election had gone, and the figures were awaited merely as showing the exact size of the majority for the bonds. By 8:45 the last ballots had been counted.

THE RESULT OF THE VOTE.

Following is the result by wards, the tickets being cast "Bonds, yes," "Bonds, no."

Ward.	Yes.	No.
First	280	67
Second	437	108
Third	457	91
Fourth	308	67
Fifth	165	45
Totals	1617	378
Total vote cast	1995
Necessary to carry bonds (two-thirds)	1330
Excess over two-thirds in favor	287
Majority in favor of bonds	1239

The proportion of citizens in favor of the bonds is therefore shown to be between 4¼ and 4½ to every one against them.

WHOA, EMMA!

Miseries of a Party Who Sailed in a Tub.

Tuesday, August 18.]

The TIMES has noted the misfortunes of the party which left San Pedro for Catalina, a week ago to-day, on the tub-built two-masted schooner Emma. S. B. Conroy, of Wilmington, whose wife was one of the ill-starred party, stated to a TIMES reporter last night that he has entered suit for $1500 for damages. Mr. Conroy tells a straight story which corresponds with what the reporter learns outside, only fuller in detail. The story of the experience of those twenty-nine passengers as told by Mr. Conroy and members of the party (the latter by a short) is a painful one. They left Catalina on the Emma Tuesday; and at 9 o'clock the same night were within a mile of Catalina. The two sailors, who are said to be very competent, advised that the anchor be dropped, so that they could get in in the morning. But the Captain ordered them below, and devoted himself to his dulcinea. In the morning the Emma had drifted far away, and she kept on drifting. When the news reached San Pedro that she had not arrived at Catalina, the steamer Warrior, the yacht Ida and the Hazel were sent out to the rescue. The Judge found the Emma at last, 28 miles away from Timms's landing, Catalina. The passengers—out of the 29 there were but 7 men, the rest being women and children—were in a pitiable plight, until finally taken off by fishermen's boats and carried to Timms's landing. They were obliged to pay from $2 to $3 apiece for the service. Previous to this they had been obliged to get water and provisions from the island by boats, the water being rowed nine miles. They had to pay for this, too. All were sick from the wretched experience. When they at last reached Timms's landing, they had been seventy-four hours afloat, and were on the time on short rations of food and water. They are all at the island now, refusing to have anything more to do with Captain Hurst or the Emma. They will return to-day on the Hazel. It is declared that Captain Hurst is a lubber, discourteous and avaricious; and that his boat not only lacks all conveniences of decency, but is unseaworthy. Among the passengers on the disastrous excursion were: Mrs. J. T. O'Hara, Mrs. J. N. Fox, Mrs. S. B. Conroy, Wm. Hawks, wife and son, Mrs. S. J. Moore and daughter, Mrs. W. Fowler, J. H. Heffner, wife and daughter.

Capt. Hurst called at the TIMES office yesterday (his boat having been towed into San Pedro by the Hazel), and said that he was becalmed but finally got out; and that the Emma is a good boat. The weight of evidence thus far is a good deal against him and his craft; but if the Captain will bring in a testimonial from his late passengers that they had a pleasant trip and were well treated, the TIMES will take pleasure in publishing it.

TRAGEDY AT SANTA MONICA.

Death of Daniel T. Mooney by His Own Pistol.

A tragedy, which the Coroner's inquest puts down as accidental, took place near Santa Monica at about 9 o'clock Monday morning. Daniel T. Mooney, of this city, and also of the Mooney Mansion, Santa Monica, had started from the latter place to drive with his wife to this city. About a mile and a half this side of Santa Monica a 38-caliber Colt's six-shooter was discharged behind Mr. Mooney's back, the ball entered his heart, and instantaneous death resulted. Mrs. Mooney's statement is that he was sitting on the front seat of the carriage and she on the back seat. The revolver was in his pocket, where it inconvenienced him, and he took it out and passed it back to her, saying: "Here, Mollie, take this." She was arranging her skirts, and before she could rise and take the revolver the wheel went into a chuck-hole, the pistol fell and was discharged. Mooney sank forward. She threw her arm around his neck and said, "Dan, are you hurt?" He said only, "Oh, Mollie!" and never spoke more. The horses began to run, and holding the dead man with one hand, she caught the lines and directed the team with the other. Meeting W. R. Wren on the way, she got him to drive her back to Santa Monica. She did not know that her husband was dead until they reached the house. This is her story, and her evidence before the coroner's jury. Coroner McFarland went down at once and held an inquest in the afternoon. The next witness after Mrs. Mooney was W. R. Wren, who testified that while out riding with his son he met Mrs. Mooney about one and one-quarter miles from Santa Monica. She was holding her husband with one hand and driving with the other. Mooney was down between the seat and the dashboard. He appeared to witness to be dead. At Mrs. Mooney's request, witness drove her to Santa Monica. He didn't see the pistol in the carriage.

Walter Wren corroborated his father's evidence.

J. F. H. Brown testified that when the team got back to his house he went out and found Mooney dead. Said so, and Mrs. Mooney cried "Oh, God!" They had been married about eight years, and so far as witness knew Mooney was a very devoted husband. Never knew of any trouble between them.

Dr. E. C. Folsom described the wound and the revolver.

After examining these witnesses, and without a post-mortem examination, the jury returned the following verdict: That Daniel T. Mooney, 41 years of age and a native of Maine, came to his death August 17, 1885, by reason of accidental shooting in back; the bullet entering the back on the left side, 2¼ inches below the scapula and entering the heart; the pistol having dropped from his own hand. The jury was as follows: J. W. Scott, G. B. Adams, Guy C. Manville, H. L. Jones, E. Emerson, J. M. Towner, M. Bennett.

Mrs. Mooney is generally deemed a very handsome woman. Her maiden name was Mary A. Green. Neither she nor her husband have enjoyed a strictly first-class reputation.

THE "BREECHES BIBLE."

A Copy of a Rare Edition of the Seventeenth Century.

Peter Taylor, who resides near Park station, exhibited at the TIMES office Monday a great curiosity in the shape of a "Breeches Bible," published in Edinburgh in 1615, during the reign of King James the First. The nick-name applied to this edition was given on account of the use of the word "breeches" for "aprons" in chapter 3, verse 7 of the Book of Genesis. The verse reads as follows in the Breeches Bible:

"Then the eyes of them both were opened and they knew that they were naked, and they sewed figgetree leaves together and made themselves breeches."

Copies of this edition of the bible are exceedingly rare and are valued at a very high figure by antiquarians. Mr. Taylor has been offered one hundred guineas for the copy in his possession, and considers it worth from $700 to $1000. In it are to be found the names of his ancestors who lived in East Lothian and Midlothian, Scotland. Among the signatures of this biblical record are the following, dating a century ago: Elizabeth Showard, Peter Taylor and five children, Peter Taylor, Janet Brown, Wm. Taylor, August 3, 1789; George Taylor, July 21, 1791; Peter Taylor, October 30, 1793; Margaret Taylor, April 12, 1796; Gressell Taylor, August 20, 1798, Janet Taylor, 1804.

The old Bible is well printed and was bound in a very substantial manner. In the front there is a poem made up from passages of scripture. It is given as an interesting specimen of the quaint style of the seventeenth century.

Here is the spring where waters flow
To Quench our heat of sinne,
Here is the Tree where Truth doth grow,
To leade our lives therein.
Here is the Judge that ends the strife,
When mens desires faile,
Here is the Bread that feeds the life
That death cannot assaile.
The Tidings of Salvation deere
Comes to our Eares from hence,
The Fortresse of our faith is here,
And Shield of our defence.
Then let us not like the beggar that hath
A Pearl at his desire,
And takes more pleasure of the trough
And wallowing in the mire
Reade not this book in any case
But with a single eye,
Reade not but first desire God's grace
To Understand thereby,
Pray still in faith with this respect
To fructify therein,
That knowledge may bring this effect
To mortify the sinne
Then happy then in all thy life
What so to thee befalles
You doubly happy shalt thou be
When God by death thee calls.

A RICH COUNTY.

Statement of Auditor Montano for 1885.

The following statement was filed by County Auditor Montano yesterday. The statement is made up from the assessment book of County Assessor Bilderrain, "after correction or equalization by the Board of Supervisors, exclusive of apportionment of railroads by the State Board of Equalization." The notable and surprising thing about this statement is the fact that the total assessment is twelve hundred thousand dollars less than the figures of last year, notwithstanding the well-known advance in property values in both city and county.

AUDITOR'S STATEMENT

Of the Values of Property in the County of Los Angeles for the year 1885.

Value of Real Estate other than City and Town Lots	$13,681,716
Value of City and Town Lots	6,367,780
Value of all above Real Estate	$19,849,496
Value of Improvements on Real Estate other than City and Town Lots	2,770,657
Value of Improvements on City and Town Lots	4,356,172
Value of all Improvements	$ 7,126,829
Total Value of Real Estate, Lots and Improvements	$27,018,325
Value of Personal Property other than Money	5,630,881
Value of Money	174,397

Total Value after equalization by County Board of Equalization of all of the above Property | $32,813,543

The Number of acres of Land is 1,445,675.

(The value apportioned by State Board of Equalization to the County of assessment of franchise, roadway, etc., of railroads is estimated at $2,500,000. The action of the State Board must be awaited before the exact figures can be given.—ED. TIMES.)

For the year 1884:

Real Estate and Improvements City	$11,509,145

SAVAGE FOOTPADS.

Held Up and Terribly Beaten Almost at His Own Door.

Tuesday, August 18.]

John Martin is a shoemaker, having his shop at 6 South Spring street, in the little row of stores on the Nadeau Block. His home is on the south side of Jefferson street, three doors beyond Wesley avenue. Last evening, between 9 and 10 o'clock, he and his wife were homeward bound on the last car. Leaving the car at the corner of Wesley avenue, they walked along Jefferson street toward their home. Just in front of the residence of G. D. Compton, next their own house, they saw two men step out from under the pepper trees ahead, and walk toward them. Reaching them, the fellows stepped one to each side; and then suddenly ordered Mr. Martin to throw up his hands. "What for?" said he, thinking the affair a joke. Then the bigger of the two men took a revolver (presumably a "bull-dog") in his hand, and began to pound Mr. Martin over the head. Mrs. Martin, who is a plucky little woman, didn't faint, but screamed for help, which came at once from Mr. Compton's. Meantime the robbers had gone through Mr. Martin's pockets, getting a knife and a few cents in change, but missing his watch. Then they fled. Martin reeled and fell, and was carried into his own house. The police were notified by telephone, and Officer McMahon made a long but fruitless search for the highwaymen. Dr. Poaps and a TIMES reporter drove out at 11 p. m., and the Doctor dressed Martin's wound, an ugly bruise and scalp wound at the base of the brain, the cut reaching to the skull. The injury is a painful but not dangerous one, if erysipelas does not set in.

Eagle Corps Encampment.

The Eagle Corps did not and will not go to the State Encampment at Santa Cruz, but will have a little encampment of its own at Santa Monica, beginning Thursday, August 20th, and lasting until Saturday, August 29th. A detail will go down by the morning train, Thursday, to prepare the encampment, and the rest of the Corps will follow on the evening train. All are relieved to find that they won't have to march down.

Grant Monument.

Hon. T. D. Mott has been appointed a director for Los Angeles county of the Grant Monument Association of the State. It is proposed to issue souvenir certificates at one dollar each, making the subscriber a member of the Association. The monument is to be erected at the State capital.

BRIEFS.

Tuesday, August 18.

Passenger cars Nos. 1 and 2, Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railroad, arrived Sunday. They are of handsome modern build.

A row-boat attempting to come in with the breakers at Long Beach, yesterday morning, capsized, and the five inmates were well wet. No damage resultant.

Charles Allen, of Pasadena, went out beyond the breakers at Long Beach, Sunday afternoon, and becoming exhausted, couldn't get back. He was rescued and resuscitated.

Pedro Llanes, the boy who tried to poison his employer at Sepulveda station, had his preliminary examination in Justice Banney's court yesterday, and was held for trial.

Tom Turner, a wayfarer, was picked up by the trainmen yesterday on the desert between Dry Camp and Indio, and taken to the latter place. He was dying of heat, and is probably dead ere this.

Three hundred tickets to Santa Monica were sold at the new depot, Sunday, and 700 at the old depot. Saturday was the biggest week day the little road has ever known, $315 worth of tickets being sold.

Abram Scott, colored steward at the Depot Hotel, was arrested at Mojave Sunday, on telegrams from the Sheriff's office. Scott's wife, who charges that he has transferred his affections to "a paller gal," swore out the warrant, charging him with carrying off $170 in money, a watch and ring. He will be brought here to-day.

Ah On, Chinaman, aged 28 years, committed suicide by hanging at Monte Vista, Sunday. No cause known. He was brought to this city and an inquest held yesterday at Poast & Orr's by Coroner McFarland and the following jury: M. K. Barretto, T. J. Bedford, J. Rogers, E. Neitzke, F. A. Yorba, B. F. Orr.

Wednesday, August 19.

Wm. Evans, convicted of robbery, was sent up by Judge Cheney yesterday to four years in San Quentin.

The Native Sons of the Golden West will celebrate Admission Day (September 9th) by a social hop at Nadeau Hall.

Wm. Devere, who shot at Ed. W. Kinney some weeks ago, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Cheney to $100 or 100 days.

An active gang of burglars, footpads and sneak-thieves are working the city for all it is worth. Citizens should be on their guard.

The Board of Education report $41.50 worth of windows broken in the Central School building by the firing of the salutes, August 8.

The Supervisors meet to-morrow to consummate the purchase of the Central School property for a courthouse site, at a cost of $75,000.

Wm. Burke, the tough who assaulted Officer Jackson on Alameda street, some weeks ago, was yesterday sentenced to two months in the county jail.

An attempt was made yesterday morning to burglarize the store of John Lovell, corner of Main street and Morse alley. The cracksman had removed a pane of glass, when he was frightened off by a butcher who slept next door.

Abraham Scott, colored steward at the Depot Hotel, who was arrested at Mojave by Deputy Sheriff Will Hammel, arrived here yesterday, and is now out on bonds. The charge of grand larceny is preferred against him by his wife.

The hardworking and efficient committee, which carried through so creditably the Grant funeral services here, find themselves obliged to ask for $178 more to meet unforeseen expenses. They should have no trouble in raising that amount.

Ah Wing was captured by Officer Gilbert at 5:30 p. m. yesterday, on Date street, and locked up. He is charged with the crime of "contributing to the delinquency" of a twelve-year-old white girl. He ran like a rabbit, and when caught, tried to bribe the officer not to lock him up.

Ah On, the Chinaman found hanging at Monte Vista, and in whose case the coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide, is alleged to have had $250 on him when he left this city a few days before. It was not about him when he was found.

A big brush fire raged yesterday on the Malibu rancho, north of Santa Monica. At sunset the effect caused by the smoke was marvelously beautiful. On the still air a great dun column arose from the plain, and then drifted along above the mountains in a broad streamer, red-purple in the sunset glow.

Wm. H. Workman asks Council for a cattle road over the Elysian Hills. Beginning at the junction of First and Spring streets, east on First to Aliso avenue, along Aliso avenue and its extension to Evergreen Cemetery. The Board of Public Works will report on his petition, probably next Tuesday.

Stirred up by the Herald's defamatory editorials and locals, Councilman Hamilton wants the charge that he is interested in foisting "rotten cement pipe" upon the city investigated. He has caused the proper committees of Council to be instructed to investigate the cement pipe in the sewers, zanjas and culverts, and see if it is good or not.

LOOK OUT,

And Be Careful to Go When You Are Called.

Wednesday, August 19.]

The Courts of the city have been greatly obstructed by the general refusal of business men to sit on juries. A venire of twenty-five or thirty names would be given the Constable, who would duly serve the subpœnas. Anywhere from ten to fifteen of the summoned would appear. Assistant District Attorney Knox has made up his mind to stop this abuse; and Justice Rainey stands in with him on the proposition. Yesterday the Constable was sent out to subpœna a large list of jurors, of whom only about one-third came. Then the Justice issued attachments against the rest, had them all brought in, and fined them $1 each for contempt of Court. Among them was a well-known merchant and ex-President of Council, who was finally let off, owing to imperfect service of the subpœna. There was a great deal of kicking at the reform, but it is a good and long-needed one, and will be kept up. It will expedite court business and partly do away with the "scrub" juries which so often disgrace courts.

A similar reminder was also given in Justice Rainey's court in the afternoon. A case had been continued to 1 p. m., and the jurors were warned to be on time. The rest were, but one came in twenty minutes late, saying he couldn't leave his store sooner. He was fined $3 for contempt.

TO WOOL-GROWERS.

An Important Circular from the President of the National Association.

To the Wool-growers of the United States: It is now apparent that a determined effort to revise the tariff laws of the United States will be made at the next session of Congress. It is understood that the object of those who will make this effort is a large reduction of revenue, with an abandonment of the principle of protection, but with such incidental protection as can be given to those industries and pursuits that obtain the attention and favor of Congress.

The theory that all raw material should be on the free list, now urged by some who, in disguise, are for free trade, and the neglect to adequately protect producers of wool, which has attended all past economic legislation, affords reason for profound apprehension by those who represent this important agricultural pursuit.

In order to keep such persons informed as to matters affecting their interests, and to enable them hereafter to act harmoniously among themselves and unitedly with other industries that agree with their views, I desire to obtain the names and postoffice address of each officer of all State and county wool-growing associations, and also the names and postoffice address of wool-growers in each State who desire information on this subject, the object being to distribute from time to time, among such persons, information calculated to keep wool-growers informed as to the progress of all efforts affecting their interests.

The aid of all officers of State and county associations, and all other friends of the cause, is respectfully and earnestly solicited in procuring the desired names.

Letters conveying such names may be addressed to the undersigned, care of Edward Young, No. 119 Maryland avenue, N. E., Washington, D. C.

Yours truly, C. DELANO,
Pres. National Wool-Growers' Ass'n.

MR. WELLS'S LITTLE SERMONS

XII.

On Sunday, August 16th, before the sermon, Mr. Wells said:

As usual, I am to preach the first sermon, although this time some one else will preach the second.

I want to announce beforehand that I am to talk to the boys and girls, because they are scattered here and there in every part of the church. And I want them all to hear, as much as though they were crowded together on the front seats.

Don't forget the text when you get home. It is this: "Thy gentleness hath made me great."

David said that. Do you think it is true? Can gentleness make anybody great? Does not gentleness weaken folks? Look at the fields, with their grass and flowers, their great trees, with strong trunks and wide-spread branches. What lifted these from the earth, and gave them their beauty and strength? Was it the strong wind, the hurricane or tornado? No; it was the sunshine, the rain and the gentle dew.

In England is a great bridge, called Britannia bridge, made of iron, something like a stove-pipe, only it is square instead of round, and is many feet high and wide. When heavy loads past over this bridge they cannot bend it, because it is so strong. But if the soft sunshine falls on it for one hour, the iron expands, and the great bridge is moved from its line as a hundred tons weight could not move it. Did you know the sunshine was so strong?

I have in my yard a tree, a beautiful little camphor tree. By and by it will be a fine large tree. What will make it large? Can a storm do it, so that I can sit under it and enjoy the shade of it at all. Over on the other side of the yard is a sweet little rosebud. Can a horse pull the leaves apart, and make a rose flower of it? Can my little, wee fingers, spread them out and make a rose? No; neither a horse nor a man can do it.

But the sun shines upon it, the dew falls softly upon the leaves, and it opens little by little, until we see its heart, so rich and creamy and beautiful.

Now, just what the sun does for the flower, is what David said God did for him. God shone upon him gently, like the sun, and made him patient, and good, and kind—for this is the only true greatness. If God were not patient with us, we could not learn to be patient and kind, and patient with each other. He says, "I love you," and by and by love and goodness spring up in our hearts; just as the sunshine and dew rests on the ground and calls to the little seeds under the surface. And by and by they hear the call and come up. And then the sun paints their leaves as no artist can paint them, and pours out beauty and fragrance beyond anything our hands can do.

Now, God is patient with us just as the sun is patient with the seed. By and by our hearts respond and we form good habits, and good habits become good character, and good character makes a good man or woman.

And then, when God is done with us here, he calls us up and makes us kings and queens—it says kings, but we know that it means kings and queens—and we live with Him—Him who has made us great by his gentleness.

From Old Santa Monica.

Correspondence of the TIMES.]

OLD SANTA MONICA, Aug. 18.—Last Saturday evening the campers here set ablaze a huge bonefire on the shore of the Pacific ocean, in honor of the Grand Army of the Republic, now camped at Santa Monica, and then retired to the grove of sycamores where they had a grand old time with song and dance and hilarious amusements. At that meeting a committee of campers was appointed to wait on the Grand Army of the Republic, in camp at Santa Monica, and invite them to the Wednesday evening social camp-fire bivouac. Two days ago a number of the campers met and had a good time on the occasion of the return of Mr. James Lemon and family to their home near Los Angeles.

I learn that a sensation was caused on the beach at Santa Monica last Sunday morning by a man entering the water with a monkey on his shoulder which was metamorphosed into a frog on coming out of the surf. CAMPER.

Moving On.

A. H. Lighthall, whom the TIMES has mentioned in connection with the proposed cable road to Pasadena, is getting things in shape. With J. C. Daly, George E. Dickson, J. De Barth Shorb, J. M. Tiernan, F. A. Gibson, and F. W. Wood, he has filed articles of incorporation of the Los Angeles Tramway Company. Capital stock, $250,000, in 25,000 shares. Principal place of business, Los Angeles. Objects to use the Lighthall systems of cable road in San Diego, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Kern, Tulare, Fresno and Merced counties.

Preparing to Build the Raymond Hotel.

Messrs. Simons & Hubbell have received the contract to furnish 150,000 brick for the Raymond Hotel. Work will be commenced on the great structure October 1.

REGULARS V. IRREGULARS.

Something About Patent Medicine Advertising Doctors.

HOW THEY SWARM ON THE PACIFIC COAST

The Extent of Newspaper Advertising Done by Them—Los Angeles Has No Dearth of "Medicine Men"—Report from the "Regulars."

The report of the Committee on Public Hygiene and State Medicine, made to the Medical Society of the State of California at its last annual session, held in San Francisco, by M. M. Chipman, M. D., of San Francisco, chairman of the committee, has been received at this office. Following are extracts which show the attitude of the "regulars" in the profession towards los otros:

PATENT MEDICINES AND MEDICAL ADVERTISING.

In examining into the subject of medical advertising, I have collected copies of 244 different newspapers published in California, and in other States and Territories of this coast. There is no other industry which is as extensively and universally advertised in this country as that of patent medicines; and none other, having the same standing before the law and in the moral estimation of the public, in which there is as much misrepresentation persistently practised. The newspapers are liberally patronized, these nostrums being the leading subjects, judging from the space occupied, of many of the country journals; signs and placards are made conspicuously prevalent; fences and vacant walls utilized, and circulars and hand-bills in endless variety distributed in private, and posted and distributed in all public places, wherever people are in the habit of dwelling, passing or sojourning. The style of these advertisements is too well known to require comment; the ingenuity displayed to attract attention being only equaled by the extravagant virtues and healing power attributed to each special compound. That this unlimited prevalence of patent medicines is a great evil, there can be no doubt; by promoting a too frequent resort to medication by the class who use them for every little indisposition which arises; by using medicines of which, because of their secret character, the therapeutic properties are unknown, and their application uncertain; by inducing the use of strong medicines where the constitutional conditions are such that only mild remedies can be borne, or where the alimentary condition is such that they prove irritating, and result in serious and permanent injury; and frequently when the patient, not understanding his condition and not knowing what is required, but having a hope, from the wide by advertised application of patent remedies, that his case can be hit by something, doses away with one after another, thereby aggravating the disease from which he is suffering, and perhaps brings on other diseased conditions.

The following sample exhibits the character of the business of certain card publishers:

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, etc., I will send a recipe that will cure you, free of charge. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send self-addressed envelope to Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York.

The above is constantly inserted in over one hundred newspapers of the Pacific Coast alone. The credulous sufferer addresses the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, and in due time receives the following, accompanied with a pamphlet containing a plausible fiction of extraordinary suffering on account of his own criminal errors; of missionary labors rendered inefficient because of his weakened condition; and of the discovery, in the valley of the Amazon, of the great remedy, "Corrasea Compound," by which he was restored to health; and of his devotion ever since to the sacred duty of sending the recipe to sufferers from like complaints. And the circular adds: "If you can't get the medicine put up to your satisfaction by your druggist, I will send it to you at cost, which is just three dollars and thirty-six cents, and the postage fourteen cents, making three dollars and a half in all, according to law. I am anxious that any druggist shall put up the compound, as the names given are not in the Dispensatory, or the articles of which it is composed kept under those names in the drug stores; and, usually this cute advertiser will be able to lure on his victim until pay for several packages has been obtained, and perhaps until he has published a book or something else besides. And when the unfortunate discovers that he has been humbugged, the private nature of his dealings saves him much against exposing the imposture; and three secure from publicity, the game of this pretended reverend continues to flourish. I have evidence that this same trick, worked under different forms and names, is being made the means of extensive business by several parties who are engaged in it.

MAGNETIC HEALERS.

Of the number of score of magnetic healers always holding forth in San Francisco, there has usually been one who by his extensive advertising and marvelous pretensions, has assumed the leading position for the time being. Aborn formerly held that conspicuous position for some three or four years, during which time he occupied extensive parlors on Kearny street, and for papers were made to abound with the self-published fame of his wonderful performances; and for awhile, it is said, he was remitting money to an Eastern city for investment. But gradually the field became worked out, the gullible element had been surfeited, and the great magician quietly left the city, and soon after the State.

After Aborn, the powerful McLennan seized the magnetic sceptre, and great was his exhibit in the newspapers, and his gaudy signs, representing the corruscations of magnetic force, displayed on Stockton and Geary streets, were doubtless captivating to the ignorant and weak-minded. For eight years this man carried on the magnetic business in San Francisco, during which time, according to his own statements, he centred the healing force upon his willing subjects a hundred thousand times—enough, had the miraculous emanations equaled the advertisements, to have restored to health every man, woman and child within the precincts of the city. But, as in the case of his predecessor, his demonstrations ceased to draw, and he was compelled to leave the scene of his past success.

In McLennan's successors, the self-styled Dra. Darrin, the gauzy mantle appears to have fallen on worthy shoulders, the line of whose career has been very much like the preceding. The same grasping method of exacting pay in advance; long columns of self-laudation, and unconscious assumption of miraculous power; and apparently the same evanescent effects, begetting an after consciousness in the minds of their victims and the accumulations of their satisfied beneficiaries, the printers and press owners.

Los Angeles at present has its full share of medical advertisers and magnetic healers. M. Hilton Williams occupies a half column in which to proclaim his skill and insert certificates of cure. P. B. Myers makes use of a double half column. His proclamation commences with, "I bring glad tidings. Health restored and life prolonged to suffering humanity by the most wonderful agents ever discovered." One Kellogg, in a full column, gives out that he is the wonder, the world-renowned magnetic healer.

In San Francisco there are five nonclientiates who claim to practice medicine, who greatly outstrip their brethren of the order in the immensity of their advertising enterprises. These men distribute their audacious and ridiculous claims of personal experience and skill, and the infallible properties of their nostrums, by circulars and pamphlets and in newspaper advertisements, in the most considerable towns throughout the several States and Territories comprising the Pacific Coast region, extending from British Columbia to Mexico, and from the Pacific ocean to the Rocky Mountains. As to the newspaper patronage of this quintet, I have clipped out of and hold in my possession their peculiar effusions, from the following number for each, respectively: Dr. G. P. Allen advertises in 92 different sheets, published in eight States and Territories; Dr. A. E. Mintie 123 different papers; C. D. Salsfield in 107 papers; the men who assume the name of the deceased chemist, Liebig, in 102; and the so-called Dr. Spinney in 64 only, the latter making up for the deficiency, in that respect, by the employment of men and boys in street distribution of circulars. Dr. P. B. McNulty bids for the private disease practice, in the style of his class, in fourteen dailies, weeklies and theater programmes. Dr. McNulty's Hahnemann College diploma, being dated in 1882, does not accord with the assertion of a life-time devoted to the study of those diseases. Dr. J. F. Gibbon, a licentiate of the Eclectic Board of Examiners, has several effusive, self-laudatory advertisements, mostly inserted in country papers, which are clearly in violation of the code, and very different from the simple and concise card announcements generally—and I might say everywhere, with exceptions noted—used by licentiates of medicine in this State.

Quick Work.

The buildings of the Sierra Madre Vintage Company (Crank and Brigdon), which were commenced two weeks ago, with the promise of being completed in a month, are already done; that is, so far as external appearances go. It may be necessary to supply some of the inside work, and a coat of paint or two will doubtless be forthcoming. But there is no doubt that the winery will be in perfect readiness for this year's vintage. The buildings are of frame, and the larger—probably designed for the crushers and the fermenting vats—is built in the form of a cross. This winery will, no doubt, work up a large share of the foothills grapes of the county, and there is good reason to hope that a superior wine may be the outcome.

Grave Educational Problems.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: The framers of the article on education in the present organic law of California doubtless thought they were doing great deeds for the advancement of local self-government. In the olden days when questions for the teachers' examinations went forth from the office of the State Superintendent to all parts of the State, and when with the office of the State Board of Education were adopted the text books that must be purchased by every public school in the State, those offices, it is true, became hotbeds in the hands of county and local authorities, and sought to diminish the intensity of book seller competition by spreading it thin over the whole State. But it was thought, perhaps, that if the centers of interest were sixty instead of one the violence of attack might be so weakened that educational honesty, reinforced by the strength of the average sensible granger, might be able to withstand the inducements to favoritism. But evidently the State was not satisfied; or, perhaps, from feelings of disgust that succeeded its bellifference to the ill-considered newspaper clamor. At any rate, by recent amendment the State has cut itself off for the future from both advantages and the benefits of book competition. It has taken upon itself the work of compiling, copyrighting, publishing and marketing the books for its armies of school children. The educational amendment which the State may exclaim, in Antonio's words in "How I caught it, found it, or came by it, What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born, I am to learn."

Certainly not one voter in a hundred knew what he was doing when he voted "yes" last November, as the political managers had printed his ballot for him. But the thing is done now, and the result is another specimen of what the State is, and of parents ought to be. May the deliberations of the State Board of Education be presided over by more than human wisdom, and the prayer of teachers throughout the State is, and of parents ought to be. May the deliberations of the State Board of Education be presided over by more than human wisdom, and the books they manufacture be free from bobbles.

But the outcome of local management of teachers' credentials has not yet fully developed itself. Now and then, however, a case comes to notice. The latest is from San Bernardino. The honest gentlemen who run school matters in our neighboring county have evidently come to believe that to patronize home industry in all things is the cardinal principle of American patriotism. Perhaps they think that home genius is so extraordinary that it is utterly useless to consider anything else; or, perhaps, though it should be uttered under the breath, they are privately [conscious of some slight intellectual weakness, and, from a natural human instinct, prefer to keep it covered up. At any rate, they have decided most emphatically to keep all their school work and school money to themselves. For although the laws of the State nowhere so empower them, the gentlemen of the San Bernardino Board of Education have established the rule that they will admit no one to their examinations for teachers' certificates not a resident of the county. As a certificate is a legal requisite for holding a teacher's position, and can be issued only by the county authorities. This regulation peremptorily cuts off from employment all teachers of whatever qualifications, not happening to be of the number of happy natives. Such narrow bigotry, of course, injures only those who are responsible for it, but this example of jealous prejudice is enough to excite the sorrow and the anger of anyone zealous for broadness and honesty in public affairs. Our neighbors of San Bernardino may boast of their grapes and their oranges, their mines and their wheat-fields, but they must place their school matters on broader principles before they had better say anything of a liberal public spirit.

AMONG THE ARTISTS.

Notes from Los Angeles Studios.

The gravitation of Los Angeles artists seems to be in the direction of the Naland block. The bright and pleasant rooms of that building hold out a general invitation to art lovers that they seem not to be slow in availing themselves of. Already five artists are established there and another will shortly be ensconced beneath its roof.

Miss White is absent at present in San Francisco, taking her summer's vacation, and twice a week drifts down to Santa Monica for a cool breath of sea air and a dip in the sunny waves of the Pacific.

This artist is now busy making studies in the vicinity of Pasadena—sketches which she will work up in the winter. She goes shortly to San Francisco for a month's stay among the studios of the leading artists of that city, studying their methods, and in search of anything that may be suggestive of advancement. Even though the midsummer heats are upon us, she is busy in her studio much of the time, having a class of twenty-six pupils. She excels in flowers, landscapes and fruits, and has some really fine creations.

Among the artists who have recently established themselves in Los Angeles are who made a study of his profession in Cincinnati, and his mother, Mrs. Howard, a successful artist in fruits, flowers and lustral paintings. Mr. Miller's specialty is landscapes and sketches in still life. He has some finely executed game pieces which would attract attention in any gallery of paintings for their artistic excellence of finish and detail. His landscapes are full of the poetery of nature. Among his sketches are a cattle scene—a drove of cattle in the shadow of fine forest trees, lying along the borders of a cool and limpid stream. In the distance are mountains beneath a soft, warm sky. Its companion piece represents a drove of sheep on a wide, far-reaching plain, with lofty, mist-wrapped mountains in the distance. He has some fine views of Yosemite, several moonlight scenes of mountain and river, and views in the vicinity of Shasta—mountain and lake, rocks and reeds and babbling brook in one; another of lofty mountain peaks and nearer hills, a small herd of deer true to life, tall and stately pines and spruce and rocks in the midst of the tumbling river. The sketches of these artists' works will be their best commendation.

MR. J. H. VAN KEITH

is a portrait and landscape artist who has been in the city but a short time. He is a devotee to his profession, and is now at work on a picture of large size—a rural scene in New Hampshire, wit which he was in other days familiar. His sketch is not yet outlined upon the canvas, but the rocks which he had touched with his brush were reminiful of the moss-covered rocks among the woods and hills of New Hampshire.

MRS. WRIGHT

was busy with pupils, so the TIMES representative gave a quiet glance around his pleasant studio without a close observation of the work that he had accomplished. His specialty is crayon heads and figures, and the excellency of his work is generally conceded. There were some beautiful feminine faces upon his walls, and some saucy, piquant ones that invited the desire for further acquaintance.

MR. AND MRS. M'CLORY are drifting back and forth between town and sea shore, drinking in health and inspiration on the breezy beach, and the crown of happy faces there. They have just completed a portrait in oil of Mrs. O. L. Fisher. They are kept busy with orders and pupils, and had but little space for idle leisure.

VIRTUE UNDETECTED.

Dan Cunningham is Not James Meagher: Let That be Understood. Sandy, August 15.

It seems that Dan Cunningham, Governor Downey's faithful old coachman, has been the victim of a most egregious blunder.

Mrs. Meagher arrived here two days ago from San Francisco. She was in search of her recreant husband, James Meagher, who left her thirteen or fourteen years ago. She went to Justice Austin's Court and swore out a warrant for her recalcitrant lord, saying that he had been working for Governor Downey for a long time, and that he had recently been married to Mary McElroy. Naturally enough, the officers could think that nobody else was meant save Dan Cunningham, a man who had been in Governor Downey's employ since 1876, and who was married to Miss Maggie McElroy on the 29th of July.

Before the warrant was served, however, an evening paper published a report of the filing of the complaint. Cunningham getting hold of the paper early in the evening, and noticing the obvious reference of the case, came to the TIMES office and entered a most positive denial of any knowledge of either a man or a woman named Meagher. He protested his entire innocence of any previous matrimonial entanglements and forswore the San Francisco woman and her children in toto. After Cunningham returned to his home, he was waited upon by Officers Huber and Penning, who had with them the warrant for his arrest under the name of Meagher. Dan was mightily exercised over the matter and justly indignant, but he consented to accompany Officer Penning to see the woman Meagher, his accuser.

Mrs. Meagher was found, about 9 o'clock in the evening, at a millinery store on First street.

"Do you recognize this man as your husband, Mrs. Meagher?" asked the officer.

"Phy should I be recognizin' this man for my husband?" responded Mrs. Meagher, somewhat evasively, "I gave ye the description; phy don't ye go after gettin' the right man and bringin' him to me?"

"But this is the man, according to your description."

"This man?"

"Yes."

"Well, this, let him take off his hat."

"Take off your hat, Dan," said the officer, turning to him.

"What do ye want me to take off me hat for?" replied Dan, indignantly.

"Oh, it's the right thing to do in the presence of ladies, you know."

Dan did not need to be reminded of his manners a second time, and off went the hat, disclosing a thick shock of black hair that would not discredit an Indian.

"Then it's not me husband James Meagher at all, at all," said the dame, in a rapish way. "James Meagher had a shaking rink on top of his head as big as a cow). He did. And James is n't a stout man, but a slim man, with brown eyes, an' brown hair, and a dint in the bridge of his nose, and a stoop in his shoulders, and a wrinkle in the small of his back. Phy don't ye bring me the right man? I'm sure I've described him to yez close enough."

"All right, Dan, go," said Officer Penning. "It's all a horrid blunder. Go home to your wife, Dan; you're a free man. Forgive me and Mrs. Meagher. God bless you! Be virtuous, Dan. Good-bye."

At last reports yesterday Mrs. Meagher was looking for her lost James. She wanted the officers to give her the warrant, so that she might arrest him on sight.

As nearly as can be learned Meagher was in Los Angeles some time ago, when he boarded at the United States Hotel and worked at his trade, carpentering. It is supposed that he left for New Orleans last fall.

THE EAGLE CORPS.

Prospects for the Second Company and the Encampment.

Brigadier-General John R. Mathews states that the second company of the Eagle Corps will probably be officially recognized in about six weeks, as the disbanding of a company up north is contemplated, which will leave an available vacancy. It will be remembered that Governor Stoneman promised to give the first vacancy to Company B of the Eagle Corps.

General Mathews further states that the encampment will not begin at Santa Monica to-day, as it has been announced that it would. The State encampment is at Santa Cruz, and it will be necessary for the Corps to be excused by special order from attendance upon that before it can go into camp elsewhere. The reason for preferring Santa Monica to Santa Cruz is that the State appropriation is sufficient to send but few men to the latter place; and it is desired to have an encampment at which the whole corps can be present. The encampment will probably begin next week. It is proposed to give the boys a taste of soldier-work by marching them down from this city on foot, instead of patronizing the effeminate railroad.

RECALMED.

A Party Bound for Catalina Island Gets Stuck.

[From the SUNDAY TIMES.]

The schooner Emma sailed for Catalina Island last Tuesday, from San Pedro. The yacht Ida, which sailed at about the same time, got over to Catalina and on the way back to San Pedro met the Emma becalmed about midway. When the train came up from San Pedro yesterday, no tidings had been heard from the Emma, which had on board about thirty passengers, mostly ladies. There was considerable uneasiness felt, not so much because of any disaster that could befall the boat in the usual water, as because it is understood that there were provisions and water on board for but two days. A telephone despatch from San Pedro last night stated that the Emma reached Catalina at six o'clock yesterday morning, at least three days over-due. No news has been received as to the condition of the passengers, but it is to be presumed that they had to go on pretty short rations. The Emma is a tub-built craft, with a scant spread of canvas, and was becalmed at a time when other vessels managed to get along.

Down a Well.

Saturday, August 15.]

News reached the city yesterday afternoon of the sudden death of Jacob Wilhelm, at Cahuenga. It is learned that Wilhelm, who was a farmer 33 years of age, was engaged yesterday in cleaning out a well. Feeling sick, he had himself hauled out, but soon feeling all right, returned to the bottom. A few minutes later the sickness returned, and he came up. Very shortly after ward he breathed his last. Coroner McFarland started out last night to hold the inquest.

Later.—The inquest was held at 11 o'clock last night at the Weinshank rancho, Cahuenga. It was developed that Wilhelm became dizzy while coming up in a bucket from the bottom of the well, and fell out when half way up. His skull was fractured, and also his right clavicle. George S. Weinshank, aged eighteen, went down into the well, lashed Wilhelm's body to the bucket, and sent it up. Wilhelm was 36 years old, and leaves a wife and infant child. Coroner McFarland kindly gives this information at 3 a. m.

Mexican Independence.

Fruit-Canning.

Saturday, August 15.]

Messrs. Layfield & Welsh, of the Southern California Packing Company, say, in a note to the TIMES:

We have had the largest run on Bartletts yesterday that we ever had—just up over 30,000 cans of pears alone, besides a great many peaches. Last week we were very short of stock to work on, but now there is choice goods, such as we want to go into, especially lemon clings. We could use fifty to seventy-five tons if we could get them, and would pay $40 per ton. They talk of fruit growing being overdone here. Why, it is only in its infancy. A man with ten acres of salway or lemon cling peaches to-day, or ten years from to-day, has a fortune. We start on tomatoes next Tuesday. Will start a good stock, but not quite as large as last season.

The San Gabriel Valley Railway still pushes on. There have been delays from the non-arrival of ties and steel, but the delays have not been serious. A cargo of ties is now discharging at San Pedro, and thirty-five carloads were in the yard here last night. Steel is coming to light, returned to the bottom of the big trestle; and the track between here and there is admirably ballasted. The tracklayers have been stepping a little on the heels of the graders, but Lears of ages, was engaged yesterday in cleaning out a well. Steel is coming to light, returned to the bottom of the big trestle; and the track between here and there is admirably ballasted. The tracklayers have been stepping a little on the heels of the graders, but not so much as naming the great anti-slavery movement of this country, to pretend to delineate the character of Harrison, would impress most people as a unique illustration of assinine ignorance and stupidity, or a deliberate attempts to belittle the cause which alone brought him before the public and gave him all of his notoriety. But that would only demonstrate the obtuseness of people in general. Your brother editor has recently pronounced on Grant a eulogy, in which there is not the slightest characterization of the rebellion, which alone brought him to the front, and developed the wonderful power he possessed, and solely by the suppression of which he earned the gratitude and admiration of his country, and achieved his peerless position in history;—a eulogy that would not disturb in the least the morbid sensibilities of his friend Jefferson Davis. Now, sir, you must admit that only a genius could do that. Anybody could render Hamlet with Hamlet in; but only a master mind could render Hamlet with Hamlet out.

But this is not all. This modern Daniel sees numerous reasons why Confederate soldiers who attended the services held to commemorate the character and military career of General Grant should have worn the insignia of the rebellion in which they were engaged, their herculean attempt to destroy the country, but which Grant prevented. Because Gen. Benedict Arnold attended Washington's funeral it would have been entirely proper for him to display there the booty received for attempting to destroy his country, and in the British uniform to have paraded with those who stood by Washington to the last and thus secured freedom for the country! Why, my dear sir, you must be mad! Judas lived to repent sincerely, and had he afterwards been allowed to associate with the other disciples, it had never occurred to many years to come have been entirely proper for him to chink in their hearing the thirty pieces of silver. But it is well to have some questions settled, and let us be thankful for the genius that can settle them. PLAINDEALER.

Railroads and Rumors of Railroads.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: Los Angeles is recognized as the metropolis of Southern California, and by wise counsels and prudent management this grand position can always be maintained, and her borders greatly extended, even to the shores of the ocean, if your people as well as for the benefit of the country tributary (or easily made so) to your city, that the new lines of railroads contemplated should be distributed as much as possible, to the end that the construction of unnecessary lines may be avoided, and all portions of adjacent country be accommodated and its business brought directly to you. As the territory between Los Angeles and San Bernardino has the Southern Pacific and will soon have the San Gabriel Valley railroad, it would seem altogether unnecessary to start another line from Pomona for the same district, though diverging sufficiently to the south to run through Riverside. It would be better for all parties interested to make the holy from Anaheim, coming directly up the Santa Ana valley and passing through the entire length of the Riverside valley, connecting with the main line at Colton or Mound City, as may be preferred. The difference in distance to build is only twelve miles, viz: From Pomona to Riverside twenty-one miles, and from Anaheim to Riverside thirty-three miles by direct lines. But the advantages would be greatly in favor of the Anaheim line in this, that at the Temescal Valley a branch could be built to Elsinore, and ultimately extended to San Jacinto, in San Diego county. This would accommodate the celebrated San Jacinto tin mines, the newly-developing coal fields, Elsinore with its valuable clay beds, and Hot Springs, and the Menifee, Pinacate and Gabilan gold mining districts, and the splendid agricultural section of which the new town of San Jacinto is the center, as well as Arlington and Riverside. By the Anaheim branch the distances would be as follows:

	Miles
Los Angeles to Riverside	58
Los Angeles to Arlington	52
Los Angeles to Elsinore	48
Los Angeles to Temescal hot springs	54
Los Angeles to coal fields and clay beds	58
Los Angeles to Elsinore	64
Los Angeles to Pinacate, Menifee and Gabilan	69
Los Angeles to San Jacinto	86

The San Jacinto country, though in San Diego county, will be, by such a line of railroad, more accessible to Los Angeles than to either San Bernardino or San Diego.

It is a locality not yet appreciated by the average Californian.

It has an area of nearly 400 square miles, at an elevation of 1200 to 1600 feet above the level of the sea. Splendid agricultural land, finely watered by the San Jacinto river and artesian wells at San Jacinto and Elsinore, with surface water at moderate depth all over the district; land titles all settled, and good crops attainable with a moderate rainfall—it must soon be the home of a populous and wealthy community.

It is certainly unnecessary to urge upon the intelligent business men of Los Angeles the value and importance of a direct line of railroad to such a district, so easily obtained, in connection with the other advantages named, and therefore, like the lawyer who is sure of his case, I submit the matter without argument. Five Hundred Dollars for a Wife.

A wealthy widower of Green Valley, Sonoma county, between 70 and 80 years of age, recently offered a neighbor $500 if he would find him a wife. The bargain was concluded, a young lady was brought out from the East and was married to the aged widower, and all hands seem happy.

BRIEFS.

Saturday, August 15.

A sorrel horse is reported stolen from the Vernon district.

The old schoolhouse on the city lot is gone. The last brick was toppled over yesterday.

A bay horse was taken from 313 Center street, yesterday, and has not yet been recovered.

Major W. C. Furrey has secured the contracts for plumbing and tinning the new city market.

Work on the new city market on Main street progresses slowly. The granite sills were put in yesterday.

The granite curb along the Second street side of the city lot is all laid except three pieces. The artificial stone sidewalk will soon follow.

Sixteen deeds, six mortgages, five releases, four miscellaneous papers and one map were filed with the County Recorder yesterday.

The tramp is getting numerous and noxious again, after a season of absence. The numerous recent robberies and petty thefts tell the story.

George Antrim, a brutal and notorious wife beater, received a merited dose yesterday, when Justice Austin gave him 300 days in the county jail.

Two tramps were brought in last night by Constable E. M. Dalton, who found them in a box-car. One had a gold watch and the other a silver spoon stowed away.

A baby shark about three feet long attracted a good deal of attention at the Los Angeles Fishing Company's market on Main street, yesterday. It was caught by San Pedro fishermen.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the season—97 degrees in the shade being the maximum temperature. That would be "a broiler" in the East, but in this g. c. of C. it doesn't "phase" one a bit.

Some heartless fellow yesterday poisoned Bob, the knowing dog at the Confidence engine house. Bob was an upright and well-ordered dog, respected by all who knew him, and could be relied upon to wake the boys instanter when an alarm came in. He belonged to Mr. Mazey.

The committee on the obsequies of General Grant are to meet in the Mayor's Court-room at 8 o'clock this evening, to settle up their business. It is whispered that they have encountered some of that pitiful class of people who are keen to make extortionate profit out of such sad occasions.

The need of a fire alarm system was again made painfully apparent yesterday morning. There was a slight blaze in the store of M. W. Childs, 309 Los Angeles street, but the Chief Engineer and the fire department were notified that the fire was in the Childs tract, and so they went. Vigilance hook and ladder truck went clear to Twelfth street, and the horses got back nearly an hour after alive.

Sunday, August 16.

In the case of Jack Hendy, implicated by the confession of an accomplice in the Downey burglary, a jury in Judge Cheney's court disagreed yesterday.

Twenty-two deeds, seven mortgages, eight releases, five miscellaneous papers, one map, and one marriage license, were filed with the County Recorder yesterday.

John Douglas, the ex-Holiness Band brother who was left in charge of a house during the family's absence at Santa Monica and sold the furniture, was sentenced by Judge Cheney yesterday to thirteen months in San Quentin.

Marcos Gabriel, the fourteen-year-old boy who stole a horse and buggy from Riverside July 4th, and was captured here by Officer Fonck Friday, was taken to San Bernardino yesterday by Deputy Sheriff J. D. Hughes, of that place.

McCrea, the young forger in the county jail, is doing well, despite the two holes bored in him by Constable Gaddbert with a revolver. He says that if he had got around the corner of the Temple block he'd have liked to see anyone catch him.

The White Scale.

After all is said and done, it may be conceded that the best and quickest mode of removing this scale or other tree and plant pests is by the free and repeated use of the proper product of petroleum. Crude oil is sold at from 12½ cents per gallon by the Oil Burning and Supply Company, 111 West First street, Los Angeles.

British Benevolent Society Picnic.

The British Benevolent Society will hold a grand picnic on September 9th (Admission Day), at Agricultural Park.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

Pomona.

The following items are from our newsy and enterprising exchange, the Pomona Progress:

Telephone communication between Pomona and Los Angeles was established Tuesday night.

W. H. Clark has had his attention drawn away from legal business the past week by a spider's bite on his left hand, which is terribly swollen and painful.

Surveyors of the L. A. & S. G. V. R. R. have completed the survey of that road from Mud Springs to Indian Hill, where the line will await the completion of track-laying.

M. J. Stearns, formerly night watchman in this place, is engaged in the restaurant business in Los Angeles.

D. A. Moriarty, of Los Angeles, is the contractor for painting the new hotel, and has a large force of men at work.

By the hasty flight of a gentleman, Wednesday night, a landlord mourns the loss of $82, with several "back counties" to settle.

J. W. Emmons has taken the place of L. Breeden as agent of the Southern Pacific Company at this station.

Mrs. F. Mason and child arrived in Pomona from Los Angeles last evening. Mr. Mason has been endeavoring for some time to dispose of his Los Angeles property so that he could move his family here.

Pomona's new hotel is beginning to present a finished appearance. One coat of paint has been given it, and shutters are hard at work. Mr. Simpson, one of the contractors, informs us that the building will be completed and in running order, no doubt, before October 1st.

Our reporter made a trip to the San Jacinto country last week, and says he found that enterprising burg in a prosperous condition. The town contains about 400 inhabitants, and numerous business houses. Five new brick blocks are in course of erection. The valley contains about twenty artesian wells, each having a moderate flow. Land has advanced during the past year from $25 to $60 and $80. A new hotel is to be built at the hot springs, and San Jacinto has a fair future. The Register, its pioneer newspaper, will appear next week.

Pomona's public schools will open for the fall and winter term with the following corps of instructors: Principal, Prof. F. E. Little; Miss Mattie Reed, Miss Mary C. Adams, Nelson Sewer, Miss Addie Miner and Mrs. Strong.

On Sunday morning last, as J. L. Patten was moving along three miles west of the Ching ranch, he came upon a large mountain lion. Being armed only with a shot-gun, he nevertheless fired four shots into the beast, and succeeded in bringing him down from the tree which he had sought when Patten started in pursuit. He was a fine specimen, measuring eight feet from tip to tip.

San Diego and Vicinity.

Sun, Aug. 19.]

Building improvements are observable in every part of the city. A number of new and rather costly residences are now in course of construction.

The City Guards, at their meeting last evening, decided unanimously to attend the State Encampment at Santa Cruz.

A week ago yesterday at Julian, Dr. J. E. Fulton was using some chemicals in making an experiment; an explosion occurred, and the Doctor was thrown violently a distance of nearly twenty-five feet across the room. His hands and eyes were badly injured. He was brought to this city and is now at the Horton House.

A new town is to be laid out soon in Tiajuana valley, to be called Wellington. The settlers are to be Kansas people from Wellington, in that State.

A. M. Gass of this city has shown to the Sun a sample of what he believes to be the lac of commerce. It is found on a low, scrubby brush, in San Diego county, something like the chapparal, but different also. It is not particularly valuable, as the supply exceeds the demand, but it was supposed heretofore that lac was not produced in the United States.

San Bernardino.

Times, August 15.]

The new Methodist parsonage on Sixth street, near E, will be ready for occupancy soon.

Eugene Tibbetts, arrested on a charge of stealing a horse from A. B. Wise, was examined before Justice Knox this morning and held in $400 bonds to answer the charge of grand larceny.

Idle carpenters in our city are scarce at present, thanks to the amount of building now going on, and also under immediate contemplation.

The Superior Court will resume business on Monday next, after the summer vacation. There are a large number of criminal cases on the docket to be attended to, besides a vast array of civil suits. The court will have all it can attend to for several months to come.

Where Does the Laugh Come In?

SOME OBSERVATIONS ON A PERFORMANCE OF "UNLIMITED GALL."

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: For some time I have been fully persuaded that you did not quite understand your editorial brother of the Herald. You have seemed to regard him as only a common man, strangely called to the use of the quill. But you are greatly mistaken. All the signs show that you are "off the scent." In connection with the Herald, brilliant conversations and "flamboyant" exhibitions are so frequent as to mark its ruling spirit as a man of decided originality. For example: Irrespective of the establishment of Methodism, to attempt anything like a portraiture of the Christ-like character of John Wesley: or, without regard to the issues forced upon the Colonies by the British government even to try to give a faithful account of Washington's noble, heroic and sublime career, would not so much as naming the great anti-slavery movement of this country, to pretend to delineate the character of Harrison, would impress most people as a unique illustration of assinine ignorance and stupidity, or a deliberate attempts to belittle the cause which alone brought him before the public and gave him all of his notoriety. But that would only demonstrate the obtuseness of people in general. Your brother editor has recently pronounced on Grant a eulogy, in which there is not the slightest characterization of the rebellion, which alone brought him to the front, and developed the wonderful power he possessed, and solely by the suppression of which he earned the gratitude and admiration of his country, and achieved his peerless position in history;—a eulogy that would not disturb in the least the morbid sensibilities of his friend Jefferson Davis. Now, sir, you must admit that only a genius could do that. Anybody could render Hamlet with Hamlet in; but only a master mind could render Hamlet with Hamlet out.

But this is not all. This modern Daniel sees numerous reasons why Confederate soldiers who attended the services held to commemorate the character and military career of Grant should have worn the insignia of the rebellion in which they were engaged, their herculean attempt to destroy the country, but which Grant prevented. Because Gen. Benedict Arnold attended Washington's funeral it would have been entirely proper for him to display there the booty received for attempting to destroy his country, and in the British uniform to have paraded with those who stood by Washington to the last and thus secured freedom for the country! Why, my dear sir, you must be mad! Judas lived to repent sincerely, and had he afterwards been allowed to associate with the other disciples, it had never occurred to many years to come have been entirely proper for him to chink in their hearing the thirty pieces of silver. But it is well to have some questions settled, and let us be thankful for the genius that can settle them. PLAINDEALER.

Railroads and Rumors of Railroads.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: Los Angeles is recognized as the metropolis of Southern California, and by wise counsels and prudent management this grand position can always be maintained, and her borders greatly extended, even to the shores of the ocean, if your people as well as for the benefit of the country tributary (or easily made so) to your city, that the new lines of railroads contemplated should be distributed as much as possible, to the end that the construction of unnecessary lines may be avoided, and all portions of adjacent country be accommodated and its business brought directly to you. As the territory between Los Angeles and San Bernardino has the Southern Pacific and will soon have the San Gabriel Valley railroad, it would seem altogether unnecessary to start another line from Pomona for the same district, though diverging sufficiently to the south to run through Riverside. It would be better for all parties interested to make the holy from Anaheim, coming directly up the Santa Ana valley and passing through the entire length of the Riverside valley, connecting with the main line at Colton or Mound City, as may be preferred. The difference in distance to build is only twelve miles, viz: From Pomona to Riverside twenty-one miles, and from Anaheim to Riverside thirty-three miles by direct lines. But the advantages would be greatly in favor of the Anaheim line in this, that at the Temescal Valley a branch could be built to Elsinore, and ultimately extended to San Jacinto, in San Diego county. This would accommodate the celebrated San Jacinto tin mines, the newly-developing coal fields, Elsinore with its valuable clay beds, and Hot Springs, and the Menifee, Pinacate and Gabilan gold mining districts, and the splendid agricultural section of which the new town of San Jacinto is the center, as well as Arlington and Riverside. By the Anaheim branch the distances would be as follows:

	Miles
Los Angeles to Riverside	58
Los Angeles to Arlington	52
Los Angeles to Elsinore	48
Los Angeles to Temescal hot springs	54
Los Angeles to coal fields and clay beds	58
Los Angeles to Elsinore	64
Los Angeles to Pinacate, Menifee and Gabilan	69
Los Angeles to San Jacinto	86

The San Jacinto country, though in San Diego county, will be, by such a line of railroad, more accessible to Los Angeles than to either San Bernardino or San Diego.

BAYNCLIMATE.

Notes and News from a Southern Neighbor.

SAN DIEGO AND HER PROSPECTS.

Not a Very Extensive Room Yet—The New Railroad—The Bay—No Corner in Town Lots—Other Notes.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 13.—The steamer trip from San Pedro to San Diego is very pleasant at this time of year, and far preferable to the route by rail. On the steamer you have cool breezes and many comforts impossible to be obtained when traveling in the hot and dusty cars, not to speak of a tedious "lay-over" at Colton. The steamer arrives at the entrance of the bay just at daylight, and the passengers have an opportunity to see the famous harbor and its surroundings to the best advantage.

The town appears well from the harbor, and a number of handsome residences recently erected on the hill make a fine showing.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS.

Hope deferred is said to make the heart sick, and San Diego has waited many long years for the prosperity which every inhabitant has religiously believed bay and climate were sure to bring. They have had many disappointments, dating from Tom Scott's fiasco in 1873, and several times the town has been reduced to a corporal's guard of the faithful few who held the fort and locked as earnestly for the coming of the transcontinental railroad as the Pueblo Indians are said to look for the coming of Montezuma. At last the road is assured and in a few months San Diego will be one of the termini of a great transcontinental system. In view of this fact there has been a decided improvement in business during the past few months, and the sleepy town is showing signs of an activity to which it has long been a stranger.

NO ROOM YET.

Six months ago fully one-half of the business places of San Diego were for rent, and since that time nearly two-thirds of the vacated stores have been occupied, while there are few, if any, desirable houses to let. Yet there is no "boom," according to the common understanding of that term. Business is quiet and certainly no better, proportionately, than in Los Angeles. There are at present more than enough mechanics to do the work, and every steamer brings a fresh instalment. Wages are no higher than in Los Angeles and there is no better chance for the laboring man to obtain work. There have recently come to San Diego a number of men with capital and enterprise, and it is quite probable that they will develop the surrounding country and open new opportunities for labor.

APPEARANCE OF THE TOWN.

Several substantial and handsome business blocks have lately been completed, and a number of residences are in process of construction. There is talk of a much-needed street car line, and it has been decided to adopt the electric light system for public purposes. A great enterprise is projected, which, if successfully carried out, will materially change the appearance of the country about the town. This is nothing less than the bringing of 3000 inches of water from the mountains of this county, for domestic and irrigating purposes. The water has been measured and found to be there in the quantity stated, but an enormous amount of capital would be required to bring it to the town. The supply of water at present is pumped up to a reservoir from the San Diego river a few miles north of town and conveyed over the city in a five-inch main. San Diego is fortunate in its hotels, the Horton House being one of the best appointed in the State outside of San Francisco. The Florence, a new hotel on the hills, is also a creditable establishment.

NO CORNER IN TOWN LOTS.

In one respect San Diego is fortunate, and that is, for many years to come there can be no possible corner in town lots. For a distance of eighteen miles, or from a point beyond Old Town to the farther extremity of the harbor, there are no town lots unsurveyed, and they are nearly all for sale, and with each lot is deeded one share of bay view and one share of climate. These lots range in price from $100 to $1000 each. They are well located for drainage, and the breezes from the Pacific sweep over them the year round. In Los Angeles orchards and vineyards have been uprooted to make room for town lots, but here there will never be any need for such a sacrifice. There are town lots enough to accommodate a city the size of New York and Brooklyn, with San Francisco thrown in.

The proposed purchase of the San Diego peninsula for the purpose of turning it into a fashionable watering place has arrived in Congress for legislation, but the projectors are confident that the defect will soon be remedied and the work be commenced.

THE COUNTRY BACK OF SAN DIEGO.

San Diego has several valleys,—notably the Cajon and Sweetwater, which are capable of maintaining a considerable population. In the opinion of many sensible residents, these sections will have to be developed before the town can grow rapidly. San Diego, unlike Los Angeles, has no such settlements as Pasadena, Compton, Downey, Santa Ana, Anaheim and Pomona tributary to it, and and on the completion of the railroad there will be no business openings for any large increase of the population of the town, unless manufactories are established or new agricultural and horticultural industries developed. At present a large proportion of the fresh fruit consumed is brought from San Bernardino and San Francisco, but this, as the experiments of Kimball brothers at National City have shown, need not much longer be the case.

SAN DIEGO BAY.

San Diego bay is the scene of more activity at present than ever before in its history. There are seven or eight schooners in port nearly all the time, unloading lumber for which San Diego has become quite a depot. The steamers Santa Rosa and Orizaba touch regularly, and there is talk of a daily line of steamers to San Francisco after the completion of the railroad. This, however, is a mere rumor and there seems to be nothing to justify the establishing of such a line for some time to come. Occasionally a Mexican vessel touches at the port and there is a small fleet engaged in the fishing industry. The bay and ocean abound in fine fish—such as barracouda, rock-cod, yellow-tail and Spanish mackerel—and large fishing parties go out every day. For yachting and boating the bay has no equal on the coast.

Its surface for the greater portion of the time is as smooth as a mirror, and it requires a lively imagination to get up an excuse for seasickness. The depth on the bar at low tide is twenty-two and one-half feet, which is increased from six to nine feet at high tide. Some action by the Government is needed to widen the channel in places. The harbor is excellent, but improvements will be required to meet the demands of commerce.

NATIONAL CITY.

National City is a settlement five miles down the bay where the depot and other buildings of the California Southern Railroad are located. The railroad company owns fifty miles of land here, and the people of San Diego fear a rival business center. It is argued on the one hand that the corporation will build up a rival town where its landed interests are, and on the other hand it is said that San Diego has the advantage of position and growth, and the experiments of the Southern Pacific Railroad in building up rival towns to draw from established business centers have proved utter failures. National City has a wharf, car shops, a newspaper, a fine hotel and a number of residences. The beautifully improved places of the enterprising Kimball brothers are located here. The Messrs. Kimball have done much to develop the county and show what can be done on the dry lands.

Paradise Valley, a pretty little horticultural settlement, is located a short distance east of National City. The monument erected by the State authorities and Mexican governments to show the boundary line is distant eleven miles from National and sixteen miles from San Diego.

NOTES.

There are a number of Los Angeles people in San Diego, few of whom have yet decided to go into business.

The British man-of-war Triumph arrived off San Diego last week and anchored outside for a day or two. She has gone on to San Francisco.

The Tia Juana Hot Springs, just across the Mexican line, are becoming a popular resort. It is said that a large hotel will be erected there.

About thirty members of the San Diego Guards have gone up to the State encampment at Santa Cruz.

Oceanside is the popular seaside resort for San Diego. It is located a few miles to the north on the California Southern.

San Diego has now three daily papers—the Union, Sun and San Diegan. The first is a morning paper, the latter issue in the evening.

The steamer Santa Rosa, on its last trip, brought 132 passengers for San Diego. J. C. P.

Farm and Range.

Sulphuring Undesirable.

Last winter there was quite a flurry among fruit men over the sulphuring of lemons to prepare them for market. Mr. A. B. Chapman of San Gabriel, obtaing the recipe from a Florida book, tried it first and reported favorably upon it. On his recommendation a number of growers at Riverside adopted the method—and lost all of their fruit. It has since appeared that Mr. Chapman has been obliged to revise his first judgment of the sulphuring process, as he has lost some fruit by it himself. Whether the sulphuring was improperly done, thus causing the failure of the experiment is an open question. But the Riverside people resorted to many different methods —with light, medium and heavy sulphuring, long and short sulphuring, and in every case they found the results more or less unsatisfactory. The Riverside Press says: "A man who would suggest sulphuring lemons in Riverside would require some influence with the county to keep out of the insane asylum." In the moist climate of Florida a light bath of sulphur vapor may be good to destroy fungus germs, but in the dry atmosphere of Southern California, these precautions are hardly necessary. Lemons will here cure perfectly in any dry, cool and airy place. Some growers are meeting the greatest success by leaving their lemons in piles under the trees for a week or ten days.

It is probable also that sulphuring for the bleaching of dried fruit will soon be abandoned. Prof. Hilgard has pronounced against the process as rendering the fruit unwholesome. To a certain extent it impairs the taste, and this is of course against it. That it greatly improves the appearance of the fruit there is no question, but appearance must go when taste and healthfulness are in question.

HORTICULTURE.

Curl Leaf on Peach Trees—Cause and Cure.

Country Gentleman.]

Many different opinions are held by cultivators as to the causes of the curl leaf in peach trees. At a recent meeting of a prominent horticultural society the following were given: Wet weather, dry weather, cold, hot sun, overflow of sap, diseased sap, insect, fungus. The following observed phenomena were also mentioned: Trees shed their foliage; sometimes only one-half of tree affected; curl accompanied by cold and hot weather; badly affected trees produce little fruit; when the development of the curl is sudden trees cast their fruit; a limb may be affected down to a certain distance and near that a healthy growth of leaves may appear; as diseased leaves drop new and healthy ones come out; new wood becomes discolored, outer edge of leaf stops growing, center continues to grow and puffs up; disease pretty general in 1884. The observations are mostly correct and valuable, but it is evident that the conclusion cannot all be true.

LIVE STOCK.

Shying and Other Tricks.

Michigan Farmer.]

"Take shying, for instance; a horse isn't near as nervous as most humans. He quite naturally notices an unusual object and expresses his surprise by a variation in a gait or a side jump. Now, the first thing amateur drivers think it best to do in this case is to yell at the beast and give him a slash or two with the whip. Well, the horse thinks—oh, you may laugh, but he does think all the same—well, he thinks his driver is frightened too, and that he has double reason to be scared, and perhaps runs away. Who knows, he may do it with the intention of putting himself and driver in a place of safety. Now a horse never shies without first notifying a careful driver. If a cause is in front of him, he will throw an ear sharply in that direction; if behind, he will point an ear inquiringly back; then an experienced driver, who ought always to be on the lookout, at once gets ready to hold him and at the same time reassures him with a calm, firm, stable word or two that he is used to. Yes, sir, any horse that can see is likely to shy; and when anyone tells you he will not, it will be about as near the truth as that hostler or waiter who told Mr. Pickwick that his horse 'wouldn't shy if he was to meet a waggin load of monkeys with their tails burnt off.' That's the funniest horse story I ever read—oh, you've read it, have you? Good.

"Speaking of punishing a horse: Always be careful about using a whip on a horse you don't know; see how differently horses take a whipping; just like youngsters—some will tremble and lose their spirit, others will become stubborn and balk; a spunky one will jump right out of your hands, and you might not get him back time enough to save a broken wagon or head. And here's a bad practice you ought to speak of, the lighting of those snappy parlor matches on a wheel tire; many a horse has been startled in that way. Smoking on horseback is a very bad practice. A falling spark from a pipe or cigar has caused many riders broken bones or bad bruises."

Some Practical Hints About Raising Calves.

During the first month of a calf's life three meals a day of four quarts each, will be ample. The second month, the meals may be increased to five quarts each, and the calf encouraged to take from the hand a little ground corn and oat-meal, a teaspoonful at first only being put into its mouth with some sugar in it. Gradually the meal may be increased, until it will take a small handful, still sweetened. Sugar, at four cents a pound, is a very cheap and useful food for a young calf. In time, the feeding may be increased, until at three months the milk amounts to six quarts three times a day—still given warm, but gradually less warm—and two or three ounces of the meal. No sour milk or buttermilk should be fed. Where good calves are to be raised, deep setting of the milk should be practised, so as to have sweet skimmed milk for the calves. During the third month, a little sweet hay should be given, or the calf may be tethered in a small lot, where there is good grass.

It pays well to give calves good care. Calves are the seed of the dairy, and all improvement in the stock must come through them. The more docile and affectionate a calf can be made, the more quiet and useful the cow will be. Hand-feeding and tethering on the grass are excellent means of descipline for a calf. A little switch now and then will be found useful to repress the exuberance of playfulness in a calf, and teach it to realize its responsibilities and its duties. It should be taught to lead at this time, so that before it is six months old, it can be handled as easily as an old cow, and it should then be tied up in its stall nightly, as the cows are.

Diarrhea is the most exhausting of all diseases of a calf. Not only is the food not digested, but the poor young thing suffers the severest pain in the spasms which accompany the disorder. It is caused by indigestion, almost always produced by over-feeding. This frequent blunder of over-feeding is the bane of young animals, which, instead of being benefited by the excess of food, are greatly injured by it. Sour milk is also a cause of the disorder, but not so much, when it is not given in excess. Naturally a calf takes its milk slowly, and the food is coagulated in the stomach in fragments, as it is swallowed in mouthfuls. When a calf is fed by hand, and swallows four or five quarts of milk very hurriedly, the food curdles in one mass, which can only be attacked by the gastric fluid on the outside, and is dissolved very slowly. The solid lump ferments, gives forth acid, as well as pungent gaseous products, and very soon produces the disease. Great care should be taken to feed a calf with warmed milk (not less than eighty degrees), and to feed slowly, giving it time to breathe and rest between the swallows. The milk coagulates more quickly at eighty degrees than when cooler, and the small quantities swallowed are curdled very soon, so that the whole forms a porous, spongy mass in the stomach, and digestion can go on very quickly.

If for any reason a calf is suffering from diarrhea, the best cure is a light dose of castor oil, or twice as much pure olive oil. An injection of one pint of warm water (one hundred degrees), with a tablespoonful of olive oil, and a teaspoonful of laudanum, shaken up to form an emulsion, will relieve the spasms and soothe the sufferings of the calf. All food should be withheld, excepting one quart of new, warm milk, given twice a day, continuing this until the bowels are in good order again.

GENERAL FARM TOPICS.

The Object of Premiums at Agricultural Fairs.

Hon. Ferley Poore in American Cultivator.]

Premium lists are now being made up by agricultural societies, and I wish that the committees having them in charge would profit by the advice of Henry Colman, who regarded the subject as one of great importance. The amount of money distributed in this way by the State and county societies is considerable.

There are two objects to which these premiums are adapted: First, to ascertain what can be done; and second, when anything valuable is done, how it was done; to induce individuals to make experiments, inventions and discoveries in agricultural science and practice; and to secure for the agricultural public the advantage of such experiments, inventions and discoveries by a full detail of the results here obtained. If the public pay a bounty or reward for any agricultural experiment or produce, they have a right to know how they themselves may realize a similar produce. The mere fact that a man has raised so many bushels of corn to an acre, or exhibited an animal weighing so many pounds, or produced butter which is adjudged, and with perfect justice, deserving of the splendid premium of $100, are of little consequence to the public, compared with knowing, in respect to the crop, what was the nature of the soil, the manure applied, the kind planted, the distance of the plants and the time of planting and gathering; in respect to the animal, the stock from which he is derived, the manner in which he has been reared, the quality and quantity of the food which he has consumed, the general mode of attendance and the balance of loss or gain in the experiment; and in respect to the butter, from how many cows it has been produced, the nature of their pasture and keep, the mode of setting the milk, the time of taking the cream, the manner of churning, the quantity and kind of salt used, and the way of putting it down for market.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Chicago and the other large western cities have been unable to consume the immense crop of strawberries raised in the Mississippi Valley this year; in consequence thereof Bostonians were treated to the novel sensation of having Illinois strawberries offered in their markets.

Orchids are beeming more and more fashionable, and many of the rich Eastern belles don't hesitate to pay $20 and more for a single spray to wear at a reception or party, as long as it is fashionable and becoming.

Downey Fair.

The regular old-time Country Fair which was held at Downey last year is remembered with pleasure by all who attended it. The public will be glad to know that another fair is on the carpet, to be held at the same place this Fall. On August 3d, pursuant to a call, there was held at Downey a meeting of citizens from different parts of the county, and it was determined to perfect a permanent organization. The necessary committees were appointed, and Saturday, August 15th, at 1 o'clock p. m., fixed as the date for holding a meeting to complete the organization.

QUERIES.

And Answers to Our Correspondents.

BLOAT IN CATTLE.

D. M. N., San Bernardino: One of the most prompt and efficacious remedies for bloat in cattle is the following: Have a piece of three-quarter inch irrigating hose about four feet long, ready at hand. When you discover an animal down with bloat, lumber up the hose by soaking a minute or two in hot water; oil it a little on the outside, and shove it down the beast's throat. For this operation you will find it necessary to trice the creature's head up by a noose slipped over the jaw, so that the head and neck are distended nearly in line. Use a stout stick or an iron rod to slip inside the hose and stiffen it so that it may be forced down the animal's throat. Bind a piece of cloth about the lower end of the rod so that it will fit tightly in the hose at its extremity, and, at the upper end, bind the hose tightly upon the rod. This is to prevent the rod from slipping through as the hose is forced down. When the hose is in place, take off the upper wrapping and then gently pull the rod up. The wrapping at the bottom acts as a suction in the hose and starts the gas and chyme. When the rod comes out, stand from under, for there will be an eruption of Vesuvius. This give instantaneous relief from bloat.

CRANBERRIES.

Subscriber, Downey, says: "Please publish in the next number of the MIRROR a full treatise on the cranberr , whether adapted to this climate or not."

Our knowledge of cranberry culture (which is quite limited) has led us to believe that cranberries are adapted to swampy land and a cold climate. We know of no actual experiments made in California. If any reader of the TIMES or MIRROR is posted on cranberry culture, or knows of any local experiments, we shall be glad to hear from him.

Hydrophobia and Other Things.

Merchant Traveler.]

Mr. Miller was bitten by his wife's dog, and the lady was so much excited about it that she called in the doctor and stated the case to him.

"Well, madam," said that gentleman, "I can't say what the result will be, but you can determine if he has hydrophobia by offering him water."

"How can I tell by that?"

"Simply enough; if he rejects the water with horror, the dreadful disease has enchained him."

"But, doctor, my husband is a Kentuckian."

"Oh—ah—excuse me. I did not think of that. Come again this afternoon. I must look up the authorities."

General Grant's Doctors' Bills.

Letter to Cincinnati Enquirer.]

I hear that Mrs. Grant has considered that $12,600 would be respectable remuneration for the medical attendants of General Grant, who have put in no bill whatever. Six thousand dollars of this money was raised by Stanford, Huntington and Crocker of the Central Pacific Railroad, and Mackey and others raised the rest.

From the Chicago Inter Ocean.]

The Voice of the Sea.

Born in the earliest dawn of time,
I shall be till time is o'er;
I sing my song in every clime,
And compass every shore.
From north to south, from east to west,
My giant waves are hurl'd,
Wherever ever a monarch like me, possessed
Of more than half a world!

I'm grave, I'm gay, I shout or sing
As it suits my varying mind;
But, whatever my state, I wonder bring
To the hearts of human kind.
And when first I rise or stranger eyes
The majesty girding me,
How tirrills his heart as he wildly cries:
"The sea! the sea! the sea!"

The broad Atlantic's my hall of pride,
A myriad serfs I own,
And at every nob of my mighty tide
They gather about my throne;
They come, the near and the far away,
From cave and cliff and tower,
From golden fields and gardens gay,
And many a lady's bower.

In the fair Pacific I love to smile,
And list my waves to rest,
While many a glittering coral isle
Gleams brightly on my heaving breast;
But far away in the Northern sea
I'm chilled to the very soul,
For the icy winds my heart's blood freeze
As I circle the silent pole.

I bask beneath Italian skies—
I muse by classic Greece,
And scarce can an angry feeling rise
Mid scenes so full of peace;
And even I, over Glory's grave,
A tear can almost shed,
As I flow with bright and placid wave
By the "Cliffs of Dover Dead."

I wander among the Hebrides,
Down Staffa's solemn aisles,
And dear to my soul is the passing breeze
From Iona's sacred piles.
For it whispers of ages dark and drear,
Of a well-nigh Pagan night,
When outcast Truth found a refuge here,
And shone as a beacon bright.

Around Columbia's rocks I roar
And swiftly Hindostan;
And many a bleak and barren shore
Dabred by the foot of man.
Spain, Venice, and Carthage, where are they?
And where are the wreaths they won?
They are silent all in Fame's decay,
My story has just begun.

AMERICAN FRUIT EVAPORATOR!

The most practical and reliable Fruit Evaporator made. It gives uniformly hot air currents ABOVE and BELOW all fruit, thus insuring evenness of drying and no spoiled fruit. Beware of infringements. THE AMERICAN is permanently the fruit-raisers' machine. Its sizes grade from domestic to commercial requirements. It makes the highest quality of work with ordinary care in handling. There is no need of making anything else. Though we approve a slight use of sulphur, the AMERICAN is specially adapted for highest grade of unbleached work. It places fresh cut fruit first in highest and driest heat, cures cut surfaces at once and keeps them dry, thereby setting and making permanent the color, and also thereby, as in broiling steaks, sealing the juices. Our experience in evaporating at the disposal of our customers. In some instances this gratuitous service is of more value than prices paid us for evaporators. Sold by

CATARRH!

And Consumption are Caused by Atmospheric Germs, Which Develop into Parasites. These Diseases are

Scientifically Treated By

W. N. DAVIS, M. D., M. C. P. S. O.

Graduate of "Chicago Homeopathic College," Chicago, and "College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario," Canada.
HOMEOPATHIC SPECIALIST of Diseases of Ear, Nose, Throat, Chest, and all Chronic Diseases.

CATARRH

Is caused by the presence of parasites, microscopical in size, in the mucous membranes. They germinate and develop from the air, become more readily dev loped and increase more rapidly in systems debilitated from any cause, as in scrofulous subjects and in those suffering from a hyperæmic or torpid liver, which causes the blood to become impoverished.

The catarrh is first located in the anterior part of the nose and the patient seems to have a cold in the head, from which he is scarcely ever free. This gradually extends to the posterior nares and mucous is expelled, especially in the morning, from the throat, and in rare cases there is no discharge, a dry sensation in the nostrils alone being present.

In time the mucous membrane becomes thickened, so that respiration through the nose is difficult or impossible and the germs are deposited directly into the throat and lungs. This stage of the disease will be continued by a hacking cough or simply a disposition to clear the throat. Sometimes the germs will lie dormant for years until such time as the lungs become in a fit condition for their development. This condition may be the result of a severe cold or any debilitating disease, when the germ is able to multiply and produce its kind. Then colds do not pass off as other colds have done and we have a case of chronic bronchitis or Catarrh of the lungs, which is often mistaken for consumption and may pass into that disease if not arrested.

Our treatment consists in using such remedies, either in spray or inhalation, as will destroy these germs or parasites, soften the mucous in the lungs and facilitate expectoration. This gives constitutional medicines a chance to build up the system and our mild climate can better cure in ourselves influence. This climate alone very often apparently arrests the disease, but there is always danger of a relapse until the cause is removed. Nasal Catarrh is frequently cured with from one to four applications of medicine. Every lung disease can be cured if taken in time and in hopeless cases life can be prolonged and comfort given to the patient.

Catarrh of the throat and pharyngitis can be treated at a distance by writing for a list of questions, but if lungs are involved an examination at office is necessary.

Consultation and Examination Free.

The following testimonial of a gentleman well known in Los Angeles, who has a law office at 4½ North Spring street, will show how quickly catarrh can be cured:

This is to certify that I am a regularly qualified physician and practicing, and have always believed catarrh of the chronic nasal variety to be an incurable affliction, but after trying Dr. W. N. Davis' new treatment and his success, I applied to him for medicine and determined to try it in the case of one of my friends, and did so with the most satisfactory results, as in a few weeks' time my friend was entirely relieved of a very severe catarrh of long standing and of a very severe type. I can recommend Dr. Davis to those similarly afflicted. S. HALSEY, M. D.
